

COMPATIBILITY PROFILE

Text by Maritha Pottenger
Programming by Rique Pottenger

PREPARED FOR MOTHER AND CHILD

Diana Krater
and
Luna Krater

Diana Krater
Born on Jun 27, 1957 at 8h 33m 0s
Zone 5.00 DAYLIGHT time
Laurel Hill, PA 40N04'23 76W05'04
Koch cusps Tropical zodiac
Prepared on 8/31/ 4

Luna Krater
Born on Jul 7, 1981 at 16h 42m 0s
Zone 8.00 DAYLIGHT time
Berkeley, CA 37N52'18 122W16'18
Koch cusps Tropical zodiac
Astro Job # 25 14

Diana Krater.

Introduction. Page 1

Who Diana Krater is. Page 1

- Collective & Communal
- Family as Friends & Friends as Family
- Cosmic Compassion
- Lightning Logic

Relationship Issues for Diana Krater. .Page 6

- Safeguarding Sensitivities
- Come Closer/Go Away
- A Broad Perspective
- Nurturing Needs

Issues for Diana Krater. Page 9

- Attach/Separate
- Fostering Freedom
- Favoring Friendship
- Uniquely Unusual

Challenges.Page 12

- Communication Issues
- Friendships/Need For Other People
- Karmic/Unconscious Ties/Manipulation/Secrecy
- Money
- Relatives

- Action/Thinking
- Head/Heart
- Home/Career (or Tasks)
- Interpersonal/Transpersonal
- Past/Future
- Personal/Transpersonal
- Stability/Risk (Security/Change)

Strengths.Page 16

- Air/Water
- Air

Luna Krater.

Introduction. Page 1

Who Luna Krater is. Page 3

- Sudden Insights
- A Free Spirit
- Resourceful
- Structured Change/Changed Structures

Relationship Issues for Luna Krater. . Page 7

- Family Feelings
- Parental Power
- Motherly Moderation?
- Options

Issues for Luna Krater. Page 11

- Follow-Through
- Uncovering Hidden Depths
- Thinking
- Idealism

Challenges.Page 12

- Communication Issues
- Karmic/Unconscious Ties/Manipulation/Secrecy
- Money
- Work Demands
- Critical Judgment/Flaw Finding/Duties/Practicalities or Responsibilities

- Action/Thinking
- Ease/Effort
- Home/Career (or Tasks)
- Lighthearted/Serious
- Past/Future
- Personal/Transpersonal
- Quantity/Quality (Scatter/Focus)
- Student/Teacher

Strengths.Page 16

- Fire/Water

- Communication Skills
- Fairness/Equality
- Fortune/"Luck"
- Unconscious Understanding
- Mental Stimulation
- Nurturing Skills
- Personal Growth (Individuality)
- Playfulness
- Practical/Commitment
- Tolerance/Open-Mindedness
- Vision

Understanding the Format of Your Compatibility Profile

On the following pages is a highly-sophisticated computerized astrological interpretation of the compatibility between two individuals. This report differs from other astrological relationship reports that you may have experienced, in that it is a SYNTHESIZED interpretation.

Most computer reports compare two horoscopes piece-by-piece, giving you an interpretation of each planet in sign, house and aspect for one person in comparison with each planet in sign, house and aspect for the other person. Such reports can be very instructive for students of astrology because they learn to identify from just what astrological factor each piece of interpretive information is derived. But the problem with the piece-by-piece report is that the student often ends up with lots of little bits of information that may not fit together very well, or that seem to contradict each other.

Let's face it — our lives often ARE contradictory! However, admitting that fact still does not provide us with an easy means of weighing all those little bits of information to understand what is most important and then to “pull it together” into a sense of the whole.

Compatibility Profile uses state-of-the-art computer programming to provide you with an interpretation that “pulls it all together” for you. All of the myriad pieces of astrological information in each horoscope are searched for repeated themes. These are weighed and blended to produce interpretive paragraphs that give you a much more accurate sense of the potential compatibility of the two individuals whose charts are interpreted, than any piece-by-piece report could provide.

1. The FIRST SECTION gives a short interpretation of the basic personality of each individual — “Who's Who.” This is very important, for our compatibility potential with ANY other person begins with our own basic personality needs and our capacity to relate.
2. The SECOND SECTION continues the individual analysis with “Who Wants What.” This section focuses on the specific relationship desires and needs of each individual. Again, this is very important, for how we get along with ANY other person stems from what we, ourselves, are looking for in that type of relationship.
3. The THIRD SECTION begins the comparison of the two charts with “How You Impact One Another.” Here, the interactions between the two horoscopes are thoroughly examined. The interpretations are addressed as issues for each person to consider in relating to the other person.

In this section, a further key to understanding can be found in the TYPEFACE of each interpretive paragraph. Bold Type indicates conflict, Italic Type indicates harmony and Plain Type indicates that the issue is neutral area between the two people that could be expressed as either harmony or conflict. These distinctions are explained in more detail in the introduction to the section.

4. The FOURTH SECTION is labeled “Challenges.” Here, you will find a focus on the “Red Flag” issues that may be most likely to cause problems between the two people. Polarities — areas in which the two of you are likely to become “out-of-balance” with each other if you do not understand your dynamics of interaction — are also interpreted.

5. The FIFTH SECTION interprets the “Strengths” in the interactions between the two horoscopes. Basic strengths between the two people are often closely tied to the dominant elemental “type” of the personalities (fire, earth, air or water). Other strengths are reflected by aspect contacts between the charts. This section first analyzes the elemental emphases and then gives short interpretations of the contact strengths .

Each section begins with a short introduction that gives you hints and examples to help you make the most of the personalized information you receive. Please do not neglect to read these introductory paragraphs, for they are carefully designed to help you receive the best possible benefit from this report.

The text of this Compatibility Profile report was written by Maritha Pottenger, a widely-known and highly-respected astrological consultant who also holds an M.A. degree in clinical psychology. For further information on the specific system of astrological synthesis that she uses in her work, see her book: Astrology: The Next Step, which can be ordered from us here at ACS, or obtained through your local bookstore, for $25.95.

Astrological Annotation included within this report is available upon request. This is for the benefit of astrologers who wish to know which astrological factors were considered for the text of each interpretive paragraph. If you ordered Compatibility Profile in the Annotated Version you will find one or more lines of astrological glyphs before each interpretive paragraph. This is a list of every factor from which that paragraph theme was derived.

Introduction

Few areas in life are more important than the people with whom we share our lives. Our early family relationships, including with our parents, often have a profound impact on our later lives. It is as if the early associations are a crucible, setting patterns that we continue to repeat with people we meet later. Positive family relationships make later relationships easier and more fulfilling. Negative relationships contribute to overall stress and may mean we have to work harder to find happiness with others. Of course, most relationships have a mixture of positive and negative. And many relationships are amenable to change; we can create more supportive, and more fulfilling interactions than we have had in the past.

There is an extremely vital point to remember in terms of family relationships. Although we cannot change the past (in terms of what happened), we can change our perceptions about the past and our attitude toward that past. By changing our perceptions, we create a new future. Suppose, for example, a girl grew up with a parent who she felt was dominating, controlling and intrusive. She may have coped with the situation by smiling, agreeing and then doing nothing. Perhaps as a woman she now continues to smile, agree and do nothing whenever someone around her seems dominating or controlling. By going back and analyzing the past, she come to see her parent's actions as connected to that parent's inner needs, and not particularly related to her actions at all. She may also come to a re-definition of power and strength. She showed her strength when she was younger and more physically vulnerable by appeasement. She can recognize other avenues of strength and self-protection now. She can choose to change the pattern of how she deals with people she feels want to dominate her. She can stop reacting in an old, automatic fashion, and choose the best response based on her reading of the current situation!

This report is designed to help you make the most of your relationship (past, present and future) with your parents--and the "inner parent" that each of us develops out of interaction with our parents.

Section One: Who's Who

This first section addresses the issue of who you are and who your mother is. The basic themes in your identity are discussed then, then basic drives and motivations within your parent are covered. We begin with an exploration of you separately from your mother, and move later to your combined interactions. The focus is on central psychological motifs within each of you. If you each understand the principles involved, you can choose to express them in positive rather than in negative ways. Every human drive has a potentially positive (and a potentially painful) side. Through increased consciousness, we can express more often our fulfilling options.

Who Diana Krater is

Collective & Communal

You see more and further than most people. Your inner vision encompasses the wider world. With a transpersonal viewpoint, you are able to include a more global perspective than the average person. Able to rise above petty personal concerns, you can consider the interactions of a number of people, the clash of cultures or nations, the need to compromise and the challenge of integrating a world of diverse individuals.

You may exhibit marked humanitarian tendencies or utopian inclinations. You could idealize friends, the future, freedom or the uniqueness of every human being. You may tread new and original paths in your thinking about spirituality, compassion, faith and the meaning of the universe.

Blessed with both logic and intuition, you can fall into a struggle between heart and head, detachment versus compassion. Or, you can make a satisfying blend between the intellect and psychic insights. You can bring unconscious knowing to the surface, communicate it with others and pick the best combination of rational and intuitive understanding. Both your thoughts and your feelings can contribute to the ultimate good of all humanity.

Family as Friends & Friends as Family

Friends and family are likely to be important focuses in your life, but you may sometimes feel torn between them. You have strong nurturing instincts with a need to make close, emotional attachments. You could easily mother other people (and attract people who want to mother you). Yet you also have intense needs for freedom and to be unique--unlike anybody else.

If you cannot make peace between your desire for intimacy and your desire for independence, you could swing from possessiveness to running away, dependency to aloofness or other extremes. You might identify with one end and unconsciously select friends and partners to manifest the opposite side. How you handle your needs to nurture and be nurtured is influenced by your experience of your mother (or mother figure). If she was able to blend friendly independence with warm support, it will be easier for you to combine the two. If she expressed too much of either side (need for closeness or need for freedom), you have the challenge to move beyond early reactions to a more fulfilling expression for yourself.

This inner ambivalence might also manifest as a struggle between security needs and the desire for change/innovation/something new. You want roots and safety, but you are also drawn to the future, the new-age and the unusual. Although you may feel pulled sometimes between family attachments and friends, between emotional commitments and independent action, between security and risk-taking, when you incorporate a balanced expression of both, you have a richer, fuller, more fulfilling life.

Cosmic Compassion

Your feelings go very deeply and are often not revealed to the world. With incredible sensitivity, the roles of nurturer and helper are likely to come naturally to you. Tuning into the pain of others, your compassion urges you to assist in whatever ways you can. If you become too emotionally involved, you could sacrifice too much of yourself in trying to rescue someone else from their troubles. If you do not trust your own strength and power, you are likely to seek someone who will seem totally giving and loving to you.

You may be inclined to idealize the mothering archetype--see nurturing support and compassion as infinitely good. In such a case, you could seek to care for, protect and cherish anyone around you who needs it; you could look to someone to be the all-caring, all-loving maternal figure to you; or you might simply see caring as a most important quality in life and as your highest value. Your experience of your own mother (or mother figure) helped to determine the handling of these themes. You could have idealized her, been very disappointed when she was not perfect, created a dream image for an absent, missing or victim parent, learned your ideals from her, etc. The issue of nurturing and the search for infinite love and beauty are tied together for you. How you make the blend is a personal choice.

With a strong intuitive side, you can tune into your inner wisdom more easily than many. Psychic insights may lead you to certain actions. Sensitive to your own inner life and to the emotions of others, you can be extremely empathic. With a need for deep commitments, you tend to absorb or be absorbed in relationships. The two of you become more like one person.

Lightning Logic

Creative and original, you have much to contribute. Your zest and enthusiasm for new ideas and unique perspectives can help change the world. With a strong need for variety, new challenges and constant movement, you are inclined to seek stimulation from many people, many sources and many involvements.

At times, you may experience tension between your heart and your head. A polarity is present, calling for balance between emotional and mental needs. One side of your nature is expressive, outgoing, loving, proud, and seeks children, lovers and people with whom to give and receive admiration and applause. Another side of your nature is cool, detached, intellectual, freedom-loving and seeks new-age ideas, progressive changes, casual friendships, and humanitarian involvements.

This inner seesaw might also express as feeling torn between children and groups/humanitarian causes/new-age involvements or friends or between lovers and friends/causes/intellectual needs. Your mind could war with your passions. Once integration is made, your ability to love and care intensely deepens your humanitarian ideals and goes beyond mere intellectual tolerance and acceptance. Your involvement in the wider world makes you a more interesting person to relate to your children and loved ones. Your heart fuels head goals and your head helps you figure out ways to attain your heart's desire.

Who Luna Krater is

Sudden Insights

You have the capacity for marked originality and also considerable endurance and followthrough. Although likely to have broad interests and a strong need for variety, you can focus intently and concentrate fully in order to complete tasks.

Some inner conflict is possible. One part of your psyche is oriented toward taking control, while another prefers to relate as an equal and share the power. One side of your nature seeks change, innovation, something new and different, while another side prefers safety, stability, and hanging on to the past. You need personal freedom and independence, yet are also attracted to intense, absorbing relationships. A very open, forthright side competes with a desire for secrecy and keeping some things hidden. A deeply emotional side may be at odds with your cool, detached intellect. How you work with these differing needs is up to you.

If peace is not made between these varying drives, you could overdo one theme and attract other people who express the opposite side to excess. Or, you might swing from one extreme to another. If a reasonable balance is found, however, you can be extremely versatile. Your depth of emotions and driving need to comprehend motivations can supplement your detached, objective overview of life. Your inventiveness helps you to see new options, while your perseverance and self-discipline allows you to finish important projects. You can choose when to "let it all hang out" and perhaps even shock people with your unconventional thoughts, and when to be circumspect and keep your lips sealed.

Strong willpower is suggested. By focusing on what you feel is important, you can use your various sides in different circumstances for optimal results.

A Free Spirit

You are a unique individualist and well aware of the fact. Indeed, being different is probably quite important to you. You might even prefer to act or appear shocking somehow, rather than be seen as "one of the crowd." You may flout your uniqueness or flout conventions if it seems people are trying to stereotype you. Personal freedom of acting and thinking are vital to you. Independence is your middle name.

Blessed with considerable originality and inventiveness, you can blaze new paths and create different perspectives. Although you are willing to take risks, they are more likely to be in the arena of thinking than doing. While your courage is marked, you probably express it most freely in thinking for yourself and refusing to follow the "party line." Dogma is not your style.

Friends are often important sources of support for you. You thrive in an environment with much mental stimulation. Naturally equalitarian, you are willing to meet everyone at his/her own level. Because you cherish your freedom and unique self-expression, you tend to be supportive of the right of anyone else to do their own thing. Humanitarian principles are likely to appeal and you may be drawn to new-age interests of all kinds. Anything new or on the cutting edge of change is likely to get your attention. You value freedom, innovation and the future.

Resourceful

You're ready for anybody! With an interest in the whole world, you can find something fascinating about anyone. Naturally gregarious, you thrive in social situations and enjoy bantering back and forth with peers. Mental stimulation is the breath of life for you.

You love to communicate and seek out compatible friends and partners to share the world of the mind with you. Theories, ideas, bits of trivia, explanations and any head trips appeal to you. With a free-ranging mind, you are not limited by convention. Relationships are also of interest to you and you do your best to figure out all the people around you.

Generally objective, detached and rational, you are not likely to be swept away or to make a decision based on emotion. However, you do have to balance your desire for a partnership with your desire to remain independent to pursue unusual lines of thought or to interact with the wider world. You may sometimes swing to extremes of desire for sharing the world versus total independence and individuality (or attract people to play out one side if you identify solely with the other). This could also express as tension between commitments to a partner versus commitments to friends/causes/groups.

Articulate, logical, open and tolerant, you are ready to learn from the world and eager to share with others.

Structured Change/Changed Structures

You may choose to change the system from within, working to modify it and improve it, or you may choose to create your own, new and different structure outside of the current "establishment." You have the ability to blend the old and the new, the conventional and the unconventional, the inventive and the tried-and-true.

If you allow these two sides of your nature to fight rather than cooperate, you may feel torn between rebellion and compliance, the established mode versus the coming wave, structure versus looseness and other polarizations. You could also play out one side while someone else in your life expresses the opposite extreme. You can get the best from both traditions and progress if you create a compromise rather than a contest.

Able to work sensibly and practically with what already exists, you can also envision new alternatives and imagine original possibilities. Your inventive side can be grounded by your common sense (or fly off in undisciplined tangents if you allow it). Your need for achievement, stability and tangible results can be leavened by your originality (or solidify into bureaucracy and rules for the sake of rules if you allow it). The challenge is to recognize the essential limits in life and work within them when necessary, while also recognizing when you can break the rules, work outside the limits, or create new rules of your own.

Section Two: Who Wants What

This section deals with the needs and issues you and your mother bring to your relationship. It covers the attitudes you both have about one another and what each of you is likely to elicit from the other as responses. It is based on an astrological analysis of each of your charts with special focus on the area of parental relationships.

It is important to remember the cosmic principle of balance which operates in family relationships: we come into families who can help us learn to be more fully ourselves, to balance sides of our nature which are out of balance with the whole. Thus, if we deny a part of our own potential, we are likely to have a family member who will manifest that denied potential for us--often in excess.

A common example is the child of harsh, dominating and controlling parents. The child may vow to never abuse power the way his/her parents did. So, power and control continue to be seen as "out there" (within the parents). The child denies his/her own strength. Forcefulness is seen as "bad." The parents are overdoing the expression of a power drive, while the child is underdoing it.

The danger here is that children often deny their own potentials from a reluctance to step outside these artificial boundaries. Also, whenever one party in a relationship is identified as the "sole provider" of certain qualities, that party is likely to overdo those qualities. Thus, if a parent takes on the role of the power-driven individual, the child may very well avoid power and control--even well into adulthood.

The cosmic principle of wholeness presents us with family members who will mirror (often in excess) those parts of our own nature which we have not fully developed or allowed ourselves to express. Parents are one of the most common mirrors for us to face our own potentials (positive and negative).

When extremes or polarities are present in a family relationship, it is usually an indication that each person is overdoing one human potential. Often the two people involved have divided up life. The parent is doing too much of one side; the child is doing too much of another side of life. The goal of relationships is balance. It is not a case that one person is "wrong" and the other is "right." Rather are they both

"right" (and both "wrong"). Each needs to do a little bit more of what the other is doing (but not to such an extreme).

Of course, not everyone is willing to change. If a child changes, but the mother does not, the child will have different interactions with everyone else in his/her life. The mother will continue to play the same games, acting out the same extremes in other life relationships. The more internal balance we attain, the more outer balance we reach in our relationships.

When reading through this section, recall that the horoscope illustrates the issues each of you is facing within this relationship. You can choose to find a middle ground for each issue, or you can live out one extreme end of a polarity, with your mother expressing the other extreme. If the seesaw ever becomes uncomfortable, you can always choose to express a moderate, comfortable blend of both sides of a given issue. By understanding your drives, you can manifest them in ways which are fulfilling and satisfying.

Recall also that a greater awareness of the issues helps you to appreciate your past actions. You can learn from your experiences and change unfulfilling patterns to more satisfying interactions.

Relationship Issues for Diana Krater

Safeguarding Sensitivities

You are facing issues of sensitivity, protection, and idealism in your relationship with your children. There is the potential of a sweet, satisfying, positive and deeply feeling association. Your child could be very gentle, intuitive, soft and almost ethereal. S/he might also be dependent, helpless, a victim and seem to swallow you like quicksand. With a strong psychic, unconscious bond, you are likely to feel tied to the relationship; sometimes there is a sense of guilt or obligation. Past life feelings may affect the present relationship. The goal is learning the limits of caring and protection. It is a trap to try to be perfect and do everything for your child (to save him/her from him/herself). It is also a trap to idealize a child and see only his/her positive attributes. If you try to be all-loving and all-giving, you set yourself up for failure and disappointment. The goal is a relationship where both people can be protective, kind and loving, but neither expects the other (or their own self) to be "perfect" or ideal. Your parental experiences (positive and negative) have a marked impact on your perceptions of compassion, sensitivity and inspiration. Through your children, you can practice increased contact with your Higher Self.

Come Closer/Go Away

You are facing issues of freedom as well as closeness in your relationship with your children. This could manifest as an ambivalence--within you or between you and your child. One extreme is being totally wrapped up in parenting, emotionally tied into the home, warm, sensitive and dependent or nurturing. Another extreme is being solely intent on expressing your individuality. You could be independent, involved in causes or new-age activities, erratic, eccentric or unwilling to be tied down. If you identify only with the need for freedom, your child will seem possessive, clinging and intrusive. If you identify only with the need for closeness, your child may seem cool, aloof, not sufficiently involved in the family. Your ability to integrate freedom needs with drives for closeness influences your parenting style and affects your perceptions of independence, originality, nurturance, and what entails emotional support. A happy medium is found between a parent and child who share a strong emotional bond, but give each other lots of room to be themselves and manifest their personal uniqueness.

A Broad Perspective

You are dealing with transpersonal issues in your relationship with your children. The focus is likely to be broader than just the two of you. The pull of a vision could be particularly important, but intellectual goals may not always agree with the heart's desire. You could be working on integrating logic and intuition; the two of you might polarize on those themes. Your feelings about the wider world, social causes, humanitarian principles and where you fit into the cosmic scheme are likely to strongly influence your parental programs. A broadened perspective is possible--or simply confusion and retreat to a personal fantasy world. Identifying a dream and a sense of purpose is essential--for both you and your child.

Nurturing Needs

You are facing issues of dependency, emotional security and nurturing with your children. A balanced relationship includes give-and-take where you both can be emotionally supportive of each other. There is the potential for a strong commitment to the family with each of you eager to help the other. It is possible, however, that you might overdo the desire to nurture or overdo your dependency needs. One extreme is becoming the smothering parent, so intent of helping the children that you unconsciously encourage weakness. A "need to be needed" can elicit leaning behavior from children and weaken their capacity for self-reliance. Another extreme is the emotionally needy parent who can seem more like a child than a parent. If your own needs to be cherished and supported emotionally were not met when you were young, you might unknowingly look to your children to satisfy that inner hunger for nurturing. In such a case, you could unconsciously expect a child to be strong in the relationship, to play an adult role before really being prepared for it.

This combination is a very warm and loving blend. A happy medium is found with the parent and child who have a strong emotional bond, feel secure in each other's company, trust one another fully, and contribute to each other's well-being in whatever way is appropriate for each. Both are warm, sensitive and caring.

Relationship Issues for Luna Krater

Family Feelings

You are facing issues around the handling of emotional intensity in your relationship with your mother (or mother figure). There is the potential of a push/pull between free expression of feelings, versus holding them inside. Your mother might be too expressive, while you are more secretive--or vice versa. If either of you goes to an extreme, the other is likely to adopt the opposite role. If emotions are repressed too long, they could explode out in inappropriate ways. Expectations are also an important focus in your relationship with your mother. Some idealization is possible and either of you might expect too much from the other. Your mother's examples (positive and negative) offer learning opportunities about intimacy, deep emotions, faith, a sense of meaning and purpose, goals, values and what you trust in life.

Parental Power

You are facing issues of intensity, passion, power, control and perseverance in your relationship with your mother. One potential is a deeply transforming relationship, where each of you serves as a catalyst for the growth and transcendence of the other person. Through your relationship, you can learn to break old patterns and reach new heights. You could both reach self-mastery and self-control through your interactions. If your mother carries some of these themes too far, she could be manipulative, power-hungry, controlling or even abusive. Emotional blackmail (tears, threats, intimidation) is possible. Withdrawal could be used as a weapon. A psychic connection is quite possible and you may tune into the best (and the worst) in each other. Resentment could be a focus and learning when to let go (and forgive) is often an issue.

Your feelings about intimacy (emotional and sexual), money, and shared possessions and pleasures are strongly influenced by the example (positive or negative) of your mother. Your ability to share possessions and pleasures with a mate will be affected by your reactions to your mother. Unresolved feelings about your mother could spill over into close relationships with a lover. Learning to give, receive, and share equally is essential.

Motherly Moderation?

You are dealing with a polarity in your relationship with your mother (or mother figure). You and she are learning to balance self-indulgence with self-control (over money, material possessions and sensual pleasures). Either or both of you may swing from a "feast" to a "famine" position of underdoing then overdoing in terms of food, sex, spending, smoking, drinking or other physical indulgences. You might nag each other or engage in power struggles about these issues. You have an opportunity to learn about appetite control through your relationship with your mother. She will offer examples of what to do, or what not to do in learning moderation.

Options

You are dealing with the issue of security versus risk in your interactions with your mother (or mother figure). She might feel torn between the desire for the new and different versus a need for safety. She could overdo either side, with you expressing the opposite. She might be original, creative, unpredictable and ever-ready to change. She might be intent on staying in a certain pattern, exhibit tunnel vision, and be totally focused on one way. She could swing from playing it safe to taking chances around finances, possessions or life decisions. She might feel torn between devoting time and energy to her mate versus time and energy to her friends and group activities. She could relate to you by trying to control or manipulate you--or as an equalitarian friend. Her examples (positive and negative) show you what to do and what not to do in learning to integrate freedom needs with attachment needs, desire for safety with the urge to take chances, and intimacy demands with drives for independence.

Section Three: How You Impact One Another

This section is concerned with the astrological contacts between your charts. These contacts reveal the nature of the themes you two will face in your association. Each theme has a positive and a negative side, and you both have the personal power to choose as you wish. The text which follows applies to both of you, but the issues indicated for each person are most relevant for that individual. If any themes are listed for BOTH people, they are particularly significant.

Paragraphs which are printed in boldface indicate that the themes involved take extra attention, that slipping into uncomfortable patterns is a little easier. Once such themes are integrated, you and your mother are more versatile, able to handle many differing drives in life. You can have very fulfilling interactions, provided you both remain aware of the issues and choose positive forms of expression.

Paragraphs which are printed in italic indicate that the themes involved are easier to express in a positive manner. The two of you can complement one another naturally in these areas. If you allow the flow of instinctive harmony, you can express these shared drives in mutually satisfying fashion.

Paragraphs which are printed in normal type indicate that the themes involved are configured in a neutral fashion between your two charts. These motifs can easily be expressed in positive or negative fashion (and you are likely to do some of both as you work toward balance in the relationship). If you each accept responsibility for your own actions and issues, finding a balance will be relatively easy. You can co-create a mutually pleasing result.

Paragraphs which contain a mixture of typestyles indicate that the contacts between you are a mixture of neutral, conflict and harmony. Mixtures may involve two of the three possibilities or all three.

Issues for Diana Krater to recognize in relating to Luna Krater

Attach/Separate

Amiable associations with this child include a firm foundation of mutual caring within a context of tolerance, openness and appreciation of each other's uniqueness. You can support and encourage your child's individuality while maintaining your own. A strong family feeling provides the security for each of you to enjoy exploring alternatives and trying out new ways of being in the world.

Unappealing associations with this kid could involve polarization between safety and risk-taking. Either of you could overdo one side, with the other party overdoing the opposite. One of you might cling to the status quo, seek protection and a solid base, while the other takes chances, looks for change and is willing to be unconventional. One of you could be too possessive; one of you might be too independent. Or you both could swing between these extremes.

Making the most of your options in this relationship requires use of your inventiveness and empathy. Your natural warmth and protectiveness provides a secure context, while your willingness to experiment and explore gives flexibility. You can change and adapt to circumstances within the framework of a stable caring.

Fostering Freedom

Pleasant interchanges with this child include an equalitarian atmosphere. You relate to your child as you would to a friend, with affection, openness and tolerance. Differences of opinion are tolerated or even encouraged. You appreciate your uniqueness and support the individuality of your child. Freedom of thought and action is central.

Undesirable interchanges with this child may leave you restless or irritated. You could feel hemmed in by family demands, or as if your freedom is infringed. You may want to rebel from the constraints of being a parent. You may feel stuck in a role (that of "parent") with little recognition of your unique essence.

Building better interchanges requires a constructive expression of your originality. Staying in touch with your own center and need for liberty to be yourself allows you to maintain the necessary freedom. Your natural expression of individuality also encourages your child to be him/herself. Open-mindedness allows each of you to learn through the different approaches of the other, to include alternative viewpoints.

Favoring Friendship

Cordial connections with this child are based on your equalitarian approach. Able to relate as a friend and peer, you encourage your child's individuality and retain your unique spirit. Social activities, friends, groups, knowledge, new ideas or other mental involvements could become strong ties between you. Concepts are shared easily and you enjoy talking with one another.

Unappealing connections with this child could result from an overdose or underdose of the gregarious spirit. Perhaps one of you seems TOO communicative to the other. Relatives or friends could become bones of contention. Social relationships might turn into a battleground. Objectivity could be carried to the extreme of alienation or emotional disengagement.

Finding common ground helps to reaffirm your relationship with this child. Exercising your tolerant spirit allows you to appreciate your child's originality and see differences as opportunities for learning rather than strife or separation. By building shared interests, you can increase your areas of agreement. Open communication facilitates more understanding on both your parts.

Uniquely Unusual

Marvelous moments with this child may emerge from your free spirit and willingness to promote individuality. By being friends with your child, you encourage the development of originality and inventiveness. An open attitude toward life is fostered, which multiplies the possibilities and ensures the optimum number of choices are provided. Because you expect the unexpected, you are ready to savor anything!

Vexing interactions could occur if freedom needs are carried too far. The desire for liberty, the urge to take risks, the pull of the unknown might draw you (or your child) into rash, foolish or separative behavior. Excitement-seeking and the desire for change could be overdone. Intellectual enthusiasms may pull either of you away from family commitments.

Optimizing your opportunities with this child requires a shared love of liberty, openness, and intellectual stimulation. Cherish your uniqueness and that of your child; encourage it! Joint explorations in the world of the mind can be a strong bond between you; unusual interests could link the two of you. Appreciating the unusual and being open to change increases your opportunities for growth.

Issues for Luna Krater to recognize in relating to Diana Krater

Follow-Through

Agreeable exchanges with your mother affirm your competence, your perseverance and your productivity. She gains your focused attention. Her attitudes and actions stimulate your ability to concentrate, your penchant for details and your desire for mastery.

Disagreeable exchanges with your mother are apt to involve criticism, power plays or tunnel vision. You may feel harshly judged and wish to retreat, or perhaps you feel your mother falls far short of how she ought to be. Sexual, financial or power issues could be bones of contention in the relationship. Details could be given too much importance.

Making your interactions more pleasing requires digging beneath the surface. Seeming conflicts and differences can be resolved with some insight and effort. Looking deeper will help you both find a common ground of agreement. Staying practical and not demanding more than is reasonable is in your best interests.

Uncovering Hidden Depths

Amiable associations with your mother incorporate a depth of feeling along with a commitment to communicate. Willing to analyze your deeper emotions, you are also willing to discuss alternatives and share feelings. Mother can encourage your intense desire to know and understand life and other people.

Less thrilling associations contain a conflict between emotional intensity and intellectual detachment. You might feel your mother is swallowed up by moods, while you have the impulse for flippancy and humor. You might feel your mother is scattered, superficial and flighty, while you seek a deeper, more meaningful exchange. Communications involving sexual or monetary issues could be particular challenges.

Building bridges necessitates openness and the courage to confront. You need to probe your own depths to be sure of what you want and clearly communicate your needs. With fully understood issues, compromises can be found. Staying in touch with conscious and unconscious desires enables you to satisfy your true needs.

Thinking

Pleasant relations with your mother bring in the mind and communication. You find it easy to talk with one another. Sharing ideas and conversation comes naturally. You stimulate each other's thinking and may apply your intellects to tasks in the world as well. Your need to know is in high focus.

Less pleasant relations may result in you retreating to a cool, critical, detached perspective. Hiding behind the intellect could seem preferable to dealing with feelings. You may experience intellectual demands, or feel your mother's standards are harsh. You could feel inadequate mentally, because of the way you are measuring or due to your standard of comparison. You might over-analyze situations or feel confused about what most requires your attention.

Finding a common ground entails putting your curiosity to work. You can utilize your interest in everything to dig up essential information about this relationship and your place in it. You can figure out how you would like things to be between you and your mother. You can create a step-by-step process to reach your desired end results through discipline and dedication.

Idealism

Blissful contact with your mother is likely to include shared dreams and aspirations. You may have an aesthetic connection or a visualization in common. Her attitudes and actions strengthen your ideals and seeking of the best in life. With her, you can learn to tune more fully into your Higher Self. You both see the best in one another and keep your interactions positive.

Painful contact with your mother may result in you feeling like running away. Escapism (to fantasy, sleeping a lot, overeating, drugs) could appeal if the relationship is sufficiently disappointing. Broken dreams could seem terribly sad. Savior/victim relationships with your mother are possible. There is often a sense of "so much potential going to waste!"

Improving your interactions takes all your capacity to focus on and visualize what is important. Manifesting your dreams takes clear visualization as a first stage, followed by practical steps. You may have to establish priorities--you cannot have everything. Shared spiritual, religious, idealistic or artistic pursuits could build a positive connection with your mother.

Section Four: Challenges

This section continues the focus on astrological contacts between your charts. There are certain "red flag" issues in relationships which are touchy for many people. In parent/child relationships, these include topics such as control/power, indulgence, and responsibilities.

First the significant "red flags" for each of you are listed, so that you can be sensitive to one another and work toward a caring, but detached attitude when these issues come up. The "red flag" listed merely defines the issue. You and your mother will know how that issue is being handled. Remember that each is a challenge, not an automatic problem. It should be read as a cautionary note. Take a look at the topics listed. They may point to sensitive areas where the two of you need to tread carefully. They may highlight challenges which must be faced. Many times, particularly if the mother is old enough to have lived, learned and grown a little, she will be manifesting the energy of a "red flag" potential, rather than any difficulties. And a child who has a positive example from mother is more likely to manifest constructive possibilities him/herself. The Up side which is listed for each "red flag" gives the positive potential which exists once you have mastered the issues involved. Please do not assume that these red flags will wreak havoc in your relationship! Do consider the possibilities!

Red flags are based on the interactions between your charts, so usually will be the same for both of you. Occasionally, however, a red flag will be listed for one of you, but not the other. This suggests that the red flag is a more personal concern for the individual in whose section it occurs. Obviously, however, red flags--if still on the down side rather than the up side--must be addressed by both people for successful resolution and satisfying interactions.

Building on the strengths that lie underneath the red flags can help to minimize and side-step the potential challenges.

Following the red flags is a listing of polarities which are likely to be meaningful in your shared interactions. Parents and children are very likely to "divide up the territory." It is as if the parent agrees to do one half of a certain drive, while the child does the other half. If they aren't careful, however, they end up at opposite extremes on various issues. This section will identify those polarities likely to be important in your association. By staying aware of these issues, you can find that more comfortable middle ground and avoid the extremes which so often lead to discomfort and disagreements between family members. Remember that each polarity is a natural partnership. The goal is to find a comfortable blend which allows some of each (without overdoing either side).

If, for example, a polarity involves "heart/head," a parent might tend to manifest logic, thinking and objectivity a lot, while a child brings in feelings and emotions. If they allow themselves to polarize around these differences, conflicts might arise. Mom, emphasizing the "head" side of this polarity, could see her child as too emotional, hysterical or irrational, while the child, emphasizing the "heart" side, could view his/her parent as too cold, uncaring and aloof. The key to any polarity is to be sure that both people are capable of expressing each side. This does not mean people have to be exactly alike! It does mean neither one completely disowns one side of a polarity. If parent and child are already in balance in regard to the polarities listed, then you're doing it right!

Red flags for Diana Krater

Communication Issues

Communication challenges are quite possible. They could range from too much bluntness, to inhibited communication, to excessive criticism, to inequality of talking and listening. Perhaps you are not inclined to "hear" your child. (Up side is ability to discuss almost anything with a balance between objectivity and compassion.)

Friendships/Need For Other People

Other people may seem to continually influence your family patterns. You may feel friends get more attention than your child--or resent that family duties limit the time you can spend with friends. (Up side is a good ability to relate to anyone and everyone, encouraging activities which combine friends and family.)

Karmic/Unconscious Ties/Manipulation/Secrecy

This child may push unconscious buttons,

Red flags for Luna Krater

Communication Issues

Communication challenges are quite possible. They could range from too much bluntness, to inhibited communication, to excessive criticism, to inequality of talking and listening, to "not hearing" your parent. (Up side is ability to discuss almost anything with your parent.)

Karmic/Unconscious Ties/Manipulation/Secrecy

This parent may push your unconscious buttons, bringing up buried feelings. You may not know why you feel what you feel and could be confused and even manipulated. (Up side is a very deep, strong nonverbal bond, whereby you naturally tune into one another, understanding each other without words.)

Money

Money could become an issue with this parent. Try to sort out what you really want and need financially. Whether you have a positive or bringing up old feelings, perhaps from early childhood (or even past lives). Irrational reactions are possible unless you learn to recognize what sets you off and where you might be manipulated. (Up side is a very deep, strong nonverbal bond, whereby you naturally tune into one another, understanding each other without words.)

Money

Money could become an issue with this child. Be clear about your values and your limits. Set a good example in handling finances. (Up side is good ability to share the material and monetary world with your family.)

Relatives

Parent/child interactions might be complicated by the demands of other family members. You may feel relatives judge your skill as a parent or interfere with the way you wish to raise your child. (Up side is enjoyment of relatives or general mental stimulation.)

Polarities for Diana Krater

Action/Thinking

One of you is ready to act, while the other wants to think it over and contemplate for awhile. Or, one wants to do while the other wants to talk. (Up side is well-reasoned actions along with quick wits.)

Head/Heart

The two of you may polarize around emotions versus detachment, or thinking versus feeling. One of you is cool, calm and collected while the other seems hysterical. (Up side is a balance between your head and heart goals, satisfying both your mind and your emotions.)

negative role model around finances, consider what is most important to you materially. (Up side is good ability to share the material and monetary world with your family.)

Work Demands

You may feel you have too much to do at home. You could feel overburdened by tasks and responsibilities. You may feel you don't get enough love or that you are only loved when you do things. (Up side is a solid, dependable bond between you and your mother; a family in which everyone works together, helping each other.)

Critical Judgment/Flaw Finding/Duties/Practicalities or Responsibilities

You may experience your mother as critical and/or nit-picking--hard to please. You may find yourself feeling critical toward your mother, especially in terms of household chores or duties expected of you. (Up side is good practicality and common sense. You are skilled at handling family responsibilities and the necessary details of a shared household.)

Polarities for Luna Krater

Action/Thinking

One of you is ready to act, while the other wants to think it over and contemplate for awhile. Or, one wants to do while the other wants to talk. (Up side is well-reasoned actions along with quick wits.)

Ease/Effort

Do you polarize around the playful spirit and the workaholic, or the person who sweats for everything they accomplish and the person who glides through life? Who relaxes and who does hard labor? (Up side is balance between work and play, between enjoyment and accomplishment.)

Home/Career (or Tasks)

You could polarize around issues of how much time to spend on a career versus how much time to spend with family members or focused on domestic issues. (Up side is a life which includes external success or tangible accomplishments along with a strong home base with good, emotional support.)

Interpersonal/Transpersonal

If one of you wants to focus on people, while the other puts more time into idealistic pursuits, societal contributions, humanitarian or group activities, or philanthropic interests--you may be facing this polarity. (Up side is a life of commitment to family as well as to a higher purpose.)

Past/Future

One of you may be more sentimental, concerned with what has gone before, while the other is more visionary, looking ahead toward the future. (Up side is learning from the past while creating for the future.)

Personal/Transpersonal

The two of you could feel torn between devoting time and energy to personal desires and needs versus getting involved with the wider world, fighting for a cause or doing something for humanity. (Up side is a strong sense of self balanced with a commitment to leaving the world a better place.)

Stability/Risk (Security/Change)

You may find yourselves feeling torn between concentrating on the safe, secure and familiar versus venturing into unknown territory, taking chances, adventuring and exploring. Perhaps one of you seems a stick-in-the-mud, while the other appears rash, reckless and foolhardy. (Up side is ability to judge when to pioneer and move forward and when to consolidate your gains and continue present course.)

Home/Career (or Tasks)

You could polarize around issues of how much time to spend on your personal tasks and projects versus how much time to spend with family members or focused on domestic issues. (Up side is a life which includes external success or tangible accomplishments along with a strong home base with good, emotional support of one another.)

Lighthearted/Serious

If one of you jokes easily and has a casual attitude about life, while the other takes things seriously, you're probably focused on this polarity. (Up side is knowing when to labor and when to laugh; when to be dedicated and when to the thumb the nose at your world and just relax.)

Past/Future

One of you may be more sentimental, concerned with what has gone before, while the other is more visionary, looking ahead toward the future. (Up side is learning from the past while creating for the future.)

Personal/Transpersonal

The two of you could feel torn between devoting time and energy to personal desires and needs versus getting involved with the wider world, fighting for a cause or doing something for humanity. (Up side is a strong sense of self balanced with a commitment to leaving the world a better place.)

Quantity/Quality (Scatter/Focus)

Are you torn between trying to learn, absorb and do everything versus focusing thoroughly, deeply and completely on few, central areas? (Up side is the ability to discuss anything, get to the essentials and probe deeply when needed.)

Student/Teacher

Do you fall into student/teacher roles without trading sides? Is one supplying all the wisdom and answers while the other takes the position of humble, eager learner? Parents learn from children as well as vice versa! (Up side is lots of mental stimulation; both of you enjoy learning from each other as well as life.)

Section Five: Strengths

Every relationship also has certain basic strengths embedded within it. Some of these are indicated by the element focus (e.g., fire, earth, air, water, or a combination of these elements). In this section, bold-italic type indicates the element of fire (extraverted, confident, expressive, needing to pour out). Boldface type indicates the element of earth (practical, grounded, seeking tangible results). Italic type indicates the element of air (objective, detached, mental). Normal type symbolizes the element of water (sensitive, emotional, intuitive). Paragraphs with type faces that alternate from one line to the next show element combinations: fire/water, fire/air, fire/earth, earth/air, earth/water or air/water.

Your association has been analyzed in terms of the predominant element(s) in the interactions between your horoscopes. The elements focused for each of you are listed.

In addition, certain contacts between your charts point to strengths you both can draw on (such as caring, communication skills, etc.). Those contacts and the positive potentials they symbolize are listed here as well. Those strengths are always relevant for both people. Use this section as a summary and reminder of some of the assets you stimulate in each other.

Elements Emphasized for Diana Krater

Elements Emphasized for Luna Krater

Air/Water

Fire/Water

Able to verbalize unconscious needs of self and others, imaginative, can use logic and intuition, visualizer, dreamer, rich inner world.

Warm, wholehearted involvement, deep feelings, desire for intense commitment, caring, expressive and introspective, creates strong emotional bonds with others.

Air

Communicative, mental, objective, equalitarian, lighthearted, focused on people and ideas, conceptual, deals well with theories and abstractions.

Strengths for Diana Krater and Luna Krater

Communication Skills

You two know how to talk to one another, how to listen, and truly HEAR what the other person wants and needs.

Fairness/Equality

The two of you are willing to compromise, to look for win/win solutions which please you both.

Fortune/"Luck"

You may be fortunate for one another. You may help one another notice and take advantages of opportunities or "lucky breaks."

Unconscious Understanding

You sometimes understand one another without words, tuning into each other on a deep, emotional level. You pick up information intuitively.

Mental Stimulation

You are likely to find each other mentally stimulating. You enjoy discussing things and/or learning from one another. You bring new ideas to each other.

Nurturing Skills

You both can be caring, protective and helpful of one another, although mother naturally provides the lion's share. Family connections or activities matter much to you both.

Personal Growth (Individuality)

You can encourage one another toward growth and change. You are likely to support each other's need to be unique individuals.

Playfulness

You can enjoy recreation together. You have fun with one another.

Practical/Commitment

You stimulate each other's common sense, ability to face the facts and work with what is possible. You are willing to make an emotional commitment to one another, to be dedicated to building and strengthening your relationship. You may stay in close contact even after the child becomes an adult.

Tolerance/Open-Mindedness

You can accept each other's imperfections.
You are tolerant of your differences. You appreciate your varied styles and attitudes.

Vision

You encourage each other to dream, to imagine, to reach for a higher purpose in life.

Conclusion

This concludes our Compatibility Profile. We hope that the insights gained have been useful to you. We wish you lots of life-affirming experiences, lots of caring and much understanding of yourself and those closest to you. Our reports offer state-of-the-art knowledge combining the best of modern technology with the ancient wisdom of the stars. If, however, you would like more detail than is provided here, consider consulting with a qualified astrologer for a personal touch. May your path be full of Love, Light and Laughter.

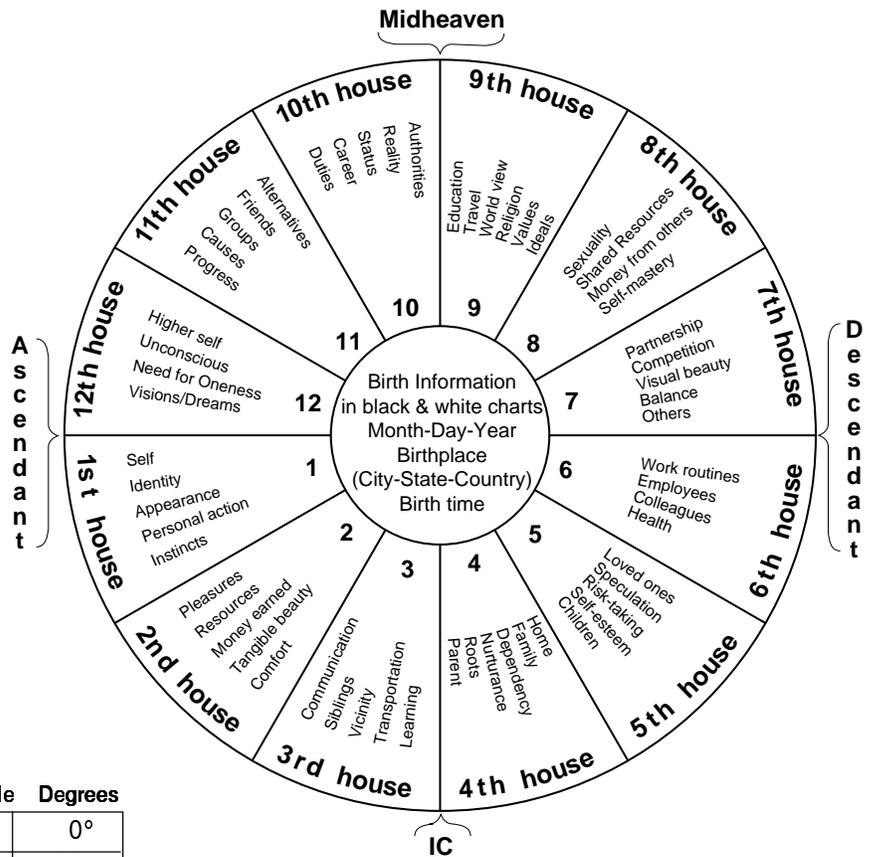

ASTRO KEYS

IKESX

An Information Special from Astro Communications Services, Inc.

Keywords for Signs

- Aries: assertive, brave, first, impetuous, energetic, self-oriented.
Taurus: comfortable, deliberate, dependable, placid, possessive, sensual.
Gemini: fluent, versatile, curious, intermittent, clever, nimble.
Cancer: nurturing, warm, dependent, sympathetic, protective, security-oriented.
Leo: creative, risk-taking, charismatic, fun-loving, generous, exciting.
Virgo: work-oriented, painstaking, efficient, pragmatic, exacting, discreet.
Libra: cooperative, diplomatic, fence-sitting, competitive, aesthetic.
Scorpio: penetrating, intense, resourceful, powerful, compulsive.
Sagittarius: benevolent, optimistic, extravagant, enthusiastic, idealistic.
Capricorn: responsible, formal, traditional, authoritative, career-oriented.
Aquarius: unique, rebellious, futuristic, independent, inventive, objective.
Pisces: compassionate, mystical, illusory, sensitive, spiritual, dreamy.

Aspect Symbol Fraction of Circle Degrees

Conjunction	♌	1/1	0°
Square	□	1/4	90°
Trine	△	1/3	120°
Opposition	♌	1/2	180°

Sextile	✳	1/6	60°
Sesquiquadrate (tri-octile)	◻	3/8	135°
Semisquare (octile)	∠	1/8	45°
Semisextile	∨	1/12	30°
Quincunx (or Inconjunct)	⋈	5/12	150°

Keywords for Aspects

- conjunction— is (are) tied to/mixed with sextile— support(s), aids, assists square— conflict(s) or compete(s) with (∠ and ◻ similar) trine— reinforce(s), amplifies, exaggerates, harmonizes quincunx— seem(s) at odds with/feels incompatible with opposition— could be overdone at the expense of, seesaw swings

Table of Correspondences

Letter	Planet & Glyph	House	Sign & Glyph
1	Mars ♂	1	Aries ♈
2	Venus ♀	2	Taurus ♉
3	Mercury ☿	3	Gemini ♊
4	Moon ☾	4	Cancer ♋
5	Sun ☼	5	Leo ♌
6	Mercury ☿ Ceres ♃ Vesta ♃	6	Virgo ♍
7	Venus ♀ Pallas ♃ Juno ♃	7	Libra ♎
8	Pluto ♇ or E	8	Scorpio ♏
9	Jupiter ♃ Chiron ♄	9	Sagittarius ♐
10	Saturn ♄	10	Capricorn ♑
11	Uranus ♅	11	Aquarius ♒
12	Neptune ♆	12	Pisces ♓

Abbreviations used in Planetary Profiles' Annotation

- EP = East Point (an auxiliary Ascendant)
GS = Gauquelin sector (identified by number of sector)
HS = house
IC = IC (4th house cusp)
MC = Midheaven (10th house cusp)
♊ = north node of the Moon
♋ = south node of the Moon
V = Vertex (an auxiliary Descendant)
WP = West Point (an auxiliary Descendant)
ASC = Ascendant
AV = Antivertex (an auxiliary Ascendant)
DSC = Descendant

PLANETS

- ☉ Sun: self-esteem, life force/vitality, creativity, risk-taking instincts, pride, star quality, fun-loving spirit, inner child, drive for excitement, need for recreation, speculative side, sexual passion, need to shine
- ☾ Moon: emotions, security needs, caretaking instincts, dependency needs, drive to nurture, vulnerabilities, homing instincts, receptivity, moods, habit patterns, women (including mother)
- ☿ Mercury: urge to communicate, thinking, listening/talking, capacity to learn, adaptability/flexibility, information-gathering skills, casual contacts, logic, awareness, dexterity, perception
- ♀ Venus: desire for pleasure, sensuality, urge for comfort/ease, need for tangible beauty, drive for stability/predictability, sweetness, affection, relating needs, material assets
- ♂ Mars: assertion, self-expression, independence, personal power, desires, spontaneous instincts, immediate needs, anger, sexual drive, early identity, doing one's thing
- ♃ Jupiter: ideals and goals, beliefs, values, morality/ethics, faith, optimism, quest for the truth, philosophy/religion, drive for expanded horizons, high expectations, seeking the best/highest
- ♄ Saturn: reality quotient; authority instincts, practicality, capacity to deal with limits, career drives, sense of responsibility, discipline/effort, status ambitions, urge to solidify/contract, wisdom of experience
- ♅ Uranus: individuality, freedom drives, inventiveness, originality, humanitarian instincts, detachment, pull toward the future, eccentricity, innovation, sudden changes
- ♆ Neptune: quest for Oneness/Union/transcendence, idealism, quest for infinite love and beauty, intuition, savior/victim potentials, compassion, imagination/fantasy, mysticism, escapism
- ♇ or ♁ Pluto: intensity, drive for self-mastery, intimacy instincts, sexual needs, drive for transformation, elimination/completion urges, resentment/forgiveness, probing, complicated motives, compulsions
- ♁ Ascendant: personal identity, personal action, appearance, physical body, natural self-expression
- ♁ Midheaven: sense of authority, career aspirations, power drives and power figures, status
- ♁ Part of Fortune: a point of luck, talent, ability, gain, growth, tendencies brought in from past lives

EXTRA BODIES

- ♁ Halley's Comet: limelight, high focus, rise to power and fall
- ♁ Chiron: drive for knowledge, ideals, maverick, truth-seeking, teacher/healer
- ♁ Transpluto: fertile, steady, charismatic, rebirth, savage, possessive
- ♁ Lilith (dark moon): exaggerates, compulsive, instinctive reason, objectifies

THE "BIG FOUR" ASTEROIDS

- ♁ Ceres: earth mother, productivity, health, growing things, health issues, mother figure
- ♁ Juno: marriage, beauty, intimacy, shared resources, giving and receiving
- ♁ Pallas: perception skills, equality, justice, balance, competition, visual aesthetics
- ♁ Vesta: responsibility, efficiency, tunnel vision, alienation, capable, health issues, concentration

15 OTHER ASTEROIDS (available 20th century only)

- ♁ Amor: loving kindness, empathy, goodwill, service (could be overdone)
- ♁ Dembowska: overdrive and/or self-blocking, facing limits, responsibilities
- ♁ Diana: "all or none," self-containment, nurturing on one's own terms
- ♁ Dudu: cleaning up, eliminating garbage, power struggles, addictions
- ♁ Eros: romantic love, passion, "whatever turns you on"
- ♁ Frigga: marriage, conjugal love, domestic, gentle yet powerful
- ♁ Hidalgo: ambitious, willing to risk, father/authority figures, effort
- ♁ Icarus: risk-taking, may be overreach, creativity, intense love (or hate)
- ♁ Lilith: self-mastery/power issues, sexuality, occult interests
- ♁ Pandora: curiosity, may begin things with unforeseen consequences, change
- ♁ Pittsburghia: power issues, learning moderation, facing inner depths
- ♁ Psyche: deep attunement, empathy and love or glaring self-centeredness
- ♁ Sappho: aesthetic refinements, teaching, nurturing, sensuality
- ♁ Toro: strength, power, confrontations, will, sensuality
- ♁ Urania: thoughtful, serious, inspired, unconventional

These asteroids are an add-on option (must be ordered with a chart), and may be requested by using the code A15 which includes the Aster-2 option.

URANIAN PLANETS

- ♁ Cupido: family, art, marriage, society, associations
- ♁ Hades: want, poverty, waste, illness, secrets, antiquity, delay, dirt
- ♁ Zeus: fire, procreation, creation, direction, leadership, irresistible force
- ♁ Kronos: government, authority, leader, everything above average, high up
- ♁ Apollon: science, commerce, trade, expansion, peace, glory, success, "lots of"
- ♁ Admetos: raw material, death, hindrance, stoppage, standstill, intense concentration
- ♁ Vulkanus: strength, force, power, energy, mighty
- ♁ Poseidon: spirit, idea, mind, enlightenment, propaganda

Regarded as slowly transiting sensitive points, the Uranians' use is described in clear detail in Dial Detective, by Maria Kay Simms.