WHAT IS ASTROLOGY?

Astrology is an ancient field of study. As far back as we have recorded history, we have astrological concepts. Further back, scratches (made by Neolithic hunters) on reindeer horns correspond to the phases of the Moon.

Astrology uses the patterns of the heavens to more fully understand life on Earth. The positions of the planets are seen as symbolizing personality traits and tendencies, as well as human cycles of development. Using a horoscope is like looking in a mirror; we can see ourselves more clearly and easily as unique individuals. Just as the mirror does not set our appearance, but only reflects it, so the planets do not create our personalities, but only reflect them.

Using astrology to describe personality strengths, weaknesses, talents, abilities and challenges requires a natal (or birth) horoscope. A natal horoscope is like a map of the sky for your instant of birth, looking from the viewpoint of your birthplace. Your moment of birth gives a "freeze frame"--an exact snapshot of the positions of all the planets. No one else has the same horoscope as you--unless they were born in the exact same place, at the exact same minute, as you were.

The next few pages of this report will introduce you to the basic tools of astrology--planets, signs, houses, and aspects (how the planets relate to each other at a given moment) The remainder of the report will be devoted to interpreting each of the planets in your horoscope, in terms of their placement in signs, houses, and aspects.

ABOUT PLANETS

Planets are one of the four basic building blocks of astrology. When astrologers say "planets," they usually refer to the eight planets of our solar system other than Earth (Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto) plus the Sun and the Moon. We know that the Sun is actually a star and the Moon is actually a satellite, but it is simplest to call all bodies planets.

Astrologically, each of the planets represents a drive or need within you. A planet is like the verb in a sentence; it indicates where the action is. Planets comprise the most important building block in astrology. Following is a brief description of each of the planets.

The Sun

Just as the Sun is the center of our solar system, so is it the center of the horoscope. Our Sun in the solar system provides light and makes life possible. The Sun in the horoscope is a key to vitality, life force, and our central, creative urge. The Sun represents our need to shine, our desire for recognition, our self-esteem, and pride/shame issues.

Wherever our Sun is (in one of 12 houses, and in one of 12 signs), we want to be admired, noticed, loved, or applauded by the world. We feel most vital and alive when expressing the themes of our Sun's house and sign. Since it is a key to vitality and zest, we naturally pour energy into the activities represented by our Sun's house and sign.

Keywords: self-esteem, life force/vitality, creativity, risk-taking instincts, pride, star quality, fun-loving spirit, inner child, drive for excitement, need for recreation, speculative side, sexual passion, need to shine.

The Moon

The Moon (which shines by reflected light) is a key to our inner emotions, particularly our need for emotional security and safety. It symbolizes our dependency needs and our desire to nurture and care for others. It represents the people we depend on, the parent who was a nurturing figure, and our capacity to be an assisting, helpful, caring individual. It also is a key to our home, our roots (ancestry), and our sensitivities.

Wherever the Moon is (by house and sign), we want to nurture or be nurtured, to make warm, emotional connections with others. Family feelings may be sought or explored and emotions are the focus.

Keywords: emotions, security needs, caretaking instincts, dependency needs, drive to nurture, vulnerabilities, homing instincts, receptivity, moods, habit patterns, women (including mother).

Mercury

Mercury represents our need to communicate. It is a key to our verbal ability, our logic, our capacity to be objective and detached. Mercury symbolizes the conscious, reasoning mind that observes the world, gathers information, learns, teaches, and disseminates knowledge.

Wherever Mercury is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we are curious, interested, and want to know. We may learn and/or teach in that area. Our Mercury placements help to describe our verbal styles and the way we use our minds.

Keywords: urge to communicate, thinking, listening/talking, capacity to learn cognitively, adaptability/flexibility, information-gathering skills, casual contacts, logic, conscious awareness, dexterity, intellectual perception.

Venus

Venus represents our need to enjoy the physical world and the world of relationships. Venus could be called the pleasure principle; we may seek pleasure through money, possessions, tangible beauty, or sensual gratification. We may also seek pleasure through relationships, through sharing, through partnerships with others. Venus is a key to affection, love, our need for balance, our appreciation of beauty, and our orientation toward ease, comfort, and personal enjoyment.

Wherever Venus is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we want to enjoy! We seek pleasure, comfort, ease, beauty, grace, love, and goodness in the areas inhabited by Venus.

Keywords: desire for pleasure, sensuality, urge for comfort/ease, need for tangible beauty, drive for stability/predictability, sweetness, affection, relating needs, material assets.

Mars

Mars represents our need to assert ourselves, to defend our own rights, to identify and go after what we want in the world. Mars can be a key to healthy self-expression and personal power, but it can also represent aggression, fights, arguments, anger and negative forms of assertion. Mars is an indicator of our basic physical energy and health, sexual drive, where we seek freedom, our desire to do things on our own, and our sense of basic identity.

Wherever Mars is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we want to express ourselves, be free and be active. If the personal energy symbolized by Mars is blocked, we might experience physical or interpersonal problems as a result of not defending our own needs. If we carry Martian themes too far, we may be rash, impulsive or self-centered in the areas where Mars lies. If we balance our Martian side with other drives, we can be assertive in a healthy fashion, meeting our own needs and drives in a constructive manner.

Keywords: assertion, self-expression, independence, personal power, desires, spontaneous instincts, immediate needs, anger, sexual drive, early identity, doing one's thing, need to be first, energy level.

Jupiter

Jupiter represents our need to believe and to aspire. It indicates our ideals, what we tend to value and want more of in life. It is also a key to where we can exaggerate or overdo. Jupiter indicates potential opportunities and the confidence to pursue our visions.

Wherever Jupiter is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we tend to place our faith. We are likely to seek more in that area, and may even overexpand. (If we see something as good, more is better.) Jupiter's placement may indicate that an individual values money, or a partner, a religion, etc. Where Jupiter is a key, we may idealize (and put a part of life on a pedestal) or expect more than is possible. Jupiter symbolizes our optimistic spirit, where we tend to look on the bright side, have hope, and see the highest potentials.

Keywords: ideals and goals, beliefs, values, morality/ethics, faith, optimism, quest for the truth, philosophy/religion, drive for expanded horizons, high expectations, seeking the best/highest, expansiveness.

Saturn

Saturn represents our need to structure life and test reality. Saturn is a key to the limits of life: what we can do, cannot do, and have to do. It is also symbolic of authority figures in our lives: from the rule-maker parent (usually Dad) to police officers and presidents. Saturn symbolizes our career, our conscience, our ambitions and our need to have power over the physical world.

Wherever Saturn is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we learn to face reality and what is possible. We often deal with consequences (cause and effect). Saturn represents the principle of learning through experience (sometimes the "school of hard knocks"). Where Saturn principles are carried too far, people may feel blocked, inhibited, incapable, incompetent, or unable to do anything. Where Saturn principles are ignored, people may push the world (or others) until they discover certain principles (including the laws of the land) are bigger than they are; eventually we reap the consequences of what we have sown. People who are balanced in their expression of what Saturn represents are practical achievers who do as much as is possible within the structures of society. Saturn is a key to our capacity to learn by doing, to deal sensibly with the material world, to work responsibly, and to produce tangible results.

Keywords: reality quotient, response to and desire for authority, attitudes toward the orthodoxy and what society deems appropriate, practicality, capacity to deal with limits, career drives, sense of responsibility, discipline/ effort, status ambitions, urge to solidify/contract, wisdom of experience.

Uranus

Uranus represents our need to change and alter. It is a key to our drive for individuality and uniqueness. Uranus symbolizes our need for the freedom to be different, to explore alternatives, and to look toward the future and progress.

Wherever Uranus is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we need to be independent. We need to come from our own unique essence. Our Uranus placements indicate where we seek space, where we can innovate and be inventive. (They also indicate where we can be surprised.) Uranus mirrors our urge to consider alternatives, to be open and to be equalitarian.

Keywords: individuality, freedom drives, inventiveness, originality, humanitarian instincts, detachment, pull toward the future, eccentricity, innovation, sudden changes, interest in technology, the new or "cutting edge."

Neptune

Neptune represents our need to merge and seek transcendence. Neptune is a key to our search for the beautiful dream. That may be sought through art, through healing or helping activities, or through escapist means. Neptune indicates our drive to experience Oneness, to be a part of the whole, to connect with something Higher or ecstatic in life. We may seek transcendence through spiritual or religious paths, be "swept away" in nature worship, look to drugs for ecstasy, live in a "perfect" fantasy world, or find inspiration in philanthropy and compassionate assistance of humanity.

Wherever Neptune is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we want to be inspired and must be wary of rose-colored glasses. We need to feel uplifted where our Neptune is placed, and may fool ourselves into viewing matters through a romantic haze. We seek transcendent experiences in the areas connected to Neptune in our horoscope.

Keywords: quest for Oneness/Union/transcendence, idealism, quest for infinite love and beauty, intuition, savior/victim potentials, compassion, imagination/fantasy, mysticism, escapism.

Pluto

Pluto represents our need to relate intimately with another person and with our own psyche. Pluto is another key to sexuality: our drive to share the world (especially sensually and financially) with another person--and learning about ourselves through interacting with someone else. Pluto also indicates our inner drive for self-mastery, self-insight and self-understanding. Pluto themes have to do with depth analysis, tearing things down and regeneration and transformation as well.

Wherever Pluto is in our horoscope (by house and sign), we tend to probe beneath the surface. We tend to pick at, and examine carefully those areas, looking for hidden meanings and deeper layers. We may tear down and then build up, analyze carefully, and then rework and transform. Pluto also symbolizes our approach to shared resources, money, and sexuality. Pluto represents our deepest, most intense feelings and our capacity to share power, pleasure and possessions with another person.

Keywords: intensity, drive for self-mastery, intimacy instincts, sexual needs, drive for transformation, elimination/completion urges, resentment/forgiveness, probing, complicated motives, compulsions, addictions, resourcefulness.

SIGNS OF THE ZODIAC

Your "sky map" (horoscope) places planets in any of 12 signs and any of 12 houses. Each planet has a different meaning, depending upon the house and the sign of the zodiac which it occupies.

The zodiac is an imaginary circle, out in space. (This circle is not the same as the constellations with the same names as the zodiac signs.) The zodiac is determined by the Earth's seasons and the Earth's path around the Sun. The Earth's path around the Sun, extended into infinity, forms the circle of the zodiac. The position of the Sun at the vernal equinox--spring in the Northern Hemisphere--defines 0 degrees of the sign Aries--the beginning of the zodiac. Looking out from the Earth, we see each planet in front of a certain part of the zodiac circle. That position determines what sign of the zodiac the planet is in.

Your day of birth determines the sign of the zodiac occupied by the Sun. That is your "Sun sign" which many popular columns abbreviate to just "your sign." The zodiac signs occupied by the other planets are determined by both your year of birth and your day of birth.

Your time of birth may be needed to know your Moon sign, because the Moon changes signs about every 2-1/2 days. Also, if you were born on a day when the Sun or a planet was changing signs (near a boundary point of the zodiacal circle), you will need to know your time of birth to determine which sign that planet is in. (Remember, astrologers call the Sun and Moon "planets" for convenience, even though the Sun is a star and the Moon is a satellite.)

The signs modify the planets, like adjectives modify verbs in English. You will express the drive symbolized by the planet in a manner described by the sign it occupies.

Each sign has a number of different possibilities. The symbols of astrology work on many levels. Everything has more than one meaning. Note that most potentials have both an "up" side and a "down" side--a positive and a negative. Astrology simply mirrors our potentials. We have the power to manifest either side in our lives (and we can change from one to the other by applying effort).

♈ Aries ♈

The glyph here symbolizes the horns of the charging Arian ram--plunging headfirst into life, spontaneous, impulsive, self-expressive. Here we have action, courage, self-expression, doing one's own thing, conflict, passion, being first, integrity, identity, anger, crises and confrontation. Aries is assertive, brave, impetuous, energetic, self-oriented, pioneering, rash, competitive, rapid, eager, likes to be on one's own, lives in the present.

♉ Taurus ♉

The glyph here symbolizes the head of a bull, who may be contentedly smelling the flowers, enjoying life's sensual pleasures. Here we have comfort, fondness, possessions, money, sensuality, products, persistence, patience, stability, indulgence, inertia and acceptance. Taurus is deliberate, dependable, placid, easygoing, loyal, thorough, stubborn, money-oriented, practical, artistic.

♊ Gemini ♊

The glyph here represents the two twins, Castor and Pollux. Here we have communication, learning, mental stimulation, curiosity, mimicry, movement, variety, youthfulness, choices, information, dexterity and multiple interests. Gemini is fluent, versatile, intermittent, clever, nimble, quick-witted, adaptable, scattered, gossipy, lighthearted, superficial, articulate.

♋ Cancer ♋

The glyph is said to represent the female breasts symbolizing nourishing and nurturing, or the claws of the crab, protecting its soft, inner body. Here we have children, the home, the nurturing parent, emotional needs, instincts, feelings, security and safety needs, vulnerability, desire for attachment, sensitivity. Cancer is nurturing, warm, dependent, sympathetic, protective, security-oriented, maternal, patriotic, retentive, helpful, moody, domestic, touchy (easily hurt), focused on family.

♌ Leo ♌

Some say this glyph represents the male sperm, as Leo rules procreation as well as creativity. Others say the glyph is a stylized rendition of the royal lion's head and mane. Here we have approval, dignity, recognition, applause, romance, dynamism, magnetism, pride/shame, limelight, extroversion, impact, procreation, larger-than-life themes and stage presence. Leo is creative, risk-taking, charismatic, fun-loving, generous, exciting, dramatic, proud, self-confident, childish, ambitious, arrogant, self-conscious (fears ridicule), enthusiastic.

♍ Virgo ♍

One tradition has it that this glyph represents a female hymen, indicating a closed (virginal) state. Another tradition traces the "M" in Virgo to Mary, mother of Jesus, and before her, to Mari--a goddess of the sea and early matriarchal figure. Another suggestion is that the waves in the "M" represents wheat fields undulating in the breeze. The constellation Virgo shows a virgin with a sheaf of wheat. Virgo is associated with green, growing things, as well as with work and health. Here we deal with cleansing, order, tasks, productivity, efficiency, skepticism, results, service, the correcting of flaws, and job routines. Virgo is work-oriented, painstaking, pragmatic, exacting, discreet, industrious, nit-picking, pedantic, methodical, detail-oriented, concerned with health/cleanliness.

♎ Libra ♎

The glyph represents an old-fashioned set of scales, pointing to the importance of balance and harmony. Here we have themes of sharing, beautifying, alternatives/choices, dualities, comparison, compromises, equality, the legal system, love, appearances, rituals, aesthetics. Libra is cooperative, diplomatic, fence-sitting, competitive, charming, easily deterred, refined, sociable, seeking a partner/companion, placating, coequal.

♏ Scorpio ♏

One tradition has it that this glyph represents the female genitalia in an open (sexually aware and active) state. Another theory is that the glyph highlights the "stinger" of the Scorpio scorpion or the undulating movement and fangs of the asp (serpent) also associated with Scorpio. Another theory associates the Scorpio "barb" with a phallus. Here we have issues of rebirth, complexities, hidden depths, the unconscious, sexuality, intimacy, shared resources and money, passion, power, loyalty/betrayal, extremes, all-or-nothing, self-discipline, transformation, transmutations and self-mastery. Scorpio is penetrating, intense, resourceful, powerful, compulsive, determined, jealous, secretive, probing, suspicious, fascinated by the hidden/taboo.

♐ Sagittarius ♐

The glyph shows the arrow loosened from the bow of the centaur (half-man/half-horse) who represents the quest for knowledge and truth. We see themes of trust, faith, world views, religion, philosophy, education, travel, expanded horizons, wide influence, prosperity, exaggeration, expectations, opportunities, extravagance, understanding. Sagittarius is benevolent, optimistic, athletic, enthusiastic, idealistic, freedom-loving, blunt, overindulgent, broad-minded, just.

♄ Capricorn ♄

The glyph is a very stylized rendition of a mountain-climbing goat with a fish-tail (like a mermaid), indicative of heights and depths. The themes relate to endurance, effort, dedication and an upward push. Here we face achievement, cause-and-effect, guilt, limits, demands and duties of the real world, career, status, reality, law, time, authorities, consequences and common sense. Capricorn is responsible, formal, traditional, career-oriented, cautious, inhibited, hardworking, scrupulous, conventional, status-seeking, economical, businesslike.

♊ Aquarius ♊

To the ancients, the wavy lines in this glyph represented the water carried in the jug of the "Water Bearer" (the constellation associated with this sign). Today, the wavy lines represent electricity, ruled by Aquarius, which symbolizes the electric openness to life, individuality, and inventiveness of the sign. Here we face themes of change, innovation, individuality, irreverence, freedom, surprises, originality, advancement, technology, and the New Age. Aquarius is unique, rebellious, futuristic, independent, objective, intellectual, unpredictable, tolerant, eccentric, aloof, progressive, possessed of a wide perspective.

♋ Pisces ♋

The glyph is a stylized rendition of two fish, swimming in opposite directions, but tied together by a line. This image of union in diversity, or the connection of seeming opposites highlights the Piscean need for union, for merging, for becoming part of something greater than the self. We have here themes revolving around absolutes, absorption, liquids, healing, psychic talents, pilgrimages, sacraments, unity, visions, excuses, romance, empathy and miracles. Pisces is compassionate, mystical, illusory, sensitive, spiritual, dreamy, artistic, passive, sacrificial, intuitive, charitable, impractical, escapist, inspirational.

The Sun is in Taurus

You need to shine comfortably.

This implies that your quest for attention/limelight/applause may be at odds with your desire for comfort. You may seek recognition in a manner which allows you to be relaxed and easygoing. You may want to be admired for your ability to be at ease.

You seek recognition deliberately.

You are willing to be slow and steady in your pursuit of positive attention. You can embark on a regular program to achieve limelight, building higher and higher. Sensual and earthy experiences feed your vitality.

You need to shine in your placidity/dependability.

You are likely to be proud of your dependability and/or your easygoing nature. If overdone, you might be too complacent and self-satisfied. Your regularities may be admired. You want recognition for your reliability and might take pride in your stability. (If overdone, you are reluctant to change.)

Your drive for recognition manifests through sensuality/possessions.

You may gain favorable feedback through your handling of sensuality, money or possessions. You could be proud of what you own, or purchase only the finest of things. A sense of luxury is possible. You may shine at getting and/or giving sensual gratification or material goods.

The Moon is in Cancer

Your feelings are deep and strong, but you are unlikely to reveal them to the world--either to protect yourself or to avoid hurting others. You may incline toward nurturing activities, or you could expect others to take care of you. Warm and emotional attachments are a likely focus. Family may be very important. You probably have a strong bond with your mother (but that could be negative or positive). Emotional and physical security are important; you usually hang on to what you have.

Mercury is in Aries

Your mind and tongue are apt to work quickly (sometimes impulsively). You may have talent for debate or extemporaneous speaking, and you might use words aggressively (biting, ironic, sarcastic). You are likely to communicate directly, forcefully, with confidence. (You may sometimes be insensitive to others--in too much of a hurry, interrupting, etc. and inhibit true exchange of ideas. You think for yourself and learn best through personal experience. You may need to be active in order to learn. You are likely to seek out new ideas and be willing to risk mentally. Self-will colors your perceptions. You are likely to be interested in courage, self-reliance, freedom and self-expression.

Venus is in Taurus

You are likely to enjoy physical gratifications (food, drink, possessions, finances, sensual indulgences). You deeply enjoy sensations, appreciate nature and savor the five senses, especially touch. You are probably relaxed and easygoing in relating to people and appreciate loyalty and stability. You express affection physically, steadily (and are sometimes possessive). Your drive for pleasure is strong; you might even be self-indulgent. Your handling of money/possessions is sensible, but you may overvalue comfort, luxury and/or attractive physical objects. You want comfort in your love relationships and respond to sensual energy from others.

Mars is in Virgo

You are naturally analytical, painstaking and thorough. Efficient functioning is important to you--both in your work and in your body (health). Your basic inclination is toward practicality, thrift, dedication and a "fix-it" (flaw-finding) approach. Your identity is tied to competence and doing things right. You assert yourself analytically, modestly, helpfully, and sometimes with criticism. Too much nit-picking, self-criticism or focus on details may inhibit your ability to act. You can put a lot of energy into working, being productive, repairing or improving people, things or situations. You tend to strive to do everything "just right" and may be quite demanding (of self and/or others). Your sexual drive and physical energy are influenced by your sense of effectiveness and competence. (Too much focus on performance could lead to inhibition.) You can be quite dedicated, thorough, and productive.

Jupiter is in Virgo

You tend to value work, productivity, efficiency and/or health. Your beliefs are probably connected to your job and sense of dedication. Your ethics/morals may highlight the puritan virtues. You may idealize purity, cleanliness, precision. You are learning to blend idealistic visions with practical reality, without begin chronically dissatisfied, overly judgmental, perfectionistic, or giving up too soon; a positive blend allows you to visualize the best and take concrete steps to manifest it. You tend to put your trust into hard work and self-discipline. You are probably ever ready to improve yourself. You are likely to grow through dedicated service and competent helpfulness.

As one of the outer planets, Jupiter spends a fair amount of time in each sign (about one year). Thus, the themes which are indicated are shared by people your age. The house placement of Jupiter will have more to say about how you handle beliefs, values, education, religion and expectations, along with your cultural background and individual essence.

Saturn is in Aquarius

You tend to structure and organize your sense of individuality and may sometimes inhibit your originality and uniqueness. You can be responsible and dedicated in an unusual way. You may be quite committed to social change or progressive principles. You are apt to be logical and rational, with a talent for science. Your career might involve friends, groups, networking, computers or anything on the "cutting edge." You may have talent for organizing people or ideas. You may achieve through groups (teamwork). Too much focus on your drive for individuality and uniqueness could hinder your worldly achievements, but too much concern with what is "proper" could block your independence and inventive spirit. Keep a balance between the old and new, the structured and the free.

Saturn takes about 29-1/2 years to travel the zodiac circuit, so spends about 2-1/2 years in each sign. Thus, you share certain themes with people around your age. How you handle these issues, however, will depend on you (and your whole horoscope--including the house placement of Saturn). The challenge with any Saturn placement is to be appropriately realistic. People often take on either too little or too much responsibility in the areas connected to their Saturn's house and sign placements. Practice doing what is possible, neither giving up (fearing failure), nor trying to control and handle everything, but working pragmatically within the limits of the world.

Uranus is in Aries

You may be unique in self-expression and personal actions. You could challenge life directly, forcefully, courageously. You may make impulsive changes. You have a strong need for freedom and openness. When you break loose, you do so energetically, quickly, assertively.

Because Uranus spends about 7 years in each sign, it symbolizes issues for a rather large group of people. The house position of Uranus will help to reveal how and where each individual might deal with the issues represented by Uranus' sign. The house position of Uranus may also represent traits which are more personal, less tied to one's age peers.

Neptune is in Virgo

You may idealize/romanticize working, being competent or being healthy. You might sacrifice on the job (doing too much) or be perfectionistic at work. You could be a talented craftsperson or a natural healer/helper. You seek to bring your dreams to earth and make them real.

Historically, this time (1928/1929-1942/43) was one when the world dealt with illusions around purity, celibacy, work, duty, service and health. The Stock Market Crash and Great Depression crushed many people's ideals about making one's way through hard work. Racial "purity" was an issue in Hitler's Germany. Many people had to confront their beliefs and dreams around service and decide what they truly owed their country.

Antibiotics and other drugs offered new hope in the health field.

Because Neptune spends about 13-14 years in each sign, its position points to issues which are relevant for a whole group of people (over half of a generation). Each person will still have his/her personal reactions to these general issues, but the underlying themes will be shared with many people. (Thanks to Marilyn Waram in THE BOOK OF NEPTUNE for many historical notes which are used here.)

Pluto is in Cancer

You may probe deeply in matters involving home, family and emotions. You may bond/feel intimate through nurturing (and/or being dependent). You could focus or concentrate on gaining emotional security. Mastery of feelings and intuitions may be a driving need in your psyche.

Historically, Pluto was in Cancer from 1913-1938. The world saw excessive patriotism lead to World War I and set the stage for World War II. Women gained political power (the vote) in the US.

Because Pluto's orbit is so long (248 years to circle the zodiac), it spends from 12 to 32 years in a single sign. Thus, it operates as a marker of generations, pointing to themes shared by large groups of people. Still, people's house positions for Pluto and cultural backgrounds as well as individual natures will affect how they deal with these generational Plutonic themes. (Thanks to Marion March and Joan McEvers in THE ONLY WAY TO LEARN ASTROLOGY for historical examples.)

HOUSES OF THE HOROSCOPE

Your time of birth is required to know which houses are occupied by the planets. Houses are a division of space based on the Earth's 24-hour rotation. The Earth turns completely on its axis in one 24-hour period (creating our day and night). The space within which the Earth turns is divided into 12 areas called houses. As we look out from your place of birth, at your moment of birth, each planet will be in an area of space designated as one or another of the 12 astrological houses. Houses are shown as the pie-shaped wedges in a circular horoscope (and are numbered 1 through 12 in a counter-clockwise direction).

The line which separates one house from the next is called a cusp. Certain house cusps are considered to have extra significance in astrology. One is the cusp of the 1st house. The first house defines what was "rising" at the time of your birth. (If you were born around sunrise, the Sun will be near the cusp of your 1st house.) The cusp of the 1st is also called the Ascendant. Astrologers consider the sign on the Ascendant (the "rising sign") an important key to personal identity and action.

Similarly the sign on the cusp of the 10th house (the Midheaven) is considered significant in matters of career and status.

Houses (like signs) represent inner drives and needs, but houses have other meanings as well. Houses represent certain areas of life, and other people in our lives, in addition to inner psychological issues. For example, the 3rd house represents our capacity to learn, our logic and objectivity, and our communication skills. The third house also symbolizes the people we first practice learning and communicating with: brothers, sisters, neighbors and people near-at-hand.

Because the outer planets (Jupiter through Pluto) take so long to orbit the Sun, they occupy each sign of the zodiac for a rather long time. (A whole generation may have Pluto in the same sign of the zodiac.) The house a planet occupies is thus a much more personal statement than the sign a planet occupies. (Houses depend on the place and time of birth so are more individual.)

1st House Keywords

Personal action, identity, self-expression, spontaneous instincts, physical body, the beginning of life, appearance, what you do naturally, how others see you, your early childhood years, natural projection into the world, physical energy, appearance, "I" (personal awareness), assertion, urge to be first, sense of self separate from others, way of being independent, impulses, personal style, who you are.

2nd House Keywords

The Sun is in your 9th house

Your self-esteem is on the line in regard to education, religion, truth, or spiritual ideals. You may seek to prove your worth through amassing degrees, promoting a particular world view or philosophy, traveling all over the world, or being recognized as a guru or leader in metaphysics, ethics, or moral principles. You may seek admiration for your breadth of perspective and wide knowledge. You probably rejoice in exploring the world mentally (and often physically as well). Your creativity could be channeled toward adventures, expansion and big dreams. You may be proud (or ashamed) of your education, life philosophy or goals and values. You tend to seek the best, build your faith, be optimistic and trust in the future.

You need a sense of fun, expansion and idealism in your love relationships. You want love to be joyful, enlarging, broadening, and to always have a "happy ending." This can lead to expecting more than is possible of those you love (or they of you). It can also indicate seeing the highest potential for lovers and children, and helping them to move toward a vision of brighter possibilities. You are willing to take risks for a greater return; you naturally seek the "big time." If you deny these enlarging potentials within, your children or beloved might carry them to excess. They might dream and never do, overextend themselves, exaggerate, expect the world to give them what they want, or just party a lot. They could be philosophical, happy-go-lucky, exploring types. If these themes are shared, you encourage one another to visualize the best and work toward it. You feed each other's humor, confidence, faith and love of knowledge.

The Moon is in your 11th house

Your emotional security is tied to new age knowledge, technology, friends or communal associations. You are "fed" by the new, the unusual and the different. You may protect and conserve opportunity for all, humanitarian principles and tolerance. You are likely to nurture and be nurtured by friends, causes and social networks. Your caretaking style is intellectual and a bit detached rather than warm and emotional. You are concerned with broad issues, but may be quite objective in more personal realms. You tend to treat friends as family (warmer, more caring) and family as friends (with space and objectivity), so your emotional responses can be viewed as rebellious, inventive or unconventional.

Your mother (figure) was a role model for individuality and progress. She could have been equalitarian (more like a friend than an authority), open, bright, unusual or involved with the cutting edge of change. She might also have been erratic, unpredictable, cool, aloof and detached. Your mother was dealing with a freedom/closeness clash around nurturing. She could have felt torn between her desire to care for others and her urge to be independent and involved in the wider world (transpersonal issues). You are facing the same motifs in terms of your own nurturing instincts. You may feel torn between home and family needs versus the pull of causes, new age activities, and the beckoning vistas of the outer world. Your family may breed individualism, change, open-endedness and unusual approaches. The past either built or challenged your uniqueness, humanitarian principles or openness to the new. You function best in a domestic environment which is chaotic, unusual, ever-changing or full of friends and concepts coming and going.

Mercury is in your 9th house

Your mind is concerned with issues of faith, philosophy, education, travel or anything expansive and broadening. You learn through principles, broad perspectives, overviews and generalities. You think about the meaning of life and are apt to be curious about faith, beliefs, values, goals and world views. Your interests tend to be philosophical, spiritual, expansive or wide-ranging. You tend to "think big," and are apt to be optimistic. Your communication style is probably outgoing, gregarious, humorous, lively or adventurous. You may be prone to "foot-in-mouth" experiences on occasion or jumping to conclusions. You could enjoy argument for the sheer intellectual stimulation and may be a skillful rationalizer. Ethical issues (especially too much or too little honesty) could affect your written and verbal exchanges.

Your consciousness is restless, expansive and always wanting more. You can be a natural teacher, traveller and student. If you pursued higher education, you may have studied many different things! If you have not actualized your own faith, trust or expansiveness, your relatives (including siblings) may be confident, outgoing, ethical, religious, spiritual, perfectionistic, funny or rash. You seek the stimulation of always learning more, going further, understanding more fully, and expanding your horizons.

Venus is in your 10th house

You are looking for ease and comfort in reality. You may expect your career to provide beauty or pleasure. (You might not want to work hard.) You want achievement that is stable and secure and seek control over the physical, sensual world--over things. You can find comfort in duties, thrift, rules, structure and safety. You may look to money and possessions for reassurance and security. Your possessions are apt to be practical and sensible, and may further your professional ambitions. You probably enjoy responsibility, accomplishments and tangible results. (Occasionally, beauty and charm may be used to control the world: "If I am sweet enough, people will do things for me.")

You have the potential of a comfortable, accepting relationship with the conditional love parent (usually father or authority figure). There may be much affection between you. It is also possible that the parent may be overly materialistic, self-indulgent, passive or lazy. This parent is a role model (positive or negative) for later partnerships. Unresolved issues with Dad (or authority figure parent) will be faced again with partners. These issues are most likely to involve money, security, affection, comfort and pleasure. Your partner might be dictatorial, a workaholic, expect you to carry the load, responsible, dedicated or realistic. Your social interactions tend toward the conventional and are often work-related. Your career could involve beauty, pleasure, finances, or sensual gratification. You could earn money in business, with or through a father figure, in a bureaucracy, or through steadily working your way up the ladder of success.

Mars is in your 1st house

You are likely to have a strong sense of personal freedom, independence, and often a "loner" tendency. You may be quite strong-willed and could exhibit marked courage (on many levels). You tend to be open, spontaneous and direct.

Your physical energy is probably high; you may bounce back easily from illness (or set-backs in general). Your natural impatience can lead you to sometimes act without thinking. You may rush "head first" into life (and can sometimes have the head injuries to prove it). Accidents are a potential if you carry rashness to an extreme. Immediacy and urgency are built into your nature. When the desire strikes, you feel you must act. Spontaneity is very good, but sometimes needs to be tempered with a bit of caution.

Innate self-confidence makes you willing to take risks, to naturally rise to any challenges. Competition often spurs your best efforts. You may have a talent for handling crisis, with rapid response your forte. You may be drawn to sports or other physically active outlets. Your high level of energy (and sharpness) needs a constructive physical outlet. You can be quite assertive, with a firm sense of what you want. (If overdone, there may be impulsiveness, self-centeredness or combativeness.) With natural pioneering spirit, you initiate easily.

Your sense of identity is very personal: "I am me"--not based on other role models, but uniquely you. Although you can get angry quickly, you are also likely to get over it quickly. The more you do what you want, the more you grasp your essential nature. "I do my own thing" could be your motto."

Jupiter is in your 2nd house

You are likely to believe in and value comfort, security, pleasure and possessions. If the focus on gratification is carried too far, you may be overly indulgent (with food, alcohol, or other appetites) or place too much importance on money and material goods. You want to enlarge and expand your material base, so might make a lot of money, but can also spend easily. With the confidence that you can always get more, you may be quite generous. You can generalize about what you earn and own in life, and may leap to unwarranted conclusions. Financial opportunities come your way through optimism, positive visualization and social networks. Your persuasive, motivating skills can be a tool for monetary gain. You are likely to both learn and teach in the realm of money, possessions, aesthetics and pleasure.

Your world view tends to be based on contentment. You may trust (put your faith in) stability, material security and gratifying experiences. You want to believe in happy endings. Your ethics and moral principles are likely to be easygoing and accepting. You want to understand the sense world, finances and beauty. Pleasure is an important goal in your life.

Saturn is in your 6th house

You may seek structure in your work routines or follow quite regular health habits. You probably feel responsible for doing things well and not making mistakes. You may feel limited in your work or health and need to avoid focusing too much on what is "wrong" rather than what is "right." Karmic issues for you revolve around efficient functioning in both your job and in your body. You are learning to be productive and effective without pushing yourself too hard and falling into a workaholic stance--or giving up and not trying because you feel inadequate. Regularity, practicality and realism are essential in what you do and for your physical well-being. If you demand too much of yourself, problems with your back, teeth, bones, knees or crystallization (stones, gout, arthritis) can indicate taking too much on your shoulders, trying to be indispensable. Or, you may sometimes get sick in order to take a "vacation."

Your father (figure) is a role model (positive or negative) for your attitudes about competence and health. You may perceive authorities (including father) as hardworking, dedicated, demanding, nit-picking, fault-finding, humble or ill. His example taught you what to do or what not to do in terms of service, fixing things up, dedication and effort.

Your career needs to include careful analysis, attention to detail, focus, concentration or quiet efficiency. You may be drawn to fields involving health, nutrition, repairs or any kind of improvement. Your duties are practical, sensible and call for facing facts. You are susceptible to guilt regarding perceived faults and may be too critical of yourself, especially on the job. You are learning to be realistic about your capabilities and competence.

Uranus is in your 9th house

You may challenge the status quo in terms of ideas, concepts, ideals and world views. You could be a rebel in terms of beliefs, goals and values. You are likely to change and reform religious, spiritual or philosophical perspectives. You can invent and originate new ways of looking for truth and meaning in life. You may break the "rules" about religion, spirituality or faith. You could revolutionize ethics, morality, value systems or life philosophies. You have a strong streak of unconventional wit and innovative thinking. You can be a radical! You deny dogma and seek your own broadly-based, open, tolerant world view.

Freedom is essential for you, and strongly connected to seeking the truth. You may idealize personal liberty, friends, or humanitarian causes. You need to feel unconfined, free to explore, adventure, travel and broaden your horizons on all levels (physically, mentally, emotionally and spiritually). You may reach sudden insights through relocating or exposing yourself to different surroundings or theories. Learning can occur in bursts and starts; you might lack patience for traditional higher education, preferring to find your own truth. Sudden illumination is possible. You probably trust the future and believe that the best is yet to come. You may be quite tolerant, optimistic and confident.

Neptune is in your 1st house

Your imagination is strong and easy to tap. You tune into and merge effortlessly and could unconsciously pick up vibes (good or bad) from others, or feel their feelings. You are likely to be quite sensitive and need to be more careful than the average person about drugs, medication, diet, or anything affecting your physical body. You might even unconsciously pick up other people's illnesses or bodily aches when you are feeling down or vulnerable. Some kind of meditation, psychic self-protection, artistic inspiration or a deep, abiding faith will support your physical vitality and promote good health.

You probably yearn to express infinite love and beauty through your own personal action. You could be graceful, drawn to beauty in motion (dancing, skating, skiing, gymnastics, Tai Chi, etc.) or self-sacrificing. Miracles, magic and mysticism are a natural part of life for you. You may instinctively heal and rescue (people, plants, animals...). You may sometimes repress or deny feelings that are unpleasant or don't fit your ideals. You could delude yourself, viewing the world through rose-colored glasses and preferring to focus only on the best. If you overidealize, you'll end up disappointed and let down when life and other people prove to be fallible.

You could idealize or romanticize action, courage, freedom and self-expression and yet you can also avoid and ignore independence, openness and directness when they don't fit your dreams. Your challenge is to blend self-assertion and self-sacrifice, to optimally combine personal will with empathy and the urge for union. You can transcend through action, courage, assertion and being true to yourself. You find and define your personal self more clearly by connecting with your Higher Self and inner wisdom.

Pluto is in your 12th house

You seek to master your dreams, visions and ideals. You intimidate/overpower through weakness, passivity, manipulation or "rescuing" others. You probe/investigate fantasies, hopes, ideals and escapist urges. You control (or are controlled by) your imagination and pipeline to the Infinite. You eliminate dreams, imagination, compassion or fantasy, escapism and psychosis. You bond/feel intimate in a context of sensitivity, empathy, merging, selflessness, compassion and beauty. You concentrate on ideals, beauty, union, spirituality and absolutes. You project (facets of yourself you'd rather not face) onto fantasy figures, people you do not see clearly, or bury them in your unconscious. You share/allocate visions, aesthetic urges, spiritual drives and inspirational needs in order to further your quest for infinite love and beauty. You test (yourself or others) against an ideal image and standard for infinite love.

RULERS

A house that has no planets in it is said to be empty. This does not mean that you cannot function in the area of life represented by the house--or that nothing ever happens. When a house is not occupied by planets, you look first to the sign on the cusp of that house.

Four of the house cusps are more important, and are known as "angles." Angles are extremely time-dependent and thus are among the most personal points of your horoscope. The four angles are the Midheaven (10th house cusp), Ascendant (1st house cusp), Descendant (7th house cusp) and IC (4th house cusp). They are shown on the chart as the heavier lines between the inner and outer circles.

The signs on each of these angles give additional information about your potentials, and these angles can also form aspects with one another and with the planets. Traditionally, astrologers give more weight to the Ascendant and Midheaven than to the Descendant and IC. (The first two appear to be more significant.)

In addition to the meaning of the sign on the cusp, you also consider the ruler of that sign. Each sign has a "favorite" planet--a planet whose basic meaning is parallel to the themes of that sign. A sign's "favorite" planet is said to "rule" that sign. Thus, Mars (the planet signifying assertion, personal action, impulses, desire, immediacy) rules Aries (the sign of speed, impatience, urgency, courage, etc.). Since there are only 10 planets, but 12 signs, some planets do double duty. Venus rules both Taurus and Libra. Mercury is the ruler of both Gemini and Virgo. Each other planet rules only one sign: Sun-Leo, Moon-Cancer, Jupiter-Sagittarius, Saturn-Capricorn, Uranus-Aquarius, Neptune-Pisces, and Pluto-Scorpio.

In handling the matters of an empty house, you will show some characteristics of the sign on the cusp of the house, as well as some traits depicted by the house and sign occupied by the ruling planet of the house. These are the major considerations and the ones which will be discussed in detail in the following text. As always, look for repeated themes. Messages which occur more than once are more significant.

The sign on the cusp and the placements of the ruler are also given for houses that are not empty. These are important, but tend to be less noticed when there are planets in the house--the planets are "where the action is."

Other factors can enter in. If, for example, the ruler of a house aspects another planet, that other planet will also have something to say about the matters of the house. In addition, one can consider the placement of the "natural rulers" of each house. The "natural rulers" follow the natural zodiac: Aries in the 1st house, Taurus in the 2nd house, etc. Thus, Mars is the "natural ruler" of the 1st, Venus is the "natural ruler" of the 2nd, etc. At a certain point, however, people get overwhelmed with data. So, we are providing interpretations for the major factors to include when examining an empty house: the sign on the cusp, and the house and sign placement of the ruler of that cusp.

The Ascendant

The Ascendant is represented by the heavy line on the left (eastern) side of your chart: it is the boundary line between the 12th and 1st houses. The Ascendant is also called your "rising sign," since the sign on your Ascendant was "rising" (moving from below the horizon to above the horizon) at your time and place of birth. Formally, it is the eastern intersection of the great circles of the ecliptic and the horizon.

The Ascendant provides additional clues about your self-expression, sense of identity, appearance, physical energy and basic instincts (it is very similar to Mars).

The IC

The IC separates the 3rd and 4th houses and is the heavy line nearest to the bottom of your chart. IC stands for Immum Coeli, "bottom of the sky" in Latin. The MC and IC are opposite each other, but may not show up that way visually because of house expansion.

The IC symbolizes themes connected to your home, family, nurturing experiences, early life, ancestry and emotional roots (similar to the Moon).

The Descendant

The Descendant is represented by the heavy line on the right (western) side of your chart, separating the 6th and 7th houses. It is always directly opposite the Ascendant (same degree and minute, opposite sign), but may not appear so on the chart circle if one or more houses have had to expand to allow all the planets in them to fit.

The Descendant is a key to issues you face in relationships and to qualities which you may meet through other people (rather than expressing yourself).

The Midheaven

The Midheaven separates the 9th and 10th houses and is the heavy line nearest to the top (south) of your chart. This angle is often called the "MC," which stands for Medium Coeli--Latin for "middle of the sky."

The Midheaven provides additional clues about your career, status, ambition, position in the world, relationships with power and authority figures (it is a lot like Saturn).

Leo on the Ascendant

You are naturally on stage. With strong dramatic instincts, you want to make a splash in the world. People tend to notice you. You may have flair (or be pompous and arrogant), but being admired and applauded is important to you. You can be quite charismatic and exciting, but may be susceptible to flattery. You can be generous and bighearted and are likely to encourage others. Praise and acknowledgment matter to you, especially for your creative, fun-loving spirit.

These qualities may be modified by the house and sign position of your Sun, which rules the Ascendant in your chart, or by any planets in your 1st house.

Ruler of the 1st in Taurus

You tend to be earthy, stable, persistent, and sensuous. A love of nature or beauty (especially of the tactile sort) is likely. Drawn to life's goodies, you may indulge in food, alcohol, sex, possessions, money, etc. Placid and easygoing, you have quite a stock of patience. Deliberate and dependable, once on a course, you keep going till you get there.

Ruler of the 1st in the 9th

You can be the perpetual truth-seeker. Quests draw you onward. You may instinctively travel, pursue a spiritual path, a dream, an education, or anything involving ideas, ideals, and ethics. Self-righteous beliefs or fights about principles are possible. Optimistic, you have a core of faith and self-confidence. Energetic, you need exposure to the wider world and thrive on freedom.

Virgo on the 2nd cusp

Money, for you, is a serious business. It may even be a career. Working in the banking, investment, cashier, accounting, or tax field is possible. Health-related occupations are another potential.

Your focus is on efficiency in the physical world. A skilled budgeteer, you concentrate on getting the most out of your dollar. Often parsimonious, you have been known to comparison-shop for the best deal. Thrift and avoiding waste come easily. Since you tend to view earning a living as requiring dedication and effort, you can end up overworked and underpaid. Remember to relax!

Expenditures which advance your career or assist or improve your health or life are likely to appeal. You can rationalize even expensive purchases on behalf of good health or increased efficiency and productivity.

Ruler of the 2nd in Aries

Your approach to money is likely to be pioneering, eager, rash, and independent. You may spend quickly or for pursuit of personal desires. You want financial freedom, but can spend on impulse. Competition or fights about money are possible. You like immediate gratification. You may break new ground--be first--in finding revenue sources.

Ruler of the 2nd in the 9th

You get pleasure from learning, from expanding your mind and your horizons, travel, philosophy, religion--or anything which provides a sense of higher meaning and truth. You could make money through travel, higher education, more training, inspiration, the law, science, publishing, or anything which gives people a sense of meaning in life. You easily spot financial opportunities and tend to be optimistic in regard to the material world.

Libra on the 3rd cusp

Words, for you, are a bridge to other people. They spark the relating instinct. That involvement can be cooperative and harmonious--or competitive. But you enjoy the give-and-take, the back-and-forth with other people. Innately sociable, you would rather discuss than monologue.

When you are in your appeasement mode, you can be too concerned with protecting the other person's feelings. This can lead to "little white lies" (which naturally grow). Or, you may avoid arguments and unpleasantness. Tact and diplomacy are skills; just use them with discretion.

Graceful, flowing language or skill at making lovely handicrafts is possible. You can use your mind, tongue, and hands to bring beauty, pleasure and relationships into your life. Able to see both sides of most questions, you can be a good negotiator, with skills at comparing and contrasting alternatives.

Ruler of the 3rd in Taurus

Your thinking or speech may be placid, patient, or deliberate. You prefer to think things through. An artistic turn of phrase or pleasing voice is possible. You enjoy the world of the mind and might turn it into a source of income.

Ruler of the 3rd in the 10th

You're interested in competence, responsibility, and necessities. You may use your mind, tongue, or hands in a professional manner, but prefer task-oriented conversations to casual chit-chat. Your mind is serious, down-to-earth, practical and organized. Business skills are likely. You move up in the world through logic and planning.

Scorpio on the IC

You may shut most of the world out of your home, but those you let in will be allowed to explore deep, emotional issues with you. Hidden motives, manipulation, obsessions and power issues may be faced, but you can be totally committed to family, fiercely loyal and resourceful on their behalf. The worst of this is abuse and misuse of power or emotional blackmail. The best of this is tremendous focus and concentration directed toward intimate support and lasting ties.

These potentials will be modified by the house and sign position of Pluto, which rules your IC, and by any planets occupying your 4th house.

Ruler of the 4th in Cancer

A safe atmosphere appeals. Nesting--perhaps even cocooning--probably prevails. Protection, emotional support, and knowing that the people who share your abode are on your side are essential. You are likely to nurture--pets, plants, or people--within your domestic environment. Warmth and caring are highlighted.

Ruler of the 4th in the 12th

You want your home to be a sanctuary: a place where you can meditate or tune into your Higher Self, merge with the Cosmos, feel a sense of infinite grace, beauty, and compassion. It could be quite lovely. Savior/victim relationships with family or people in your abode are possible. Alcohol or other escapist activity could be a problem. You need beauty, mysticism, transcendence, idealism, and inspiration in your nest.

Sagittarius on the 5th cusp

Go for the gusto! This combination is usually optimistic, fun-loving, extravagant, and restless. Eager to go, to do, to enjoy, you can travel many different creative paths. Your enthusiasms are always big and you can get carried away with any hobby.

Issues of ideals and goals emerge with children. One variation is turning children into an ultimate value--and having lots of them. Another variation is wanting to be the perfect parent of perfect children--and not having any! You may expect more than is humanly possible of lovers and of children--or of yourself in love relationships. Don't expect heaven on earth! Sharing a spiritual, religious, or ethical focus can strengthen your love bonds. Travel, education and humor can be sources of joy in your life. Your inner child is witty, eager, and gregarious.

Ruler of the 5th in Virgo

Your creativity is careful and painstaking. You may be too critical and inhibit your self-expressive side. Bringing projects down to earth and getting tangible results feeds your personal vitality. Efficiency excites you.

Ruler of the 5th in the 2nd

You can be extremely creative about making money or enjoying the material world. You want your earning power, income, possessions, or pleasures to be noteworthy. Your self-esteem is on the line in regard to resources. You want to be proud of your possessions, financial status, beauty, artistic talent, or easygoing nature. Your enthusiasm is directed toward creating comfort, stability, and gratifying sensual experiences.

Capricorn on the 6th cusp

You know how to get to the bottom line. Practical, sensible, reality-oriented, you pay attention to essentials on the job. An excessive focus on limits and rules could lead to feeling inhibited, blocked, and restricted vocationally. You could feel stuck working very hard just to survive. Understand the establishment and power structure in order to be effective.

Attitudes about work (competence, and what entails doing a good job) will be influenced by your father figure--negatively or positively. You have potential executive skills--a willingness to work your way to the top. You can slip into workaholism and spend too much time working; know the limits of your responsibilities! Conscientious and dedicated, you do well in any field working with the way things are.

Ruler of the 6th in Aquarius

You function best in an unconventional working environment. Whether your hours, job, style of dress, income, or duties are unusual, you need more openness, intellectual stimulation, and variety than most people. You handle change well.

Ruler of the 6th in the 6th

You need to work with precision, with details, with thoroughness, with efficiency. You could repair, fix, or make things better--on the physical, mental, or emotional level. Health fields are possible, or anything involving technical analysis, facts, figures, or tangible output. You work too hard trying to get things "just right." Relax!

Aquarius on the Descendant

You are learning about innovation, individuality and freedom in your relationships. You may share a sense of uniqueness with a partner who is quite different--or attract people who are strange, flaky, or unwilling to get involved. Your interpersonal exchanges can strengthen your willingness to break the rules, to go in new directions.

These possibilities can be affected by the house and sign position of Uranus, which rules your Descendant, and by any planets occupying your 7th house.

Ruler of the 7th in Aries

You need relationships which feed your independence and encourage you to be true to yourself. You may be drawn to fiery, forthright, energetic partners (or people who are excessively self-focused or loner types). Lust as well as love may figure in the picture. A quick attraction is possible. Immediacy appeals in shared activities.

Ruler of the 7th in the 9th

You want a partner who is fun-loving, witty, inspirational, bright, or confident. You could get involved with someone who is rash, overextended, or self-righteous. High expectations are likely--for your partner, for the relationship, and for yourself within the relationship. Pursue a dream together, but don't expect perfection from each other.

Pisces on the 8th cusp

Your imagination ranges freely in regard to intimate matters. You might be quite intuitive in regard to mates, understanding them without words. Fantasies could abound where you believe what you want to be true in regard to emotional attachments. Idealism or escapism could handicap the sharing of finances and resources. You may be fascinated by the mystical, spiritual, artistic, or compassionate side of life--delving deeply into mysteries of all kinds. You can put tremendous focus and emotional strength behind pursuit of a dream or vision.

Ruler of the 8th in Virgo

You are seduced by dedication, efficiency, fact-finding, and cleanliness. You probe deeply into the world of work, health, nutrition, and repairs. You tend to expect complications on the job, and in regard to getting things done well.

Ruler of the 8th in the 1st

You tend to do therapy on yourself. You may constantly question your own motives, trying to figure out what is driving you. You need to know what lies underneath--to grasp your basic motivations and needs. You want to be direct, open, and quick in handling shared resources. Intimate interactions strongly affect how you see yourself.

Aries on the 9th cusp

You trust your own experience. You will seek out a direct encounter with inspiration or a guru. You believe in finding your own truth, your own way. Being yourself and being free are central to your principles.

You might be quite active in pursuit of the truth--whether traveling, studying, spiritual quests or other avenues of seeking more answers. If the energy and personal focus is carried too far, you could believe you have the final truth and aggressively push your version onto other people (religious wars). You need to pioneer in the arena of faith, to be independent with regard to beliefs and values.

Ruler of the 9th in Virgo

Your quest for the truth is painstaking, meticulous, careful, and pragmatic. You seek answers with great attention to detail, industriousness, efficiency, and focus. Work, health, and competent achievement are priorities. Getting a job done well excites you. Nit-picking, flaw-finding, and common sense could emerge in discussions of philosophy, religion, beliefs. You put your trust in working hard and well.

Ruler of the 9th in the 1st

Your idealism is tied to personal action, identity, and self-expression. You may have high standards for your own behavior. This can vary from: "I should be perfect (and if I'm not, I'm terrible)" to "I am perfect. I'm wonderful and the world owes me whatever I want" to "I should know all the right answers." Your world view must be personal.

Taurus on the Midheaven

You want to enjoy your work and may be drawn to fields involving finance, beauty or comfort (or simply work mainly for material rewards). You work steadily and well. You are not inclined toward strenuous labor, but regular application of effort comes naturally. You can be laid-back with authority figures and generally have a relaxed relationship. You work best in a stable, secure setting.

This description will be modified by the house and sign position of Venus, which rules your Midheaven, and by any planets occupying your 10th house.

Ruler of the 10th in Taurus

You tend to have a practical, grounded, reasonable approach to work. Sensible and stable, you are likely to be a good, steady worker who values the rewards of success. Tangible results (in the business world, with beauty, with resources, with money) are important to you. You will gravitate toward a career which you enjoy or one which brings pleasure or comfort to the world.

Ruler of the 10th in the 10th

You need power and authority in your career. The executive or expert role comes naturally. You want to make the rules, but may first have to struggle with current authorities. Clear demarcation of responsibilities and limits is essential. The better you understand the structure, the more effectively you can take control and increase your status.

Gemini on the 11th cusp

Original thinking is quite possible. You may turn mental handstands, able to experiment with concepts and discover alternatives. Curiosity and communication are in focus with friends and groups. Either you enjoy discussions, learning, and sharing ideas with others, or you may draw in individuals who are too chatty, superficial, and scattered.

Involvement with humanity on a large scale is like a school for you--a place to exercise your mind, hone your verbal and writing skills, increase your fund of knowledge, and be alert to the many interesting people from whom you can learn.

Ruler of the 11th in Aries

You thrive in groups and friendships which stimulate your independence. Sports, contests, war games, the military, or anything self-expressive could be a focus. You may be attracted to people who are fiery, assertive, and pioneering. Open relationships which reinforce your directness, spontaneity, courage and willingness to act are best. Your casual connections to others are teaching you to be true to yourself, to identify your desires and pursue them forcefully.

Ruler of the 11th in the 9th

You may be a rebel in regard to belief systems, religion, and philosophy. You will probably leave the faith you were trained in as a youngster to find your own truth, your own path. A broad-minded approach to meaning is essential.

Cancer on the 12th cusp

You may idealize feelings, home, family, nurturing, your homeland, or protection. You could become disillusioned with emotional ties or domestic matters. Your quest for the Source, for life's ultimate meaning, must feel safe and secure to you. Although intuition is strong, often insights are deeply buried and hard to articulate. You may create beauty within your abode. You are inspired by caring, blood bonds, preservation, and kindness.

Ruler of the 12th in Cancer

One path to enlightenment lies in being protective, nurturing, warm, sympathetic, domestic, concerned, vulnerable, and committed. Activities which center on the home, family, emotional attachments and nesting instincts can help you tap into your Higher Self.

Ruler of the 12th in the 11th

You could be inspired in terms of individuality and involvement with social causes--or be used, abused, and taken advantage of by friends, groups, or organizations. You may want to heal humanity; don't overidealize the downtrodden. Others can assist your quest for faith.

ABOUT ASPECTS

Aspects occur when two planets are separated by certain specific numbers of degrees. Every circle has 360 degrees and the circle of the zodiac is no exception. Thus each planet is separated from each other planet by some number of degrees (and minutes). Certain degree separations, the aspects, have traditional meanings in astrology. Because only certain ranges of degrees form aspects, normally not all pairs of planets in a chart will be in aspect. In some charts there will only be a few aspects.

With any aspect, the nature of the two planets involved is most significant, but the type of aspect says how those natures are combined. There are three ways planets may relate to each other: their natures may combine (be unified), they may cooperate, or they may be in conflict. The relationships between the planets (based on how many degrees apart they are) indicate the relationships between various drives and needs in our nature (symbolized by the planets).

Note that in calculating how far apart two planets are, you always go the short way around the circle, so that the maximum separation is 180 degrees.

Although the angles of the horoscope can form aspects to each other and to the planets, in this report we only look at the cases where planets are close to an angle. Astrologers say that the planet is "on" the angle.

Unifying Aspect

When two planets are close to each other their natures are unified (or combined or mixed). The planets interact strongly. It is as if these planets are married or living together. In your horoscope, you do not get one without the other. The drives they symbolize are somehow melded in your personality. The blending may be comfortable or not so comfortable--depending on the nature of the drives involved.

Interpreting a unifying aspect is not very different from putting together the meanings of a planet in a house or a planet in a sign. You are mixing two factors. Consider both sides: how might these two planets reinforce and support one another's themes and how might their basic drives conflict and compete with one other?

Certain planets stand for drives which "get along" easily: they tend to want the same sort of things, and tend to pull in the same direction. When such planets are next to each other, they suggest inner agreement, reinforcement and harmony. (Examples would include the Sun and Jupiter, the Sun and Mars, the Moon and Neptune, the Moon and Pluto, and Mercury with Uranus.)

Other planets represent drives which are contradictory or at odds with one another. Where such planets are joined in astrological matrimony, the individual must strive to somehow "make peace" between possibly warring factions. Integration takes more effort. (Examples: the Sun and Pluto; the Sun and Neptune; the Sun and Saturn; the Moon and Mars; the Moon and Saturn; the Moon and Uranus.)

For fullest information, however, you would also consider the nature of the sign or signs and house or houses in which the two planets are placed. Since the two planets are close, they will most often be in the same sign and house, but not always.

How close together should the planets be for this aspect to be in effect? In this report, the value is eight degrees: two bodies with less than eight degrees between them have their natures unified. The closer together they are, the stronger the aspect.

For those who like to know the jargon, the unifying aspect is called a "conjunction." The combined planets are said to be "conjunct," as in "Venus is conjunct Mars." If the planets were at the same degree and minute of the same sign, they would be called "exactly conjunct." The maximum amount that the actual separation can differ from the ideal (zero degrees) is called the "orb." Astrologers would say that this report allows an eight degree orb for conjunctions.

Cooperative Aspects

A cooperative aspect between two planets means that they support and reinforce each other, even if their natures would not normally work together. Cooperative aspects tend not be noticed. The planets are getting along fine, everything is going smoothly--there is nothing to draw attention. There is a possibility, however, that the planets will encourage each other so much that they go to excess. You may overdo or over-indulge in some area or areas related to the natures of the planets in aspect. Awareness of the cooperative aspects in your chart can aid you in using their strengths, and moderating any excesses.

You may also see cooperative aspects called "harmonious" or "soft." There are two such aspects: 60 degrees and 120 degrees. Remember that an aspect occurs when two planets are separated by a specific number of degrees, or close to it. Planets that are from 57 to 63 degrees apart, or from 114 to 126 degrees apart are in harmony. Note that the 120 degree aspect has a wider "orb" (six degrees) than the 60 degree aspect (three degrees).

The astrological name for the 60 degree aspect is "sextile;" the 120 degree aspect is called a "trine." Unlike the situation with "conjunct/conjunction," the noun, adjective, and verb forms of these words are the same. One may say "Mercury is trine Pluto" or "Mercury trines Pluto" or "there is a trine between Mercury and Pluto."

Challenging Aspects

Challenging aspects put the natures of the planets involved at odds with one another. There is tension between them: you must work to make room for differing drives, for ambivalent needs. But we call them "challenging" rather than "conflicting" or "adverse" because they are not automatically a problem. If you meet the challenge of integrating these aspects, they are a major source of energy. A positively expressed challenging aspect can be a powerful force in your life.

These aspects are often called "hard," and some astrologers do use the term "conflicted." There are three such aspects: 90 degrees, 150 degrees, and 180 degrees. The name for the 90 degree aspect is the "square," and we use a six degree orb for it. That is, planets between 84 and 96 degrees apart in the circle are square. The verb, adjective, and noun forms are the same. The name for the 180 degree aspect is "opposition." It also has a six degree orb: planets between 174 and 180 degrees apart (remember 180 is the largest possible separation) are in opposition. The verb form is "oppose," as in "the Sun opposes Jupiter." The adjective form is "opposite," as in "the Sun is opposite Jupiter." The name for the 150 degree aspect is "quincunx," and we use a three degree orb in this report: planets from 147 to 153 degrees apart are quincunx each other. The noun, adjective, and verb forms are the same. This last aspect is also called an "inconjunct."

The Sun makes a unifying aspect to Venus

Charm may be your middle name. You can be sweet, likable, courteous, pleasant, graceful and kind. You want to enjoy life and other people and strive to maintain harmony and ease. You are likely to be quite attractive to others.

If overdone, this theme could lead to flattery or a lack of sincerity. Style might be valued over substance. If appearances wield the power, "looking good" becomes everything.

Your feeling for beauty might be directed into any form of artistic creativity. You could be a romanticist, artist, poet, etc. Or, you may seek gratification through the physical senses and indulging the appetites. (A love of luxury and pleasure could be overdone.) In moderation, you appreciate aesthetics and enjoy the material world.

Other people's opinions may affect your self-esteem. You may need to be liked. You could invest your ego in a partner, depending on him/her for attention, support and affection. If this other-directed focus is carried too far, you may feel "you're nobody till somebody loves you."

Your strengths are a skill at pleasing yourself and others, artistic/aesthetic talents, an enjoyment of material possessions and pleasures, plus a gratifying capacity for understanding what others (especially of the opposite sex) want.

The Sun makes a cooperative aspect to Jupiter

You have a natural urge to expand, to do more, higher, better, faster in life. Your vitality is probably strong and you tend toward optimism. You believe in yourself and your capacities and are probably willing to take risks. Your openness to opportunities could seem lucky to others.

Your fun-loving spirit could be marked; you have a talent for joy and humor. You enjoy excitement and could be attracted to big dreams, schemes and ideas. Promotional abilities are likely; you could have talent for sales, persuasion, or advertising. You may enjoy travel and are likely to thirst after more and more knowledge (especially about religious/philosophical matters).

Your urge for an adrenaline rush may sometimes carry you to extremes; moderation does not come easily. You might sometimes feel: "Excess is not nearly enough!" Your desire to shine, to be noticed, to live fully, to celebrate life, to play, to expand, and to be broadened by life could be overdone.

Your enthusiasm easily sweeps others along. You are willing to plunge wholeheartedly into life and other people enjoy your joie de vivre.

The Sun makes a challenging aspect to Saturn

You can achieve something noteworthy if you get out of your own way. You have the potential to ground your creativity and to work your way to a position of authority or expertise.

You are likely to feel pulled between very different drives in your nature: your cheerful, confident side versus your somber, cautious side; your extroverted, outgoing side versus your inhibited, self-critical side and your arrogant "royal" side versus your humble, self-effacing tendencies. You may also experience some tension between love and work--relationship desires competing with achievement needs.

By choosing appropriate times and places to express each need, you can be highly effective and live a fuller, richer life. Instead of doubting yourself, criticizing your needs, or being defensive because you fear rejection, you can use your practical side to break your goals into manageable pieces and work your way up the ladder of success a step at a time. If you fall down, you can always get up again. You are potentially indefatigable. Success experiences will build your self-assurance.

Instead of feeling love takes you away from work (or vice versa), you may commit to spending a certain amount of time/energy on each area and carry through as promised. Instead of feeling guilty about one because you are thinking of the other, you focus fully and joyously on loving (when appropriate) and on productive achievement (at the right time and place).

You can love responsibly, seriously, with a deep commitment and you can achieve with joy, zest and enthusiasm.

The Sun makes a cooperative aspect to Neptune

Your creative capacities are strongly marked. You may have considerable artistic/aesthetic talent and could achieve recognition through your handling of beauty. You may have high ability in the visual arts, perhaps attracted to filmmaking or similar ventures. You might exhibit dramatic instincts, with a flair for magic, promotion, illusions, sales or other persuasive fields where you sway people emotionally.

Idealism is likely to color your love relationships. You may seek (and "see") the best in your partners and children. If overdone, you could be disillusioned when the fantasy fails and the people you adore prove to be only too human and fallible. In moderation, this quality allows you to visualize the highest potential of those you love, support and praise their assets, and generally encourage positive outcomes.

Potentially you can optimally blend pride and humility. You understand the necessity of good self-esteem and appreciating your own capabilities, but you also are tuned into the Universe, sensing the oneness of life and your place in a larger Whole. The blend allows you to both lead and follow, in a complex, graceful dance of appropriateness.

Joy, splendor, aesthetics, creativity and charisma are likely assets. You bring dreams to vivid life, inspiring others with their beauty.

The Moon makes a challenging aspect to Mercury

You may feel torn between logic and emotions or thinking and feeling. Your gut may argue with your head. If neediness, vulnerability or sensitivity overwhelms your rational side, misunderstandings with others are possible. You may take things too personally on occasion.

You can be quite clever and shrewd, but might also be high strung and restless. You tend to respond to many different stimuli and could sometimes feel bombarded by the world.

Conflicts with family members are possible, particularly if insecurities get in the way. You communicate well when feeling safe, but may clam up (or chatter as a protective distraction) when you feel threatened or intellectually unclear (deluged by feelings).

When you bring together your emotional and rational sides, you can explain touchy issues well and communicate skillfully in the realm of feelings. You may be quite glib, empathic and helpful.

The Moon makes a cooperative aspect to Jupiter

You are able to blend nurturing needs and an adventurous spirit. Your warmth, caring, protectiveness and desire for emotional security reinforce and assist your quest for meaning and search for something higher in life. Your optimism, faith, values and ideas feed and further your desire for emotional connections to others.

You may have skill in dealing with people as you can combine emotional sensitivity with intellectual curiosity. You tend to be good-natured, friendly and helpful. You are likely to be sympathetic to others and encourage them to see and work for the best in life. You have a knack for accentuating the positive.

Your interests are apt to be broad and you may be well informed in a wide variety of areas. You are drawn to both the familiar and the foreign or faraway. Your home may be enhanced through other cultures, intellectual stimulation, religion, philosophy or any spiritual path. Your secure emotional foundation encourages you to explore, adventure and seek exciting, broadening experiences in the world. You can maintain roots while wandering the world, and make a home for yourself in the midst of exploring.

The Moon makes a challenging aspect to Saturn

You are apt to feel some degree of tension between your emotional needs and your focus on getting the job done. You may feel torn between home and family needs versus your professional role. You could vacillate between dominance and dependency, between compassion and hard-nosed realism. You are learning to compromise, to keep room for both sides.

Tension between your parents is a real possibility. They might have clashed over work issues, emotional needs or been estranged from each other. They might have fostered too much dependency or not nurtured well, perhaps pushing too hard for you to be strong and cope from a very young age. As a result, you could have some lingering insecurity about getting what you want in life. You might be afraid to be vulnerable, not trusting others to be there for you emotionally or demanding unqualified love and acceptance from others (the unconditional support you always wanted from Mom and Dad and didn't get). You may be overly susceptible to guilt or feelings of responsibility for those closest to you. You might avoid emotional matters, feeling that is the best way to maintain control. You could be touchy, moody, suspicious or feel that real intimacy eludes you. Since you tend to be serious, depression or inhibition is possible.

The challenge is to constructively blend your emotional and pragmatic nature, not denying either one, but incorporating both into life. By blending caring with competence, you can be productive as well as emotionally close; can keep room for emotional connections along with achievement.

The Moon makes a unifying aspect to Pluto

Your emotions are deep and strong, but rarely revealed upon the surface. Because you feel so intensely, you may strive to maintain control through secrecy or even manipulation. Your feelings may seem overwhelming. Emotional fanaticism is possible; unconscious energies might dominate your psyche. You can, however, be incredibly loyal, quite psychic and even prophetic.

You first experienced emotional intensity in the relationship with your mother or mother figure. She may have been powerful, manipulative, compulsive, healing, controlling, abusive, competitive, possessive, addicted or empathic. The bonds between you may be very difficult to break; a symbiotic association is possible. The tendency is to experience the relationship as very good or very bad. You might also fall into power struggles with other women. You are apt to inspire intense emotional interchanges.

Your powerful feelings can be used as a force for transforming your life. You may have to separate nurturance from control; they are easily mixed in your psyche. You might link pain and healing, or hurting and then being taken care of. Sex could be confused with nurturing. If emotions (yours or someone else's) seem overwhelming, emotional blackmail is a possibility. You are likely to be alert to clues, innuendoes, hints, and might hear preferences as demands. You can be quite canny and watchful (even suspicious).

When positively directed, you are capable of deep commitment, incredible healing, intuitive insights and profound transformations. You are willing to face the dark side of the psyche and do what is necessary to turn negatives into positives.

Mercury makes a challenging aspect to Jupiter

Mental restlessness is likely and you may desire to be on the move, traveling, as well. Your mind is apt to be pulled in many different directions, and you may have trouble finding a focus on occasion. You could feel torn between the details and the overview; between the near-at-hand and faraway or between information versus wisdom. You seek constant mental expansion and activity.

Truth (or morality, ethics, religion) may be an issue in your life. Perhaps you are ruthlessly blunt ("honesty at all costs") or have tendencies toward the con artist--pitching pipe dreams--or using truth for one's own ends in other ways. Perhaps you see so many sides to "truth," that you have trouble believing any one. Your rational side may war with your desire for an absolute spiritual, religious or philosophical faith.

Your optimism and desire to know and understand everything could lead you to sometimes jump to conclusions, exaggerate, speak too quickly or see only the positive potentials.

You probably have talent for any communication fields, including broadcasting, journalism, sales, media work, promotion, etc. Your restlessness and need for variety must have a constructive outlet in life. You can learn a great deal, and teach and inspire others as well!

Mercury makes a cooperative aspect to Saturn

Your thinking can be quite organized, practical and systematic. You deal well with lists and may have business acumen. You can be quite analytical, methodical and precise with language and thinking. You have a good sense of appropriateness and can operate well in formal settings. Your judgment tends to be steady and your concentration good.

Verbal skills, finger dexterity, adaptability, thinking, relatives, or communicating may contribute to your professional achievements. You are willing to put effort and discipline into mental pursuits.

Your memory could be good. You are likely to be most interested in practical matters which can further your career. Contacts and those you know might be of assistance to your vocationally.

Logic and rationality are accentuated in this combination. You are able to be objective, sensible and unmoved by emotions. (If overdone, this quality could seem too dry, humorless or literal-minded.) You have the instincts of a scientist: check observations against reality and test ideas before accepting them.

Venus makes a cooperative aspect to Jupiter

You are probably friendly, popular and sociable. Optimistic, you have a knack for accentuating the positive--in yourself, in others and in life. Your values are likely to encourage relationships. You gain pleasure in seeking the best, the brightest and the most in life.

You are attracted by the finer things in life, and are apt to want material goodies. You might even be overindulgent, extravagant, exaggerative, or expect everything in life to come too easily. Due to your faith and visualizing potential, you could be fortunate in the financial or material realm. Your income might be enhanced through education, travel, religion, ideals, or anything involving broadened horizons. Because you know how and when to recognize and to capitalize on opportunities, you can appear quite lucky.

You need a partner who shares your values. Whether you focus on honesty and sincerity, on spiritual principles, on education, on travel or on some other form of truth seeking, your love relationship must support your quest for meaning in life. This can sometimes lead to expecting too much from a partner, a partner looking to you to be more than human, or to multiple associations ("perhaps the next one will be better"). A shared foundation of trust, appreciation and goals works the best.

Your focus on the best could be a handicap when difficulties must be acknowledged and addressed with patience. Generally, however, you can make the most of your potentials, and turn liabilities into assets.

Venus makes a challenging aspect to Saturn

You are working on the balance between love and work. If you allow one to overwhelm the other, you may feel that worldly success takes you away from personal attachments, or that close associations handicap you in attaining your ambitions. You might feel torn in deciding how much time and energy to devote to a partnership versus a career. Both are essential for you to experience life fully; you cannot sacrifice one for the other.

You must also balance your parental, power-oriented side with your equalitarian instincts. Know when to take charge and when to yield and be a team player. If the desire for control is carried too far, you might take on too much responsibility or authority in love relationships. You might also hold back because of insecurity, be afraid to trust, or fear hurt, rejection or dominance from others. You may push away your gentle, vulnerable side, seeing it as weakness. (Men are inclined to project this softness onto the women in their lives.) With effort and realism, you can create a working environment that supports your interpersonal needs, and emotional attachments that enhance your outer success.

You may also be dealing with tension between ease and effort. Your passive and hardworking sides could be at odds with one another. The challenge is to choose appropriate times and situations for a nose-to-the-grindstone approach and equally appropriate times and situations to relax and kick back. Duty and pleasure both have a place in life.

Monetary challenges are possible. One extreme is feeling you must control everything about your financial situation and not trusting the world or others to give to you materially. You may believe you have to work very hard to make a living, or struggle to maintain anything that you have. The other extreme is feeling that your earning capacity is limited, inhibited or blocked in some fashion. Perhaps the reality (or perceived reality) of your finances is frustrating. By expecting the worst (an unconscious script of poverty, deprivation or financial oppression), you may set yourself up for more problems. This pattern indicates that monetary pragmatism is essential. Building resources slowly and steadily is advisable (no big gambles). Face facts about your finances, avoiding the extremes of too much (or too little) responsibility, power and control over the material realm. You are neither totally at the mercy of the universe, nor totally in charge financially. The more grounded and sensible you are, the better you will do.

You can be quite practical, helpful, responsible and dedicated. You could be a real "salt of the earth" type.

Venus makes a cooperative aspect to Neptune

Love, beauty, grace, harmony and charm are highlighted in your nature. Artistic talent is quite likely. You have a flair for beauty which might manifest in many different forms. You are drawn to aesthetics, to what is lovely in life.

With a preference for ease and "niceness," you might sometimes succumb to seeking the "easy" route. Laziness, passivity, little white lies, and trying to avoid unpleasantness are possible. You could focus on what is pretty, and deny (or run away from) life's less attractive facets. You have talent for making life more beautiful, but must realize that not everything in life is lovely.

You are likely to accent the positive in your love relationships. You tend to focus on the Higher Self (best potential) within the people you care about, and will willingly contribute to enhancing their abilities. At times, you might carry the rose-colored glasses too far and be susceptible to disappointment (people aren't perfect) or being taken advantage of by those you idolize. Generally, you can be quite romantic and idealistic. You want to create the perfect love.

You can be quite compassionate and sensitive. If overdone, this could lead you to entanglement in savior/victim associations. Meditation, spiritual studies, artistic endeavors, mysticism and involvement with nature offer helpful avenues for your yearning, seeking, searching side that needs inspiration.

Mars makes a unifying aspect to Neptune

You can be inspired, compassionate and mystical. You may express grace in action or beauty in motion (through your own appearance or dancing, diving, skating, skiing, etc.). You could be charismatic and magnetic.

Your identity is tied to the quest for infinite love and beauty. You need a sense of mission or service. If you allow your transcendent focus to overwhelm your personal needs, you could feel weak, paralyzed, victimized, martyred, or unable to cope. Your energy might be diffused. You could be too sensitive, picking up other's emotions and/or illnesses or susceptible to allergies, drug problems, and infections. You may be reluctant to fight for yourself, to defend your own rights. You could deny your anger or your sexuality, or turn personal drives (including sexuality) into an addiction. You might rationalize, or take covert rather than direct action. You could chase rainbows or run in circles, misdirecting your activity. Spirituality could be misdefined as self-denial.

If you overpersonalize your mission, you may believe you have a right to whatever you want. You could idolize freedom, self-expression or doing your own thing.

You are working on the balance between self-assertion and self-sacrifice, between action and submission, between personal wants and humanity's needs, between idealized fantasies and reality. The challenge is to achieve a sense of flowing, mystical union with something infinitely beautiful or compassionate without losing a sense of yourself. Spiritual or artistic activities which are self-expressive allow you to feed your inner essence while still contributing more grace, harmony and love to the world.

Jupiter makes a challenging aspect to Saturn

You can accomplish a great deal, but may feel pulled in different directions. At times, you might plunge into new projects and challenges before completing and consolidating old ones. Or, you might hold back from what you truly can do, because your standards are too demanding or perfectionistic ("If I can't do it perfectly, I won't do it at all"). Establish clear priorities about what matters most to you so you can allocate your energies appropriately. Break your goals down into bite-sized steps so that you do not feel overwhelmed, but can labor incrementally toward a larger vision.

You are working on the combination of expansion and contraction. Fluctuation is possible, if you swing from one extreme to the other. With attention and focus, you can choose when to reach out and begin new possibilities and when to ground and solidify what you already have. Making the best of both means you can be successful, more consistent, resilient and productive.

You may also experience some tension in regard to beliefs, values, moral principles and religious or spiritual views. Conflict with a father (or father figure) over world views, philosophy, ethics or ideals is possible. You must make peace between your visionary, optimistic, idealistic side and your pragmatic, cautious, realistic side. Don't let faith battle fear, but do be sure your sense of meaning and understanding of life's purpose is grounded in experience and practicalities.

Because you are willing to learn from experience, you can become a practical idealist, a realistic mystic, someone who makes dreams come true!

Jupiter makes a unifying aspect to Neptune

You have a special yearning for the unseen, the mystical, the pure and the visionary. You may be drawn to spiritual activities, concerned with wider truths, or idealistic images. You are seeking the ecstasy of merging with the sublime in life.

You could be quite optimistic and may tend to see only the best. You might gamble, speculate or take excessive risks because you trust too much in "happily ever after." You could be too gullible, escapist, naive, suggestible, altruistic, or superstitious, preferring to believe only in goodness. You might live in an ivory tower, or be lost, aimless, disoriented because you are often moved to take in too much. Mutable and flexible, you may have a talent for foreign languages, an ear for accents, or an eye for images and imagery. You are likely to be strongly drawn by grace, beauty and art. You could become scattered, trying to do and understand everything. You want to experience the sublime, but must practice staying grounded as even the sublime has earthly foundations. Keeping clear priorities is vital; a value hierarchy will help you make choices and be less likely to overextend yourself.

You could put your faith in education, freedom, philosophy, travel, religion, escapism, beauty or dreams. You might idealize sacrifice or martyrdom. You could easily try to do too much for other people. You can be quite empathic and inspired. You are willing to work for the good of all (without personal gain). Castles in the air comes naturally to you. You probably have a rich fantasy life and may be a real or armchair traveler.

You tend to think in terms of the big picture, the broad overview, and could get carried away with generalizations or assumptions. Sometimes you believe that what should be true is true.

You are capable of a strong faith, a dedicated spiritual search. You can touch the cosmos through devotion, rapture and a quest for ultimate perfection.

(This aspect occurs about every 13 years.)

Uranus makes a challenging aspect to Pluto

With an inner core of iron, you can be quite determined, deeply defiant, loyal, passionate, contrary, and extremist. People may find you hard to predict as you can be intensely emotional one moment and coolly objective the next.

You might seek power (perhaps to promote equal opportunity). You may not trust groups and may want to know the inner workings of things, particularly politics and the origins and lines of power. You could excel at collective bargaining and might want to share any power which exists.

You may focus and concentrate group energy, or consider a group more important than a partner. You might resist commitment (and even power) because you fear being trapped, controlled or hemmed in. You could seek loopholes, expose secrets and break down stereotypes.

You may feel torn between enduring, keeping on and hanging on, versus breaking loose, breaking free and breaking out. Your desire to finish up and complete projects could vie with your urge to change and take up a new challenge. Secrecy and openness may compete within your psyche until you find ways to compromise or take turns between them as appropriate.

Your rebellious, recalcitrant side might challenge or resist effective dealings with sexuality, shared finances, or issues of addiction. Alternately, your open-mindedness could be valuable. Rather than condemning, you can examine and contemplate different ways of dealing with the sensual, sexual, monetary world. You may be psychic and could have sudden flashes of revelation and insight, transforming your understanding of the world and perhaps the world itself.

The Sun is on the Midheaven

Your self-esteem is tied to your sense of authority and your handling of reality and responsibilities. You may take pride in (or be ashamed of) your authority, power role or practicality. You probably feel most energized when in charge, authoritative, realistic and sensible.

You can be a highly creative leader. You may take risks in your dealing with authority figures. You could get involved with charismatic (or egotistical) bosses or be a dynamic, magnetic leader yourself. Love and playfulness may bring you authority (or you may try to dominate loved ones). You can play with power (be fun-loving as an authority).

Your career aspirations are mixed with your self-esteem. You may be proud (or ashamed of) your career, but feel revitalized when shining through your work. Your inner child (playful, fun-loving spirit) can advance your career aspirations.

Creative careers come naturally to you. You want to be a star on the job and need excitement in your work. You can turn work into play, or work in fields of recreation. You may be willing to speculate in or for your career and will take risks in developing your expertise.

Your status affects your self-esteem. You want to be proud of your place in society and may feel most vital and alive when in a high position.

Venus is on the Midheaven

You may find pleasure in authority or power. Power could give you a sense of comfort or ease. You may seek power through grace, beauty, diplomacy or sweetness. Rules, regulations, and structure may give you a sense of comfort or stability. You are likely to enjoy status, to like being at the top.

You may look to your work for pleasure. Your career might involve sensuality. You may want a comfortable and/or easy job. Your career could involve beauty or money. Your vocational aspirations are probably tied to an urge for stability, predictability, grace, harmony or gratification.

You can be practical about pleasures. You are working on the balance between effort and ease and might sometimes inhibit your pleasures (feeling you don't deserve to relax or haven't "earned" it yet) or expect even work to be consistently gratifying and easy. With integration, you can enjoy what you do, finding gratification in creating tangible results as well as enjoying the sensual, financial and material world.

Saturn is on the Descendant

You are dealing with issues of authority, power, limits, anxiety, control, fear, time, responsibility and competence in relationships. One option is delaying relationships for fear of being controlled, hurt, put-down or rejected. Another choice is to marry a "father figure"--someone who seems strong, responsible, stable, dependable and usually ends up dominating, dictatorial and demanding. Or, you may unconsciously adopt the "father" role and attract people who want to lay all their burdens on your shoulder and hand the responsibility for their lives over to you.

The key issue is shared responsibility and competence. You may work with people--either a people-oriented professions (e.g., counseling, consulting, personnel, etc.) or literally sharing a job or tasks with a partner. This helps to channel the judgmental, flaw-finding focus into the physical tasks, rather than into picking one another apart as people. You may also work at your relationships, seeking to constantly improve, strengthen and lengthen your commitments. As long as both people are motivated in this direction, it works well. You can be quite willing to be practical and realistic about relationship issues, facing facts squarely and willing to work at making things better.

CONCLUSION

Astrology is not about destiny, or meeting with a fate over which you have no control. It's about knowledge and choices. It's about personal empowerment - really understanding yourself and using that knowledge to achieve true balance in your life.

With this report, you have learned that you are much more than just a sun sign. You are a truly unique individual, unlike anyone else you know. Your personal horoscope provides you with the information that you need to help you make better decisions, understand the dynamics of your relationships, determine your financial destiny and much more. With astrology's insights, you can create the life you have only dreamed about.

Challenging Aspect: Progressed Saturn to Birth Moon
From birth to February 13, 2008

This long-term pattern suggests an enduring focus on balancing domestic duties with outer-world responsibilities. You may feel torn between time and energy devoted to home and family versus time and energy spent pursuing a career or contribution to society. Compassion could vie with the bottom line, or dependency needs be at odds with a drive for power, authority and control. Parental imprints are strong and it could prove valuable to sort out what you really want to keep emotionally from your parents. You could easily slip into too much guilt, carrying the load, being overly serious or too parental. The best of this combination is strong, reliable, protective, dedicated to family, able to nurture and be nurtured as well as making a practical contribution to the world at large.

Cooperative Aspect: Progressed Saturn to Birth Mercury
From July 27, 1979 to June 29, 2016

This pattern lasts for years and indicates an ongoing potential of using your mind (or hands or communication skills) as a major vocational resource. Lightness, dexterity, objectivity, or mental abilities could contribute to your career. And your common sense, reliability and realism is likely to further your gathering of knowledge and ability to put it to use in the world.

Challenging Aspect: Progressed Sun to Progressed Ascendant
From October 10, 1986 to May 16, 2012

Gaining respect is important now. You need positive feedback. An overdone approach could lead others to see you as too arrogant or ambitious, but a wise use of your dramatic instincts, persuasive skills, and ability to amuse and motivate others will lead to favorable attention. Ego issues or an addiction to excitement could arise. Playing enough (but not too much) is vital. Seek out constructive avenues to take risks, be more creative, achieve recognition, and gain notice from the world.

Transiting Neptune in the 6th House
From November 25, 1992 to March 13, 2005

Your sense of the ideal and your quest for perfection may be turned toward your job during the transit of Neptune through your Sixth House. It's wonderful and desirable to have work that you love, but every job involves some aspects that you'd rather not have to do, but nevertheless they must be done. Being out of touch with that fact could cause you to job-hop in search of the ideal, or to stay put out of security needs and project your dissatisfaction into little problems with co-workers or employers. An important aspect of job satisfaction, especially during this transit, is to look beyond the immediate tasks to be done to the ultimate service that is being performed for others. Neptune is much more favorable to work that you perform as a service, than to work that you perform merely for your own benefit. If you are experiencing disappointment in your work, an attitude shift to its higher purpose may greatly improve your performance, your enjoyment and your relationships with co-workers.

This is also the house of health, and Neptune's transit is a time that calls for extra attention to your physical well-being. Be especially careful of the use of drugs or alcohol, for you may be more prone to toxins now, and negative forms of escapism will only worsen any problems you may have. Such things as allergy flare-ups, or perhaps spiritual ideals, could lead you to explore new dietary regimens. Or perhaps you will become involved in caring for the sick. Medical miracles could be experienced through spiritual healing.

Transiting Uranus in the 7th House From January 30, 2000 to May 14, 2005

Uranus transiting the Seventh House has been associated with divorce, and it is true that the "upset" of this transit could be in your marriage or business partnership, if you've been suppressing a lot of tension in past years. Sometimes people stay together for a long time because of financial security or "for the sake of the children." This is a time when it will be much more difficult for you to ignore your dissatisfactions. If, on the other hand, your relationship is basically a good one, it will survive. Still, this is a time of change. If you find your relationship somewhat stifling, examine it carefully before you threaten it. The temporal excitement and escape offered by a new attraction, for example, could cause you to lose someone very important to you. Better to take the initiative to creatively introduce a little excitement and variety into your existing partnership.

Another possibility is that this transit represents your dogged determination to over control your partner, when it seems that he or she is attempting to move toward greater freedom. Remember, it is your Uranus transit! Examine whether it might be your own suppressed need for more space that is causing to you unconsciously motivate your partner to distance from you. Any good relationship needs freedom for each person to express his or her own individuality. Sometimes you best hold on by letting go.

Another possibility: this is also the House of competitors (in classical astrological terms, "open enemies"). If you are involved in competition or conflict, it could be particularly tense now. Examine why you are doing whatever it is you are doing. If it's a game, are you enjoying it? If it's a legal matter, is it really worth pursuing? You may need to change your approach, your strategy, your attitude.

In any of your relationships—intimate partners, business colleagues or competitors—fair play is important. Be open to individual differences and respectful of others' needs, just as you assert your own. Remember, through any changes that come now, we are in our relationships because we have something important to learn from them.

Transiting Pluto in the 5th House From September 9, 2002 to March 10, 2016

The planet of transformation has now moved into your Fifth House. Here you are likely to test your own sense of power and control by taking risks, perhaps in some form of competition, or by enjoying life to the fullest. These are the years of your life when you are most prone to throw yourself into what you love to do with passion and intensity. You can make a strong statement with any creative work that you do.

One of the creative aspects of the Fifth House is your children. If you have them, be aware that your impact upon them during this transit is very powerful. If you did your Fourth House Pluto transit well, including the resolution of any negative subconscious issues you had with your own parents, you will be better prepared to be a positive role model now. If not, tensions are more likely. In any case, avoid power struggles with your children. Of course you must pay attention, set common sense limits and be there for them when they need you, but always remember that they are not you. Guard against pressuring them to change or conform to the detriment of their own individuality.

Love affairs are also "read" from the Fifth House, and during a Pluto transit, love relationships you may form are likely to seem fated, and to be quite intense and emotional. Again, the extent to which this experience is wonderful or painful may depend upon how successfully you have learned to understand your own subconscious. If it is painful, you need to step back from your emotional high and examine whether this person is really good for you, or is just providing a mirror for some inner garbage you still need to clear out. A good love relationship (existing or new) will probably be strengthened during this period; a bad one is unlikely to survive it.

Challenging Aspect: Progressed Mercury to Birth Venus

From January 18, 2003 to September 24, 2009

There is potential stress between your urge for pleasure and your objective, information-seeking side. Your mind might vie with your senses, intellectual needs competing with physical ones. Conflict is possible with relatives over issues of money, possessions or gratification. Your desire for variety, changes of scene and adaptability may be at odds with a preference for stability and security. Generally, however, this is an easygoing combination that can readily be integrated by making room for both the mental and the material sides of life.

Cooperative Aspect: Progressed Sun to Progressed Jupiter

From July 17, 2003 to January 14, 2006

Emphasized October 14, 2004

Dreams are highlighted. You are likely to be motivated to pursue your ideals with vim, vigor and vitality! Confidence and the willingness to take risks may support your quest for meaning, truth, and personal ideals. Your faith and values may strengthen your creative efforts and your desire to give and receive love.

If the double-fire of these two planets is carried too far, you may overreach or expect more than is possible. If it is positively channeled, you are likely to be full of energy for what you believe in. Your growth goals are strengthened and heightened by your ideals. You believe in yourself and are willing to "go for it" in life. This expansive combination suggests great enthusiasm, optimism and push toward the future. You are ready to do more than you have done before, to expand your boundaries, to increase your largesse in life. You are open to opportunity, so "luck" comes your way.

Challenging Aspect: Progressed Venus to Birth Sun

From December 14, 2003 to August 4, 2005

Sensuality and passion are highlighted. The appetites may be strong, whether expressed primarily through food, smoking, drinking, sensuality or sexuality. You are likely to be drawn toward the finer things in life and your taste may be excellent.

Some ambivalence is suggested, however, in the realm of finances and the pursuit of life's pleasures.

One side of your nature is oriented toward excitement, passion, intensification of emotions, grandstanding, and thrill seeking. Another side wants comfort, ease, predictability, security, and smooth sailing. You may feel torn between consolidation and creative expansion; between enjoying and hanging on to what you have now, versus risking for more in the future. Personal pleasures may need to be balanced against the needs and desires of children (and/or lovers). Constructive alternatives include increased income, sensual satisfaction, fun with kids or creativity, artistic pursuits, grace, charm, and lovability.

Transiting Jupiter in the 2nd House

From June 5, 2004 to November 5, 2004

When Jupiter travels through your Second House, your growth is likely to be focused toward whatever it is that you value or that represents security to you. This could very well mean money or material possessions, so you could effectively promote any opportunities for financial gain. On the other hand, with challenging planetary aspects, you could overdo, causing future problems through extravagance—growing through a hard lesson, one could say. What do you really want in your life? The very best things may be those which no amount of money can buy.

Transiting Saturn in the 12th House

From July 10, 2004 to August 19, 2006

During this period, you are likely to be wanting to make some changes in your life. Perhaps the extreme energy you've put into your professional life in recent years, while rewarding, is beginning to wind down. Somehow it just doesn't give you the inner zip it once did, and you are wondering if you really want to stay on the "fast track" forever. Or, if you were not able to fulfill your goals to your satisfaction during Saturn's transit of your Tenth and Eleventh, by now you probably have an idea what personal boulders were blocking your path. In some cases, this period may require that you make some kind of personal sacrifice, perhaps to take care of a loved one who is ill. Whatever your personal reasons may be, this is a time in which you may feel compelled to finish up things that must be finished. Though you may not be at all clear on just what lies beyond that which you feel obligated to do right now, in some way you are clearing your path so that you can move on again, perhaps in a new direction.

Some withdrawal and introspection is desirable now. You need the inner silence so you can think things through and understand what you want to do, and what changes you need to make. For some this may be a significant transit for becoming more in tune with your spiritual life. As you begin to understand what is happening, take the steps that you must, even if they are difficult. Be patient. And be practical. At the same time, allow your dreams, for changes that you begin to make now are the foundation for those dreams to manifest. This is the end of a cycle, and if something must draw to a close in your life now, it is also a preparation for a new beginning.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Neptune to Birth Jupiter

From July 20, 2004 to January 17, 2005

You are looking for something more in life, and are impatient with the mundane. With optimism high, you are willing to take chances—which is no guarantee that you will win. Don't risk what you can't afford to lose. Be cautious in business or financial deals, and, stay away from drugs or alcohol. On the upside, this is a great time for expanding your knowledge, and that can enhance your life.

Challenging Aspect: Progressed Moon to Progressed Neptune

From August 28, 2004 to October 20, 2004

Feelings are highlighted, with an inward tendency—to feel strongly, but not to reveal much to the world. Psychic ability is possible, but it may not be handled easily, or could sometimes "spill through" in disruptive ways (e.g., being overwhelmed by impressions). Idealism or spiritual or escapist needs might compete with nurturing instincts and could be an issue with your own mother (or mother figure), or with your children or in the home. Running away from unpleasantness might seem the most appealing course. You are likely to seek peace, harmony and serenity, but may sometimes wish and hope for more than is possible, particularly in terms of home and family. It is important to nurture yourself, especially through art, nature or inspirational activities, and to seek faith in a Higher Power.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Neptune to Birth Venus

From August 31, 2004 to December 14, 2004

Ah, love! Perfection is within your grasp...or is it? Romantic illusion may be at an all-time high, but if you get carried away, you may come down with a thump when this transit is over. Be aware. You may be seeing what you want to see, not what really is. In some cases, this transit will reflect you focusing your romantic interest on someone who is completely out of reach—unavailable or unattainable. In other cases the love object could be a "frog," and your Neptunian illusion is the certainty that with your help, the "frog" can truly become the "prince." After the fog lifts, you may find more warts than you counted on. Enjoy the romance, but do take your time—after this transit passes would be best—before you make permanent commitments. Since Venus aspects also sometimes refer to personal finances, you would do well, during this transit, to be wary of lack of clarity within a relationship in which money is involved. Check out a potential financial adviser carefully, and keep track of your own assets. Creative juices flow for artists, musicians, poets, writers, or anyone whose work benefits from imagination.

Transiting Venus in the 1st House

From September 21, 2004 to October 12, 2004

The planet of Love traveling in your First House of basic identity generally finds you feeling at your most outgoing, enthusiastic, and social. If this is not the case, look to the messages of planetary aspects during this period, especially those involving Venus. This could be an excellent time to give a party or attend social events. You are likely to feel more attractive now, or to do something special to improve your personal appearance. In interactions with others, peace is more attractive than confrontation. It's best to seek a harmonious compromise. Take the initiative in romance!

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Uranus to Birth Mars

From September 22, 2004 to December 29, 2004

Your assertive energy and individual expression are challenged by the planet of freedom, rebellion and sudden change. Obviously, this transit calls for lots of flexibility on your part. It could be a very busy time when you feel like the pile of work just never gets done, you don't have any free time, there's no respite. You feel restless, tense, and in need of a break, but are suppressing those feelings and doggedly persisting in your treadmill. Watch out! This is how accidents happen! Severely internalized tensions can also result in health issues that require surgery. Strongly repressed energies of assertion sometimes have a way of attracting angry confrontations from others. Or, you might find yourself losing your patience with others all too easily and popping off with anger and obstinacy when deep down you know you're overreacting. Whoa! That's the bad news, but does this period necessarily mean major problems? No, it does not! It could be a time when you make a creative change in your life and in your work that brings you much needed freedom. It could be a time when you positively assert yourself in ways that are long overdue and improve an existing situation both for yourself and for others. What the Universe is asking you to do, here, is to confront yourself and recognize your own needs to be individual, to be free, to be able to do the things you really like to do, and to be able to stick up for yourself when necessary. Face up to your needs and take positive steps to assert them, and this transit can result in very beneficial and creative changes that will make you feel more alive and free than you've been in a long time.

Transiting Sun in the 3rd House

From October 1, 2004 to November 2, 2004

This is likely to be a very busy month, when you feel energetic and eager to get things done. You may even take a short trip—or two, or three. One way you might especially "shine" during this period is to take a class and learn something new. Other ways could involve communication: write that letter, poem or prose, give a talk, have that heart-to-heart talk you've been wanting to have with someone. The Third House focuses on your neighborhood and your relationships with relatives. What can you do to foster improvements in these matters? Perhaps you could take the lead in a neighborhood project.

Transiting Mercury in the 3rd House

From October 3, 2004 to October 22, 2004

When Mercury travels through its own House, you are more likely to feel its restless and fast moving energy. Depending on planetary aspects during this same period, you may be feeling more than a little distracted, or you just may be busy, busy, busy—rushing from one place to another. Third House matters involve your neighbors, siblings, or relatives, so you interact with them more than usual. Unless other planetary messages at this time stabilize, it's best to spend this period gathering information, rather than attempting to finalize matters, for your decisions may be inclined toward hastiness. Writing is favored.

Transiting Mars in the 3rd House

From October 9, 2004 to November 27, 2004

Mars in your Third House suggests themes of conflicts with neighbors or relatives—or energetically working together with them. You might argue about your ideas, or effectively sell your ideas. New ideas abound, but you might skip over the details. Whether you are more inclined to be merely assertive or downright pushy may be more reflected in your planetary aspects of this time than Mars in the Third, alone, would indicate. Accent the most positive expression of the messages of those aspects. Take the lead, but respect the opinions of others.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Mars to Birth Sun

From October 9, 2004 to October 13, 2004

Emphasized October 11, 2004

Energy is high today. Keep active. Dealings with others may test you. Impatience could lead to conflict. Assert yourself, but do so with consideration, tact and respect for others. Your endurance is good today. Competitive urges are heightened—and you can win, if you keep your cool.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Mercury to Birth Pluto

From October 9, 2004 to October 11, 2004

Deep thinking is required today. Something must be confronted, or a decision or commitment made. Ambiguity just won't work. You could feel stressed, or even irritable, but it will be a big relief when that thorny issue is resolved. Say or decide what you must, but try not to come on like a "heavy." In listening, be alert for what is implied, as well as what is stated directly. Smile, both for you and others. Avoid manipulating others or allowing yourself to be manipulated. This is a good day for investigations, research or uncovering secrets. You won't be content with superficial approaches to anything.

Cooperative Aspect: Transiting Venus to Birth Sun

From October 11, 2004 to October 12, 2004

Emphasized October 11, 2004

A lovely day for love—and that includes you for you. Indulge yourself a bit. Get out with friends and be sociable. Give and receive compliments. Express your tender feelings for a special someone. This is also a good day to choose if you need to make a good impression on someone or ask a favor. Art activities are favored.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Mars to Birth Midheaven

From October 11, 2004 to October 14, 2004

Emphasized October 13, 2004

Your objectives, your career, your goals and your ego are likely in the forefront, and you want to do things your own way. You may need to resolve a conflict between career and home life. Disputes could arise with a parent, or with your boss. It's probably best to clear the air honestly and forthrightly, with respect for the other's views. Suppressing the tension will only table it to erupt later, in a less favorable way. If you choose to table the discussion for a calmer transit, expend today's energy in independent work or physical activity.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Mercury to Birth Uranus

From October 11, 2004 to October 12, 2004

Emphasized October 12, 2004

Bright ideas come in a flash! You're mentally quick, more clever than usual. Try a new approach. What is unorthodox could be the key to discovery. If you are bored, blocked or too confined today, your unproductive outlet could be tension or disputes. It's likely a fast-paced day in which a great deal of flexibility is needed, or you may end up feeling frazzled and scattered. Take care about being too quick, or you could trip over feet or tongue. Try to take a break from normal routine and explore something new and interesting. Get out and around, or stay in and "surf" the Internet.

Transiting Venus in the 2nd House

From October 12, 2004 to November 4, 2004

Second House matters include your personal possessions, and if you're spending money this month, you're likely to be most attracted to luxury items or things that increase your personal attractiveness or improve your social status. Unless planetary aspects during this time contradict, Venus in the Second is generally a good indicator for financial negotiations, because you can make your position attractive. Charm sells!

Cooperative Aspect: Transiting Venus to Birth Midheaven

From October 12, 2004 to October 13, 2004

Emphasized October 12, 2004

This can be a very productive day for those whose careers are involved with creativity, art, beauty or entertainment. Charm can further your professional ambitions. In any case, it's a good day to beautify your surroundings or attend artistic events. Sociable and amorous intents are also enhanced. You feel affectionate and are able to express your feelings more easily. Because of this, if you should be experiencing any longer term difficulty in a relationship, this is a day in which you may be able to improve things.

Cooperative Aspect: Transiting Venus to Birth Venus

From October 13, 2004 to October 14, 2004

Emphasized October 13, 2004

If the themes of other more challenging ones dominate your attention, you may scarcely notice this one. Yet this is a day that, relative to what else may be going on, is most likely easy and pleasant. Casual sociability with others is favored. You may share sentimentality, nostalgia or sensuality with loved ones. Enjoy art activities, music or the beauty of nature.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting New Moon to Birth Uranus

October 13, 2004

Illuminated during this period are your capacities to express your individuality, your originality, your freedom urges, and your ability to deal with change. Change is in the air—perhaps sudden and unexpected. Be prepared to be flexible. You may precipitate or attract change because you are feeling restless, and wish to be free of something or someone. Innovation attracts you, and you may be inclined to be a bit reckless. If you are experiencing excitement and joy, it is a sign that you are flowing creatively with the changes within. If you are experiencing tension, you are probably suppressing, denying or resisting changes that you should make. Explore and experiment with new ways of thinking and behaving. Create new freshness in your life—but do so in a manner that is considerate of those with whom you are emotionally involved, for they may not understand you and may resist the changes.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Mars to Birth Venus

From October 13, 2004 to October 16, 2004

Emphasized October 15, 2004

The urge is to act—now—in most anything you enjoy. In a love, you likely to be more geared for sex than romance. With a willing partner in a similar mood, it's passionate. If your partner is not in the mood, balance may be necessary. Try tenderness. Creative artists can make this day a very productive one.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Sun to Birth Pluto

From October 13, 2004 to October 15, 2004

Emphasized October 14, 2004

You could be confronted with a mini-crisis—anything from pressure from the boss to a machine that breaks, forcing you to stop and fix it. Issues of power and control may emerge. You could be challenged to defend your ideas or your past actions. You could be forced to take a hard look at yourself in terms of time management or some other issue of self-mastery. This could be a day in which an ongoing major issue, which is reflected by your long-term transits, is triggered. So be sure to reread them, too, in order to put your anticipation (or hindsight) of this day in context. If you experience a power struggle or other crisis today, consider it as a test, or as a lesson from which you are supposed to derive insight into a change that you need to make. Claim your inner power to do what you must do, without being domineering over others. Let go of what you must, and you can feel a great sense of release, and an increase in your inner strength.

Transiting New Moon (Eclipse) in the 3rd

October 13, 2004

Matters of your third house include your communications with others, especially with those who are part of your daily life, and your movements and activities in your neighborhood and surrounding area. Matters of education may be of concern, particularly pre-college or vocational education. Other issues may involve your relationships with siblings or other relatives. The New Moon is a time of beginnings, of fresh new starts. It is a time when it would be well to examine your feelings about the affairs of your third house. If there is something you could do to improve yourself here, do it! Take a course. Study a new subject or skill. If there is someone with whom you need to communicate, take the initiative. Don't put it off any longer. Write that letter, or make that phone call, or go to see that person.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting New Moon to Birth Pluto

October 13, 2004

The focus during this period is on transformative change, and you are more than likely to be emotionally involved in whatever change is going on, perhaps to the point of an almost compulsive attention. In relating to others, you are in no mood to give ground, and for this reason power/control struggles are possible. Try to avoid this—especially precipitating, or falling victim to, emotional manipulations. In conflict, think of the other person as a mirror of yourself, and look in that mirror to see what is really going on with you. You have the courage, now, to face that and learn from it. Change is inevitable. Don't let it happen to you. Look inside and know what you really want, and then go after it, with consideration for others who may be involved.

Unifying Aspect: Transiting Venus to Birth Jupiter

From October 14, 2004 to October 15, 2004

Emphasized October 14, 2004

This is a "best day" for pleasure-seeking, social occasions, romance, financial interests or investments, artistic endeavors, taking a vacation—or perhaps just a bit of self-indulgence. At its worst this is still a day when you should be able to find time for a pleasant respite from your daily routine. If you are planning a wedding or special celebration, this should be an excellent time for it. People will respond to you because you are feeling so warm and friendly.

Cooperative Aspect: Progressed Moon to Birth Sun

From October 15, 2004 to December 8, 2004

Emotions are in focus, with a desire for love, admiration and attention. Procreative and creative urges may be strengthened. Family ties are highlighted; emotional warmth may be strong. You could work on the balance between free expression versus holding in rather than risking hurting or being hurt.

You could feel torn between public (on-stage) urges versus the desire for privacy, inwardness, and protection. Parenting instincts are strong, whether you care for others or are cared for. Zest, enthusiasm and confidence are calling for expression along with protectiveness, nurturing and security needs. You may increase your ability to sway people's emotions.

Cooperative Aspect: Transiting Venus to Birth Moon

From October 15, 2004 to October 17, 2004

Today, unless other simultaneous challenging transits contradict, you are likely to be a real "softy," warm and mellow toward everyone. Your feelings of love and affection are strong, so express them. All of your relationships, personal and public, can benefit from your mood today. This would be a good day to entertain friends at home. It's also a good day to sell.

Challenging Aspect: Transiting Venus to Birth Mercury

From October 15, 2004 to October 17, 2004

If you've had tension in a close relationship, this could be a good day to talk things over. It may not be the best day for business negotiations, for you might give too much. Activities that combine the mental and the aesthetic—art, music, theater—are good choices.

INTRODUCTION

Love assuredly makes the world go 'round. Few things are more important than the people to whom we give our hearts. A compatible romantic association helps make life rich, deep, exciting, and rewarding. A stressful relationship makes everything else more tense and uncomfortable.

Astrology can be a tool for understanding ourselves and the people we love. It can offer helpful hints for making the most of our relationships. Think of astrology as like a mirror: a way to reflect back to us our strengths—and weaknesses—in terms of relating. Coming to terms with our conflicts, and learning to overcome them, is much easier if we can be a bit objective in that process. Astrology helps to provide that objective eye.

WHAT ASTROLOGY IS

Astrology is the art of examining the patterns in the heavens and how they correlate with patterns in people's lives and personalities. (If you wish more details about the specific tools of astrology—planets, houses, etc.—please see the book Easy Astrology Guide by Maritha Pottenger, or the first program in this series, The Electronic Astrologer Reveals Your Horoscope)

Astrology uses horoscopes: maps of the sky at the time and place of a person's birth. A complete horoscope requires your exact time (hour and minute), date (month, day and year) and place of birth. (Astrologers use the latitude and longitude of the birthplace in their calculations.) The patterns are so complex that they do not repeat for millions and millions of years. In order to have exactly the same horoscope as you, someone would have to be born the same minute, in the same place, as you were.

WHAT ASTROLOGY CAN (AND CANNOT) DO

Astrology can be a useful tool for understanding yourself better, for learning to make the most of your assets, and to compensate for your liabilities. It can offer similar insights into other people, and thus be useful in relationships.

Astrology cannot find Prince or Princess Charming for you, but it can help you see the strengths and potential weaknesses of someone you are considering. Astrology cannot give you "happily ever after," but it can educate you about making the most of your opportunities, and learning to overcome possible challenges.

Astrology cannot guarantee perfection (or total unhappiness), but it can illustrate the highest (and lowest) potentials within a relationship. Each placement in astrology can be lived on the best (and on the worst) level. That choice is up to the person—free will. But knowing the possibilities can help you recognize how you have chosen, and what some alternatives might be.

Astrology often helps people to see—and use—talents and abilities which they had previously blocked. It is a way of validating your real self and what makes you special. It is a way of supporting the best in your partner, and helping to build on the best between you.

Astrology cannot tell you everything you need to know about a potential relationship, but it can suggest areas which might be sensitive, where communication could be important, where conflicts might arise, and where you and a partner are most likely to support and affirm one another. Astrology can point the way to greater love.

DIVIDING UP THE TERRITORY

One important process that happens in lots of relationships requires a bit of discussion. Most people in relationships practice some kind of division of labor. For example, one partner cooks and the other cleans up. Or, one fixes the car and the other repairs the clothes. And so on. People also often divide up personality traits. For example, perhaps one individual tends to be a star, and his partner tends to be the audience. Perhaps one person is the "strong, silent" type, and the other likes to talk. And so on.

If both people are contented with such a division, and value the partner's contributions as much as their own, it can work very well. All too often, however, one partner feels that he is contributing much more than the other. Or, one partner feels that his personality trait is the "right" one and the other person should change to be like him. This is asking for trouble! Tolerance of each other's differences is vital in any healthy relationship.

Sometimes, this division is not really a planned move. It may even be unconscious. It may go back to childhood roots. Perhaps a woman was raised in a family that said women should not be assertive. Even though her personality style (and horoscope) are forceful, she may hold herself back. Instead, she may be attracted to someone who is very strong, aggressive, driving and demanding. Her partner can live out (but in an excessive way) what she cannot (or will not) allow herself to express.

When people find themselves in relationships which involve extremes of personality or division of labor, it is often a sign that both partners are denying a part of themselves and living it out through the other.

The person who consistently attracts selfish, self-centered, arrogant partners is probably inhibiting his own ability to put the self first, to be clear about what he wants and needs. The person who over and over again attracts partners who are unavailable or unwilling to commit, is probably suppressing his own fear of commitment, desire for freedom, urge to be separate—and instead letting a partner live it out. The person who attracts one dictatorial partner after another is probably denying his own desire for authority and control—and living it out through the partners.

The path to balance is accepting the traits involved and expressing them, in moderation, in one's own life. When we own our own power and use it wisely, we are less attracted to overbearing people. When we acknowledge our own needs for space and have some time for ourselves, we are less likely to fall in love with someone who leaves us.

YOU MAY NOT IDENTIFY WITH EVERYTHING YOU READ

Be aware as you read the interpretations in this report that people often do suppress parts of themselves in relationships—or choose partners to express something they deny within themselves. It is not uncommon for a couple to have a seesaw relationship—each doing an opposite extreme of the other's position. If they see themselves as two halves of a whole, and are happy, all is well. If they feel frustrated by the extremes, it is time to try a middle position!

Sometimes you will identify with the descriptions you read in this report. Sometimes you will feel "We are just the reverse of that!" That is quite possible. But even if you have reversed the roles, the issue is still relevant for you. Finding the balance point—the golden mean between two extremes—is still a challenge in your relationship.

Sometimes your partner may be expressing qualities which your horoscope suggests are yours. Perhaps you have divided up the territory. If you admire those qualities, realize that you too have those abilities! Own your skills and begin to use them.

If you are irritated with your partner's expression, perhaps you two have fallen into a seesaw relationship—between extremes. Each of you needs to find ways to move more to the middle, to each do a little bit (but in moderation—not in an extreme form) of what the other person is doing. The more you can compromise and meet in the middle, the more love will flourish and your relationship will grow.

May the insights within this report prove valuable for you and your partner. May your love life flourish, and happiness be a constant companion as you travel the Road of Life!

interchanges with others. Your natural logic and cautious planning are apt to be oriented toward material success or personal responsibilities. Your thinking is probably well-organized and you may have talent for business. You learn through persistence, dedication and steady progress. You want results from what you know and what you learn (practice must back theory). You can be a bit pessimistic at times (focusing on limits rather than potentials), but strive to attain more intellectual expertise and probably want respect for your mind.

Your Venus is in Sagittarius

You are likely to enjoy travel, philosophy, education or anything which broadens your horizons. You can be friendly, expansive and generous with people. You express affection generously, grandly, extravagantly, confidently. You value honesty and can be quite broad-minded in terms of love. You probably get pleasure from ideals and ideas. Because you enjoy exploring and adventuring, you may have trouble settling down to just one relationship. Your comfort and harmony require the freedom to roam and explore. Your handling of money/possessions is apt to be optimistic (perhaps rash) and could be overextended. You want the best in your love relationships. You and a partner must agree on values and world view; philosophical harmony is essential.

Your Mars is in Aquarius

You are naturally independent, unconventional and unique. Being an individual is essential for you. Your natural inclination is toward tolerance, openness, and a willingness to fight for equal opportunity. Your identity is tied to progress, the future and the new. You may assert yourself eccentrically; you have a strong need for free expression and broad perspectives. You can be quite innovative, creative and even revolutionary. Your passion may sometimes be sidetracked into a detached or scientific perspective. Your physical energy and sexual drive are fed by excitement, freedom, experimentation, and the possibility of something new. You need openness and free flow in your life.

Your Jupiter is in Pisces

You tend to value compassion, empathy, the mystical, and the beautiful. You may believe in a beautiful dream, a utopian ideal. Your ethics/morals may highlight healing, assistance or inspiration. You may idealize art, grace, nature or mysticism. You may improve yourself or grow through a generosity of spirit—through living your ideals. If your utopian side is overdone, you might succumb to escapism or unclear, romanticized attitudes. You tune into the universe through sympathy with the underdog, or anyone who is suffering. Compassion and sensitivity stimulate your sense of faith, bringing you grace. You have a naturally mystical bent, understanding the importance of devotion to an ideal and faith in a Higher Power.

You tend to structure and organize your sense of individuality and may sometimes inhibit your originality and uniqueness. You can be responsible and dedicated in an unusual way. You may be quite committed to social change or progressive principles. You are apt to be logical and rational, with a talent for science. Your career might involve friends, groups, networking, computers or anything on the "cutting edge." You may have talent for organizing people or ideas. You may achieve through groups (teamwork). Too much focus on your drive for individuality and uniqueness could hinder your worldly achievements, but too much concern with what is "proper" could block your independence and inventive spirit. Keep a balance between the old and new, the structured and the free.

- Drew's Sun is in Pisces
- Drew may shine compassionately.
- She is likely to feel proud (or ashamed) of her compassion and ability to empathize with others. Her heart might bleed for the whole world, or she might be so sensitive that she feels every conceivable hurt from others. Her merging instincts affect her self-esteem. She wants to be recognized as giving, sensitive and compassionate. She may want to help and heal anyone who suffers.
- Drew may shine sensitively/dreamily.
- Her intuition (psychic insight) may provide a tool for recognition and (positive or negative) attention from others. She may impress others through dreams, visions, imagery or imagination. She can inspire others through her creativity.
- Drew may shine through dreams/illusions.
- She may achieve center stage through the use of magic, illusions, romance, drama, dreams, visions or "otherworldly" or "invisible" means. She has a touch of magic, a natural stage presence that can sway other people's emotions.
- Drew may seek recognition through spiritual/mystical paths.
- She could be ego-vulnerable in her approach to spiritual, transcendent activities, and might feel torn between ego needs for attention and mystical urges to be absorbed into something Higher. Her personal vitality can be affected by her tendency to "absorb" the trials and tribulations of other people. Her self-expression may be overwhelmed by her vulnerability to the needs, pains and problems of others. She can be psychically "swept away" by someone else's reality.
- Drew can come from her own center and still share a Higher Reality. She may be inspired (or inspire others) through art, music, nature, religion, spiritual ideals. Beauty, art, nature, prayer, meditation and similar activities feed her inner vitality and spirit.

- Drew's Moon is in Cancer
- Drew's feelings are deep and strong, but she is unlikely to reveal them to the world— either to protect herself or to avoid hurting others. She may incline toward nurturing activities, or she could expect others to take care of her. Warm and emotional attachments are a likely focus. Family may be very important. She probably has a strong bond with her mother (but that could be negative or positive). Emotional and physical security are important; she usually hangs on to what she has.

- Drew's Mercury is in Aquarius
- Drew's mind and tongue tend to be unconventional (perhaps to the extreme of sometimes shocking people). She tends to communicate intelligently, objectively, openly and independently. She uses language individualistically (sometimes rebelliously). She thinks for herself and resists other people's answers. She learns best by questioning authority and seeking unique experiences. Her mind is experimental, innovative, and future-oriented; she wants to explore all possibilities, keeping options open. Drew may sometimes leap from idea to idea (an intuitive flash or brainstorm), but may also have fragmented or erratic thinking. She has excellent verbal skills, can be quite objective, and may be able to talk to anyone. She likes to make connections on an individual basis, while still appreciating group process. Her interests are likely to include anything new age, unusual, different, technological or progressive.

Drew's Venus is in Pisces

Drew is likely to enjoy being compassionate, tenderhearted and helpful. She could easily relate to people as either a rescuer or a victim (looking to be taken care of). She may express affection idealistically, romantically, sympathetically, or evasively. Drew has a deep desire for magic and romance in love. A lack of clarity can set her up for disappointment, deception or disillusionment. She finds it easy to idealize love and loved ones. A lack of discrimination could hamper attachments. She gets pleasure from art, nature and inspirational matters. Her handling of money/possessions may be idealistic, dreamy, escapist. She wants a beautiful dream in her love relationships; she yearns for a soul mate. She may be psychically attuned to a partner.

Drew's Mars is in Capricorn

Drew is naturally responsible, productive and conscientious. Being realistic is important to her. She tends to assert herself seriously, cautiously, with authority and discipline. She can be decisive as well as good at planning ahead, blending confident action with competent patience. Drew is working on the balance between self-will and the limits of the world. She shouldn't push too hard or give up too soon. Her energy flows well into achievement and worldly success. Attaining material goals feeds her basic energy. Her sexual drive tends to be controlled, and she may sometimes be inhibited by fear of criticism, hurt, rejection, or being vulnerable to others. Drew can be quite practical about desires. She tends to go after what she wants in a conventional, steady manner.

Drew's Jupiter is in Pisces

Drew tends to value compassion, empathy, the mystical, and the beautiful. She may believe in a beautiful dream, a utopian ideal. Her ethics/morals may highlight healing, assistance or inspiration. She may idealize art, grace, nature or mysticism. Drew may improve herself or grow through a generosity of spirit—through living her ideals. If her utopian side is overdone, she might succumb to escapism or unclear, romanticized attitudes. Drew tunes into the universe through sympathy with the underdog, or anyone who is suffering. She may have to overcome fears of vulnerability or a tendency to constantly play parent in life. Drew can be quite helpful. She may have an urge to control her emotions, but should strive to allow them and to express them (perhaps within a practical structure). Drew's career might involve a family business, the land, the public, women, food, shelter, commodities or anything relating to emotional security.

Drew may be unique in her approach to sharing the sensual/sexual world. She could challenge life intensely, compulsively, powerfully. She may change how she deals with issues of giving to and receiving from others. She seeks freedom through understanding basic motives. When Drew breaks loose, she does so with resourcefulness, strength, and endurance.

Drew has naturally quick wits. She tends to think on her feet and may also be a fast talker. She is probably insatiably curious, with a mind moving in many different directions. Ever eager to learn, Drew can teach others too! Dealing with ideas and information is her forte, and she might be rather dexterous as well. She can be quite casual, flippant and lighthearted, able to help others laugh at life. Drew perceives quickly and easily. Alert and eager for experience, she picks up much from the people and environment right around her. Versatile, she seeks variety and enjoys comparing and contrasting concepts.

	Your Mars is in your 4th	4th
♂		4th
♂		4th
♂	You are likely to be identified (positively or negatively) with your mother or a mother	4th
♂	figure. In some way, the nurturing parent is a role model for handling aggression and	4th
♂	assertion: teaching what to do, or what not to do. Perhaps she was assertive and	4th
♂	independent and taught you the value of courage and personal power. Perhaps she	4th
♂	was aggressive (even violent) and you had to fight to defend your own rights,	4th
♂	developing strength in a less than comfortable manner. Your sense of self is tied to the	4th
♂	home (or homeland) and may be strongly influenced by your mother figure. That early	4th
♂	relationship has a profound impact on your self-confidence, assertiveness, handling of	4th
♂	anger, and capacity to define your identity.	4th
♂		4th
♂	This placement suggests that both you and your nurturing parent are dealing with a	4th
♂	"freedom/closeness dilemma" in terms of the home. On the one hand, you are identified	4th
♂	with the home, really wanting close emotional ties and a safe domestic connection. On	4th
♂	the other hand, you easily feel trapped and tied down there. Thus, you may be restless	4th
♂	and split from home periodically—or satisfy your need for change by remodeling the	4th
♂	home or moving the furniture. (Mars needs action.) You might travel to get away, or	4th
♂	simply arrange the home so that your need to be alone and do your own thing is	4th
♂	ensured.	4th
♂		4th
♂	You may push and pull in relationships, as you want both independence and	4th
♂	attachments. You could have mood swings as well. You may get angry with the	4th
♂	people closest to you (and they at you), but are capable of caring very deeply. You can	4th
♂	be courageous in emotional contexts, in confronting feelings. You are willing to assert	4th
♂	yourself in emotional matters, especially where home and family are concerned. Your	4th
♂	energy flows easily into empathy, compassion and a need for security.	4th

4 conclusions. Expectations are an issue in love relationships. You may demand more 5th

Your Saturn is in your 4th

4 4th
4 4th
4 You may structure your feelings and could overcontrol your nurturing instincts or your 4th
4 vulnerability and dependency needs. You may feel quite responsible for your home, 4th
4 family, roots and emotional security. Your early home focused on the need to blend 4th
4 conditional and unconditional love. As a result, you may feel uncomfortable with being 4th
4 dependent (or with nurturing) and may feel guilty about your home, family or domestic 4th
4 needs. Your karmic challenge is to blend compassion and pragmatism, caring and the 4th
4 bottom line, to be able to take turns supporting (emotionally) and being supported by 4th
4 those you love. 4th
4 4th
4 This placement suggests a mother/father blend. It can mean that father played a more 4th
4 nurturing (traditional mothering) role—warm, emotionally supportive or passive/ 4th
4 dependent. It might mean a father who was home more often than usual or a father 4th
4 whose presence dominated the home environment. Another possibility is that mother 4th
4 played a more powerful role—working in the world, strong, responsible, etc. Or, mother 4th
4 and father may have had overlapping roles, neither locked into traditional behaviors. An 4th
4 alternative is that one parent played both roles (authority and nurturer) due to death, 4th
4 divorce, etc. Sometimes this placement indicates having to parent your own parent— 4th
4 where even as a child you felt you had to be strong, capable and deal with reality in 4th
4 order to take care of an inadequate parent. You are learning to be sensible about your 4th
4 nurturing capacity and your need for emotional support. 4th
4 4th
4 Your career might involve caretaking, assistance, home and family, land, real estate, 4th
4 food, commodities or meeting people's basic needs. You might work in the home, or 4th
4 from your home (or follow a parent's footsteps vocationally). Your work might involve 4th
4 emotional nuances. 4th

Drew's mind is concerned with issues of faith, philosophy, education, travel or anything expansive and broadening. She learns through principles, broad perspectives, overviews and generalities. She thinks about the meaning of life and is apt to be curious about faith, beliefs, values, goals and world views. Drew's interests tend to be philosophical, spiritual, expansive or wide-ranging. She tends to "think big," and is apt to be optimistic. Her communication style is probably outgoing, gregarious, humorous, lively or adventurous. She may be prone to "foot-in-mouth" experiences on occasion, or jumping to conclusions. She could enjoy argument for the sheer intellectual stimulation and may be a skillful rationalizer. Ethical issues (especially too much or too little honesty) could affect her written and verbal exchanges.

9th

Drew's consciousness is restless, expansive and always wanting more. She can be a natural teacher, traveller and student. If she pursued higher education, she may have studied many different things! If Drew has not actualized her own faith, trust or expansiveness, her relatives (including siblings) may be confident, outgoing, ethical, religious, spiritual, perfectionistic, funny or rash. She seeks the stimulation of always learning more, going further, understanding more fully, and expanding her horizons.

Drew is looking for ease and comfort in reality. She may expect her career to provide beauty or pleasure. (She might not want to work hard.) She wants achievement that is stable and secure and seeks control over the physical, sensual world—over things. Drew can find comfort in duties, thrift, rules, structure and safety. She may look to money and possessions for reassurance and security. Her possessions are apt to be practical and sensible, and may further her professional ambitions. Drew probably enjoys responsibility, accomplishments and tangible results. (Occasionally, beauty and charm may be used to control the world: "If I am sweet enough, people will do things for me.")

10th

Drew has the potential of a comfortable, accepting relationship with the conditional love parent (usually father or authority figure). There may be much affection between them. It is also possible that the parent may be overly materialistic, self-indulgent, passive or lazy. This parent is a role model (positive or negative) for later partnerships. Unresolved issues with Dad (or authority figure parent) will be faced again with partners. These issues are most likely to involve money, security, affection, comfort and pleasure. Drew's partner might be dictatorial, a workaholic, responsible or realistic. She is probably expected to carry her share of the load. Her social interactions tend toward the conventional and are often work-related. Her career could involve beauty, pleasure, finances, or sensual gratification. Drew could earn money in business, with or through a father figure, in a bureaucracy, or through steadily working her way up the ladder of success.

UNDERSTANDING YOUR COMPATIBILITY WORKSHEET

This section explains how the numbers on your Compatibility Worksheet (page 4) are calculated. If you do not care about the astrological details, you can skip to the actual interpretations.

The sign placements of your Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, and Ascendant are compared to the sign placements of Drew's Sun, Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, and Ascendant. Each sign combination can be rated as 1 (Very Challenging), 2 (Challenging), 3 (Compatible), or 4 (Very Compatible).

The pairs of like planets (your Sun to Drew's Sun; your Moon to her Moon, etc.) make up your Love Line. (The central diagonal line on the grid, shown in red on the screen). Those six pairings are discussed in detail in the next section. The total of the six numbers is the Love Line Compatibility score, which can range from 6-10 (Very Challenging); 11-14 (Challenging); 15-18 (Compatible); to 19-24 (Very Compatible). It is interpreted after the individual Love Line scores.

Each of your planets has a total score (indicated at the bottom of the column) made up of its relationship to Drew's planets. That is, your Sun score consists of your Sun's relationship to Drew's Sun, to her Moon, to her Mercury, to her Venus, to her Mars, and to her Ascendant. Scores of 15 or above mean the planet involved is positive for you (and is shown in a different color on the screen). Similarly, any or all of Drew's planets can be positive. Planets which are positive for either or both are interpreted after the Love Line.

The other values are your scores on Togetherness, Sexual Sizzle, Attraction & Affection, Close Comfort and Shared Strengths. Togetherness scores are based on the relationship between the signs of your Sun and Drew's Moon and your Moon and her Sun. Sexual Sizzle scores are based on the relationship between the signs of your Venus and Drew's Mars and your Mars and her Venus. Attraction and Affection scores relate to Venus/Sun pairings (both ways between you and Drew). Close Comfort scores are based on the two-way combinations of Venus and the Moon between the two of you. The range on each of these pairings (Togetherness, Sexual Sizzle, etc.) is from 2 to 8 points. If your score is 6 or higher for any of those four pairings, it is significant and is discussed after any Positive Planets.

All the 36 scores in the grid on your worksheet are added together to obtain your Shared Strengths score. If that score is 88 or above it is significant.

Challenging Love Line

You know the old cliches—"Birds of a feather flock together" but "Opposites attract." People building an enduring relationship need enough in common to have some strong ties. But they need enough differences to build excitement and feed the flames of passion. The trick is managing the challenges that do exist in a positive manner.

You and your partner have some significant differences. Your challenge is to appreciate each other's points of view, without having to have agreement on everything. Be open to learning from each other (willing to change your minds). Learn where your clashes are—and what's worth fighting for—and what's not.

If you can reach a bottom-line agreement on issues that are bedrock for each of you, then the other differences will just add spice to your relationship. This is a relationship which could change you both—if you are willing to take the opportunity to transform yourselves. Don't expect a smooth, easy flow all the time, but do build on the commonalities you share and learn to take the differences as opportunities to expand your thinking and possibilities. Those differences also help to keep each of you interested in and attracted to each other!

Build on what is strongly compatible in your relationship. Use any positive planetary scores and extra factors to help you focus on where your strengths are.

Mercury is Positive for Both Cary and Drew

Communication skills are an important asset for your relationship. Being able to talk things over comfortably, with objectivity, strengthens the connections between you. Learning new things makes the relationship more rewarding for you both. Mental stimulation, new ideas, new social contacts, and humor are important resources. Keeping a lighthearted attitude builds the bonds between you. How much each of you can be equalitarian, see both sides, and seek out win/win circumstances is particularly essential. Focus on learning and teaching much to one another in an atmosphere of acceptance and fun.

Mars is Positive for Drew

Drew's energy and enthusiasm can really pep up this relationship. Her ability to stir others up, to awaken and excite them, is a valuable key in this association. Sexual charisma may be on tap for Drew. The more she can feel active, alive, involved, and excited by this relationship, the more it strengthens your connections. Freedom (ironically) can increase commitment. How Drew handles anger will have a very strong impact on your relationship. Gratify each other's desires. Seek out activities which give her a lift (a "high") in constructive ways. They will build stronger bonds between you.

The Ascendant is Positive for Drew

Encouraging Drew's individuality and self-expression will help to strengthen this connection. Promoting Drew's independence will help bring you two closer. Don't hesitate to support each other's different interests, hobbies, and activities. The more self-development is fed, the more each of you has to bring back to your shared times. Doing your own thing constructively tends to make this relationship stronger and more durable.

Togetherness

You two have an excellent Togetherness score. This indicates that you stimulate each other's nurturing and expressive sides. Your desire to maintain a relationship is increased; you are both motivated to be together. The two of you may even feel like two halves of the same whole. You encourage one another to flourish. You are highly motivated to help her reach her highest potential and she feels similarly for you.

Shared Strengths

The Shared Strengths score between you two is quite high. This represents additional compatibility. Your general orientation toward one another has some real common ground. Even though your Love Line score is relatively low, a high Shared Strengths score means that you have the potential of building a lasting, important, positive relationship. You want to pull together, to stay together. You find it rather easy to support one another.

- ⊙ Drew to do similarly. The worst side of this aspect is for one person to play punitive parent in your relationship—dominating, controlling, judging or criticizing. (There is more danger of that from Drew's side—unless your birth horoscopes indicate otherwise.) One of you may demand to be the center of attention and have trouble sharing well-earned praise. (That is more apt to be your role.) Either of you could unconsciously recapitulate interactions had with a father figure. Another possibility is that career matters or material ambitions are allowed to overshadow (eclipse) relationship needs.
- ⊙ The best expression of this combination is to take pride in each other's competence. You can egg each other on to do more and more, with a lively sense of adventure. You may be dedicated to advancing one another professionally and find much joy in working with the real world. You can ground each other's creativity and add sparkle to one another's workaday environments. Together, each of you is more aware of your talents and abilities.

Cary's Moon is Cooperating with Drew's Venus

- ⋈ Reinforcing the status quo is likely. You feed each other's quest for security and comfort. The lure of the familiar is strong. You may find it easy to be affectionate and nurturing of one another. Family ties probably bring satisfaction. Sharing good food, drink and sensual pleasures is quite gratifying. You two could have an excellent instinctive balance between being a partner and being a caretaker.
- ⋈ On the down side, excesses are possible. You (particularly Drew) might overindulge yourselves or each other in this relationship. A focus on comfort and the material world could be carried too far by her. Family tensions may arise with competition between being an equal (spouse) and being a parental figure. You (more than Drew) may be inclined to over nurture, protect too much, or be too concerned with security. Or, you might feel torn between the demands of other family members versus the needs of this relationship.
- ⋈ The best expression of this combination is two people who love being together, feel safe and at ease with one another and each bring much pleasure to the other.

Cary's Moon is in Tension with Drew's Uranus

- ⋈ Disruptive occurrences and feelings may be more common than you'd like. Mood swings (especially by you) could pervade this relationship. When you want to get close, Drew may pull away. Insecurities from childhood could pop up again at inconvenient moments. Emotional support might be erratic. Sometimes, Drew is there for you, and sometimes she is not. (And Drew may feel similarly about you.)
- ⋈ Tension could develop between family members and friends. Or, you two may feel torn between her free-wheeling, independent style versus your close, caring connections. Household routines might change often. Irregularity could be the order of your days. You may view each other as agents of chaos.

Cary's Mercury is Cooperating with Drew's Jupiter

Good communication is likely. You are probably eager to talk to each other and enjoy exchanging ideas. The collection and dissemination of information may be an important process in your relationship. The two of you can enjoy travel—often in the mind and most likely in the body as well. A restless spirit is apt to prevail; you'll want lots of stimulation. You are apt to encourage one another to dream, to go for something more in life. You spend time discussing philosophy, religion, metaphysics or the question of life's meaning. You can help each other look on the bright side in life.

On the down side, either of you may feel the other talks too much or falls into self-righteousness and a "need to be right." Intellectual arrogance (especially by Drew) could be a problem. Over-idealism is a potential danger. Either of you may be seeking a dream that is beyond reach, or aiming for a level of perfection that is unachievable.

On the high side, each of you can help the other to blend knowledge and wisdom—to combine inspired insights with practical, everyday facts. You are apt to collect information from faraway and near at hand. A sociable bent is probably present; you can enjoy the "gift of gab" with others. Fresh, inquiring minds are accented.

Cary's Venus is in Tension with Drew's Moon

Insecurity could enter the picture. Either of you may trigger the worries of the other about money, possessions, and the material world. Early childhood wounds about affection and lovability may be stimulated. You two could feel torn between the roles of equal partner versus needy child versus protective parent. Unless contraindicated in your horoscopes, you are more at risk for concerns about finances and material matters and Drew is more at risk for recapitulating early childhood experiences and playing the role of parent or child rather than equal partner. Conflicts with other family members are possible. Differences of opinion may arise about spending money and/or dealing with domestic matters. You may feel the nurturing and "goodies" in the relationship are inequitably distributed.

On the up side, you can help each other to find security, providing emotional support, affection, comfort, and material assistance to one another. Devotion, empathy and warmth will be valuable resources within your relationship.

Cary's Venus is Unified with Drew's Neptune

Romance, dreams, imagery, imagination, beauty, grace, and the quest for a soulmate are indicated. Rose-colored glasses are possible. You both may see what you want rather than what is, although this is more a danger from Drew's side than yours. Passivity, little white lies, secrets, and striving for constant sweetness and light are possible. Running away from reality may appeal.

Each of you encourages the mystical, spiritual, artistic, idealistic, transcendent side of the other. You may share religious, imaginative, aesthetic, or healing interests.

♋ Romantic interludes flow naturally. Empathy, compassion, and caring for one another (and humanity) are strong. Love is valued highly. ♋

♋ Idealized images lead to disappointment and disillusionment. You two might become entangled in a co-dependent relationship. Beauty and ease may be overvalued. Escapist or victim behavior (alcoholism, chronic invalidism, inadequacy, etc.) could be exhibited—particularly by Drew. "Happily ever after" is expected to fall into your laps. ♋

♋ The best expression of this combination is sharing a quest for transcendence. Rather than looking for "Heaven on Earth" in your relationship, you and Drew can jointly pursue belief in something greater, something inspiring. Or, you can enjoy sharing art, beauty, charitable activities, or imaginative pursuits. If neither of you is expecting perfection, you can enjoy seeking the ideal through nature, mysticism or dreams. The possibility for high-quality romance is excellent. You want to see what is wonderful in each other. ♋

Cary's Venus is in Tension with Drew's Ascendant

♋ The balancing act between assertion and accommodation is in focus. If all is well, you two will enjoy the dance of attraction between self and other. You will manage healthy exchanges in which each of you gets some (but not all) of what you want. You'll know when to push and when to please the other person. ♋

♋ If there are problems, it is likely that one person will feel the other is too pushy, demanding or self-centered. (Unless contraindicated by the bulk of your horoscopes, you are likely to be the pleaser and appeaser and Drew is likely to be more intent on her personal desires.) Contentions could arise over whose urges have precedence, over money and possessions, or over comfort. Clashing preferences in terms of sensuality and the handling of finances are probable. ♋

♋ Other people may complicate your relationship. You are likely to find that you have to juggle not just the differences between you two, but also the competing needs of other friends and loved ones. Various alliances are likely to form, break up, and regroup. It could get complicated figuring out who is on whose side when. Or, feedback from other individuals may make it hard for each of you to decide what you really want, or what is reasonable to expect from this relationship. ♋

♋ The highest potential for this combination is a relationship based on true liking—enjoying one another as people and sharing affection with each other. That can be solidified with sensually satisfying experiences and helping one another feel comfortable. ♋

Cary's Mars is Unified with Drew's Sun

♋ This combination denotes high energy. Confidence, enthusiasm, and movement are in high focus. Questions may arise regarding competition, traditionally "masculine" behaviors, sexual attraction and drive. A single-minded focus can occur—hard to turn aside. Personal will is emphasized. ♋

♂ An exciting relationship is likely! Both partners tend to feel more vital and alive when ♂ ♂ together. Sports or other high-energy, high-movement activities appeal. Sexual ♂ ♂ attraction is probably strong. Each of you feels the other is very magnetic, dynamic, and ♂ ♂ eager. You probably encourage one another to try, to risk, to create, to do. ♂

♂ Competition may reign. Each of you could try to outdo the other. Excessive risks might ♂
♂ be taken. An addiction to adrenaline can lead to negative experiences. Pushy, ♂
♂ arrogant, demanding, "me"-focused behavior might interfere with sharing. You are apt ♂
♂ to be quite focused on your personal desires and needs. In extremes, violence is ♂ ♂ possible. Each of you may strive to be the center of attention (although that is probably ♂ ♂ more an issue for Drew than you). Old imprints from father could influence current ♂ ♂ interactions, especially from Drew's side. ♂

♂ The best potential of this combination is a relationship in which you each encourage the ♂ ♂ other to be fully and completely yourselves. You are likely to turn each other on, build ♂
♂ one another up, and feed each other's joie de vivre. ♂

Cary's Mars is Unified with Drew's Midheaven

♂ This combination suggests that a balancing act is essential. Several polarities are ♂ ♂ activated: personal will versus cultural inhibitions; a self-focus versus a concern with ♂ ♂ career or family; confidence versus caution. Unless other astrological factors imply the ♂ ♂ reverse, you will be more concerned with freedom, self-expression, and courageous ♂ ♂ action, while Drew will be more concerned with safety, security, material success, and ♂ ♂ vocational and family demands. ♂

♂ Just by being who you are, you tend to trigger parental imprints in Drew, especially those ♂ ♂ involving attitudes toward success, family life, power and protection. You two may ♂
♂ replay parental messages dealing with assertion, endurance, status, and productivity. ♂
♂ Your presence may encourage Drew to reexamine her programming in regard to work, ♂
♂ doing a good job, family loyalty and safety. You may sometimes feel that she acts more ♂
♂ like a parent (particularly an authority figure) than a partner. ♂

♂ The best expression of this combination is two people who work together to find a ♂
♂ balance between time and energy for self, family and professional success. You can aid ♂
♂ each other's practical goals as well as encouraging one another to be assertive and ♂ ♂ take a few risks. You two can combine good planning with the courage to take direct ♂ ♂ action when needed. ♂

♋ side of life is likely. ♋
♋ Less constructively, emotional excesses are possible. Feelings may be exaggerated. ♋
♋ Reactions could be rather overblown. Moral or ethical conflicts—with each other or with ♋
♋ other family members—are possible. You two may polarize between pursuing safety ♋
♋ and security (more likely a concern for Drew) versus exploration and adventures (more ♋ ♋ apt to be your focus). Risk-taking urges could compete with a need for stability. ♋
♋ The best expression of this combination is a relationship in which you buoy each other's ♋

♋ This combination can be rash, reckless, unwise, arrogant, and excessive. You two may ♋ ♋ encourage each other to take foolish risks or attempt to do the impossible. Impatience ♋
♋ and heedless actions are a danger for Drew. A pattern of biting off more than you can ♋
♋ chew could develop. You might set the standards for one another too high. Self- ♋ ♋ righteous inclinations could be overdone by you—or too much focus on particular ♋ ♋ religious or philosophical concepts. Sensual, financial and other overindulgences could ♋ ♋ wreak havoc. The pleasures of the flesh might be overdone. Conflicts concerning ♋ ♋ principles, beliefs, values, or trust may create tension. Patience is apt to be in short ♋
♋ supply, especially on Drew's part. You tend to stimulate each other's desire for instant ♋ ♋ gratification. ♋
♋ On the positive side, you can encourage one another to do more than you have done ♋
♋ before, to reach for the heights, to bring a dream into being. You may feed each other's ♋ ♋ idealism, educational aspirations, love of travel, interest in the wider world, or desire to ♋ ♋ expand your base of knowledge. You and Drew may each help the other to take ♋ ♋ advantage of opportunities when they knock. You will find it natural to reinforce a "can ♋

♎ You can encourage each other to plan well and carefully. You may stimulate one ♎

♃ other. Old imprints from authority figures could be triggered and interfere with the free ♃ flow of information, particularly from your side. Control and safety urges may restrict ♃ natural curiosity and eagerness to explore. Complaints may be excessive.

♃ The best expression of this combination is two people who are putting their minds to ♃ work in the world. You might be very effective at turning thinking into manifest forms, ♃ putting ideas into action. You may encourage each other to be realistic, practical and ♃ logical. You could aid one another's patience. You might also strengthen each other's ♃ flexibility and versatility. You can be a bulwark for Drew and she can stimulate your ♃ thinking and communication skills.

Cary's Saturn is Cooperating with Drew's Pluto

♃ Although this combination is less consequential than ones which include a personal ♃ point, it implies that you two can share power well. You can take charge and lead as ♃ appropriate, wield considerable self-control, and influence others through withholding ♃ (information, action) as well as openly commanding. Drew may contribute to your status
♃ or vocational success. You may aid her quest for self-mastery.

♃ The two of you may overdo perseverance. This particular blend suggests more than just ♃ dogged persistence—it is closer to implacability. You reinforce each other's ♃ determination to achieve your goals. You may also be rather cautious as a pair.
♃ Conserving your resources is important to you both. You will err on the side of safety.
♃ Unless other factors in your charts mitigate this, you will both be quite risk-averse.

♃ The aspect augurs well for a long-term, successful relationship. You are likely to be very ♃ committed to one another. You can share and wield power adeptly, and work very hard ♃ for your mutual goals.

Cary's Uranus is in Tension with Drew's Venus

♃ Love and freedom may feel opposed to one another in this relationship. When one of ♃ you is feeling the urge for commitment and closeness, the other tends to feel confined, ♃ tied down, restricted, or just antsy. Either of you (but particularly you) could feel that ♃ being part of a couple demands giving up too much of your own personal individuality.
♃ One of you (more likely Drew) may see the other as too weird and eccentric. You are ♃ more apt to view her as too compliant, wanting things easy, or concerned with what ♃ other people think. Disruptive events may be all too common.

♃ Monetary differences could complicate the mix. You may be on opposite sides in terms
♃ of conserving material security versus taking risks for greater gain. Unpredictable ♃ developments could keep financial matters up in the air.

♃ The best chance for success lies in combining the urge for stability and the need for ♃ excitement. (Unless other astrological factors contradict, Drew will be more intent upon ♃ the former and you upon the latter.) If you can focus on enjoying the unique qualities of ♃ each other, things are likely to go well. Do not expect to do everything together. This is of individuality and the cutting edge of change.

There is a tendency with this aspect to live in the world of the mind, or even in a fantasy world. You may spend your time dreaming great dreams of progress, and devising wonderful schemes for a bright future, without doing anything to realize them.

Remembering to act lets you use your innovative thinking to advance your visions, your mysticism to inspire creativity. You two could blend objectivity and compassion, the artistic and the intellectual, and be agents for changing the world for the better. You might invent new ways to bring more grace and beauty into your relationship.

Intensity! Power, possessions, and pleasures are likely to be in high focus. Issues of finances, sexuality, and control could emerge. Deep feelings (negative and positive) are likely to be aroused. Each of you may feel transformed by the relationship. Insights are profound—or pushed away.

Drew is apt to feel very personally affected by your relationship. Your attitudes and behavior in terms of joint resources and intimacy affect her sense of self and ability to pursue what she wants in life. Just by being who she is, Drew triggers for you questions about who earns it, who owns it, who spends it, and who enjoys what. Compromise and the art of forgiving and forgetting are important goals between you.

On the high side, you can aid Drew in claiming personal power and confidence, and she can reinforce your quest for self-mastery and self-control. You can both grow in strength and understanding through this relationship.
