Section One: Your Basic Personality

Introduction

Before anyone can look at relationships, they need to understand themselves. This section takes a look at you as an individual--your character tendencies, strength, and weaknesses. If you have certain natal (birth) challenges in regard to relationships, it will be important to gain some mastery over them. Otherwise, even the best of times will still bring up the most challenging of issues. Understanding yourself more thoroughly leads into understanding others better, and building more satisfying relationships.

[The number(s) which appear in parentheses after the title of each interpretation refer to "letters" of the astrological alphabet. That astrological alphabet is the basis on which interpretations were made. For further information about the alphabet, see Complete Horoscope Interpretation by Maritha Pottenger.]

IMAGINATIVE IDEAS (3-12)

You have a tremendously rich inner life. Blessed with a vivid imagination as well as a natural curiosity, you may spend much time envisioning prospects and possibilities. You can blend the rational and the irrational, or intuition and logic. You have both a strong intellectual streak and a strong emotional streak and can combine head and heart for optimum results.

You may sometimes feel pulled between a desire to talk with the people right around you, or share everyday ideas, versus a drive to pursue higher, transcendent meanings. Both are important in your life.

FRITTER OR FOCUS? (3-6)

You are quite mentally oriented, with a constant desire to learn and to communicate. You may pick up information from all kinds of sources, and are eager to share your knowledge with others. You could feel some tension between quantity--learning everything possible about everything--versus quality--knowing a topic thoroughly and well. A bit of both works best.

You can be quite serious, dedicated, sometimes self-critical, and a competent worker, but also have a lighthearted, flippant side. You may well work with your mind, tongue, or hands. You need constant intellectual stimulation.

DETECTIVE (3-8)

You are likely to have a deep, incisive mind, eager to probe beneath the surface and uncover hidden knowledge. You tend to question yourself, peeling away layers of the psyche to define your core essence. You are a searcher and a seeker, wanting to know and learn more all the time. Communication is important to you--but focused mainly on intense, significant issues.

You have two sides: one very emotional, inward, and compulsive; the other very lighthearted, casual and a bit scattered. You will have to choose times and places in life to express each side. When your curiosity is aroused, you take investigation to the limit!

MYSTICAL MATERIALIST (6-12)

You are dealing with two strong polarities in your nature: an idealistic, mystical, transcendent, seeking side and a sensible, practical, grounded, nitty-gritty side. Optimal blends could result in artistic creativity: making your inspired, aesthetic visions into a reality in the physical world. Another option is adopting a healing or helping role where you assist others with both compassion and pragmatism. A less constructive result is feeling like a victim or pursuing escapist paths (drugs, alcohol, chronic fantasy) because the material world falls far short of your inspired visions (what could be).

Usually, you work hard to make your dreams come true and to inspire others.

INSPIRATION

Stellium in the 12th

Dreams and visions are an important focus in your life. You may be

Time for Love: Chloe Armand 9/ 7/1961 6: 2 PDT Placidus
San Diego, CA Starting Jan, 2001 TRP*

drawn to fantasy, magic, illusions, beauty, nature, healing and helping activities. You need some sheltered time regularly to recoup. You easily pick up other people's vibes and emotions. You can uplift others.

DYNAMIC

Stellium in Leo (♌)

Doing more than you have done before and receiving applause or attention for it vitalizes you. Creative, you are willing to take risks for greater gain. You may be drawn to love, speculation, recreation, entertainment, promotion or other exciting activities. You like center stage.

Section Two: What You Tend to Attract in Relationships

Introduction

This section examines the issues that are most likely to emerge in your romantic relationships. You can get a sense of qualities you are likely to meet in your partners, and attributes which you might find partners expressing more than you do. In some cases, challenges or potential imbalances will be discussed. Suggestions for positive sharing are provided.

In relationships, it is easy for two people to polarize--to adopt opposite ends of a seesaw in regard to certain personality traits or drives. Whatever is highlighted for you in relationships will serve you best if shared by you and your partner. If you express the qualities (and your partner does not), you are likely to go to an extreme. If your partner expresses the qualities discussed (and you do not), your partner is likely to overdo in those areas. Find ways in which you can both express, positively, the themes in high focus here.

[As discussed in Section One, the number(s) in parentheses which appear after the title of each interpretation refer to the astrological alphabet.]

DREAM TOGETHER (12)

"Happily ever after" is your relationship goal--which may be looking for a "Heaven on Earth" beyond human capacity. You might attract artistic, idealistic, or victim (alcoholic, ill, needing to be rescued) partners. You might want fairy-tale happiness. Sharing a quest for beauty, or helping and healing the world together works well. Do inspiring things without either expecting a partner to provide life's total meaning.

GROUNDING DREAMS (10-12)

You and your partners are attempting to make peace between the real and the ideal. In its highest form, this means bringing your visions to Earth and manifesting them. Less comfortably, you or your partners may be critical of people and circumstances which do not measure up to your expectations. Or, you may give up and not try, for fear the result won't be good enough. Share a dream with one another and work to help each other turn it into reality.

INDIVIDUAL IDEALISM (1-12)

Your relationships are arenas for blending the urge for spontaneous, personal action with the desire to merge with the universe. Fighting for causes, active creation of beauty and energetic pursuit of ideals are all possibilities. So is the perennial victim. Your partner offer you examples of what TO do or what NOT to do in blending self-assertion and self-sacrifice. Help each other pursue a very personal vision.

LOVELY (2-12)

Your partners may have an instinctive feeling for beauty. They are likely to appreciate the finer things in life (good food, drink, pleasant surroundings). They might be self-indulgent, lazy, and inclined to seek the easiest way out. Discomfort with confrontation is possible. Ease and comfort are important to you. Shared pleasures, artistic activities, or just pampering one another build on positive feelings between you.

IMAGINATIVE RESULTS (6-12)

Your relationships are trying to balance the beautiful dream with the realities of the world. You or a partner might go in and out of jobs, feel like a victim, be dissatisfied with the state of the world--or ground your visions. Steer clear of perfectionistic standards for love (by you or your partner). Being fellow artists, helpers, or healers are all constructive expressions of this theme. Encourage one another to bring the imagination to life.

THINKING WITH THE HEART (5-11)

Your relationships are seeking to strike a balance between needing emotional warmth, loving responses and admiration, versus wanting logic, rationality and detachment. Partners or you might feel torn between spending time with friends versus spending time with loved ones (family). The two of you are likely to work on the balance between freedom and closeness or being emotionally tied versus maintaining independence. Make room for both heartfelt emotions and good thinking in your interpersonal exchanges.

Section Three: Romantic Needs, Challenges and Strengths

Introduction

Each of us has certain needs in relationships. This section analyzes the themes that are most central in your association. What "feeds" you in partnerships is discussed. The qualities you need to experience for interpersonal satisfaction are covered here.

In addition, potential challenges in the romantic realm are included, and romantic strengths are listed. This section can help you understand possible weaknesses (and compensate for them) and make the most of your abilities and talents.

[Astrologically, what is being examined here is aspects to the planets having to do with romance, including the rulers of your 5th, 7th, and 8th houses. The ruler of the cusp, the ruler of any intercepted signs, and the ruler of any signs which are occupied by planets in the 5th, 7th, and 8th are examined.]

ARTISTIC

Beauty, pleasure, ease and comfort feed you in relationships. You may choose physically attractive partners, or people with aesthetic talent. You or your partner may expect love to be beautiful, flowing, harmonious and comfortable. If this theme is carried too far, either partner may put too much focus on appearances. "Looking good" may be overvalued--style placed over substance. One partner may be too sweet, accommodating, and kind, trying to keep everything "nice" all the time. Either of you might believe that "Love means never a harsh word." A shared appreciation of the aesthetic works well. You may enjoy creating beauty together (drawing, sculpture, photography, landscape gardening, dance, etc.). You could bond through sharing the beauty of nature. Focus on the grace and harmony within each of you and support it.

TRANSPERSONAL

You are fed by relationships which affect the wider world. This can lead to a strong involvement with friends, groups, organizations, social causes, a career, etc. You might counsel or heal others and so alter society. You are likely to expand or stretch your partnership so that it encompasses more inclusive issues and concerns than just you two. This might include fighting for justice, political action, etc. If a partner overdoes this theme, that person may be too caught up in making history, changing the world, or looking at the big picture. You may feel your partner neglects you to save humanity. You can enlarge each other's perspectives. Your love can be strengthened through exposure to alternatives and larger issues. Just keep a balance between long-range concerns and your here-and-now intimate needs.

COMPETENCE

Hard work, effort and practicality are highlighted in your relationships. This is an excellent combination for working with people. You may choose a profession which involves relating to others, or meet a partner through your work, or work with a partner. Or, you might end up turning your partner into a job--a chore, trying to "make over" (improve) him/her. Alternately, you could drawn in someone who judges, criticizes and nit-picks you--telling you what needs to be repaired and enhanced in your personality. Either of you might allow your work (or a "working" attitude--critical and flaw-finding) to compete with your association. The solution is to share a practical focus by either working together, or sharing tasks. Each of you can focus on working hard AT the relationship to make it as good as possible--but NOT working on each other!

POWER

You are fed by confronting issues of power, force, will and drive within your relationships. One potential is attracting partners as strong as you are--and together, changing the world and yourselves. Another option is attracting people who are masterful and dynamic--but end up dominating and controlling. Or, you might draw in a partner who puts you in the role of authority figure--carrying all the responsibility and all the load for the relationship. If you find yourself enmeshed in power struggles with those near and dear for you, look for a constructive outlet in the world. Take up a competitive sport; fight for a cause; get involved in a cutthroat business. With your partner, seek out win/win solutions. Engage in activities in which you both can increase your sense of mastery, control, authority, expertise and ability to be strong and in charge.

---

Romantic Challenges

Pluto ♄ Saturn in 5th , ♄ Saturn Ruler of 5th

Intense emotional exchanges are likely. Obsessions, compulsions, withdrawal, or power plays can occur in love relationships. Seek out people who desire to share on a deep, intimate level. You need to "take it to the limit" sexually, emotionally, romantically--but safely.

Moon ♃ Pallas, ♃ Pallas in 7th

Your partnerships could turn into mother/child exchanges if neediness gets out of hand. Mutual nurturing (taking turns taking care of each other) is most advisable. Emotional security is vital. Select partner you can trust to be there when you need them.

Time for Love: Chloe Armand 9/ 7/1961 6: 2 PDT Placidus
San Diego, CA Starting Jan, 2001 TRP*

Uranus  $\overset{\wedge}{\text{J}}$  Jupiter in 5th

Restlessness is highlighted. This could be your own need for freedom or a tendency to attract lovers who are erratic, unpredictable, or not really available. Being friends as well as lovers works best. Stimulating intellectual as well as romantic exchanges further your bonds.

Moon's Nodes  $\overset{\wedge}{\text{J}}$  Jupiter in 5th

Deep emotional reactions are tied into your love relationships. You may push each other's unconscious buttons, eliciting more than you expected at times. You can rouse each others insecurities, or be a source of tremendous support and protection for one another.

Venus  $\square$  Neptune Ruler of 7th

Challenges are implied around questions of ownership, comfort, beauty, ease or pleasure. Perhaps you or a partner is too hedonistic, passive, stubborn or concerned with material goods or appearances. Sensual experiences can draw you together. Beauty can be a bond.

Saturn  $\angle$  Descendant

Love may compete with work. Practical matters must be faced in your partnerships. Be sure power is shared so that you neither dominate nor are dominated. Don't let a critical attitude (from you or from a partner) override affection. Do balance pleasure and pragmatism.

Uranus  $\overset{\wedge}{\text{J}}$  Juno in 7th

Independence seeks an outlet in your associations. Keep some separate space lest you or a partner overdo the need to be free. Some surprises are possible. Enjoy one another's individuality. Tolerance and openness work wonders. Romance goes hand in hand with friendship in this case.

Neptune  $\square$  Venus

Your quest for an ideal could affect your partnerships. On the down side this can be confusion, denial, victim associations or a Pollyanna approach to relationships. On the plus side, you and a partner can bring dreams to earth, particularly through beauty, compassion and inspiration.

Time for Love: Chloe Armand 9/ 7/1961 6: 2 PDT Placidus
San Diego, CA Starting Jan, 2001 TRP*

Moon's Nodes ♌♋ Juno in 7th

Your partnerships can affect you on a very deep emotional level. Sometimes you react unconsciously. Although insecurity is possible, on the best level, you seek out someone who is totally devoted. Mutual caretaking is likely. You may instinctively tune into each other's needs.

Saturn ♄ Pluto

Fear, inadequacy, or inhibition could limit your pleasures. Be good to yourself and seek out others who feed your strengths. Career demands may compete with relationships needs. Keep a balance. Control issues could emerge; know when to relax and take it easy.

Uranus ♃ Juno

The lure of the unknown may draw in strange and unusual people or unconventional relationships. Keep some space in your romantic attachments. Individuality is highlighted and should be encouraged in both of you. Cherish your differences and you'll learn much together.

Moon's Nodes ♌♋ Juno

Emotional tension around issues of finances, possessions and pleasures is possible. You tend to attract partners who push unconscious buttons around money and sharing (and you could rouse their insecurities). Try to understand underlying motives and be sensitive to each other's hidden needs.

Section Four: Optimum Times for Romantic Developments

Introduction

Astrology is an art, rather than a science, because it deals with symbols. A sign means one thing (such as a stop sign). A symbol stands for a number of different concepts. Astrological symbols point to many different possibilities, which is why exact prediction is not possible. In a given situation, how does the astrologer predict whether the patterns involved will be lived out by a client on the physical, mental, emotional, or spiritual level?

If, for example, the Moon is part of an important configuration in the current patterns, does that point to possible events involving the client's mother; physical home; people with whom s/he shares a nest; nurturing side; food; emotional needs; or desire for security and protection? All these--and more--are symbolized by the Moon!

We do know, however, the astrological symbols which relate to romance and love relationships. They include Venus, the goddess of love, beauty, affection and pleasure; whichever planet rules your personal 7th house (of marriage, partnership and committed associations), and other factors. This allows us to select times when astrological symbols of romance are highlighted in your horoscope.

This does not guarantee love will occur! We might, for example, express Venusian themes by creating beauty, by simply being relaxed and comfortable, by indulging ourselves or others, etc. Many of the motifs indicated astrologically will be lived out internally rather than in outer events. However, the greater the number of factors suggesting the possibility of romance, the greater the likelihood that it will occur. By bringing such times to your attention, it gives you a chance to flow with the universe, to actively seek and make connections during periods which are most supportive of loving ties.

How to Use This Section

If you do not want all the individual details, find the calendar graph at the end of this section, and follow the instructions preceding it. If you do want each date discussed in detail, continue here.

Each astrological event (aspect) listed has a title which captures its potential in regard to romance. The first line gives the dates (beginning and ending) for the period that the aspect is in effect. If an aspect becomes exact during its period, the date that happens is also given. Some aspects provide a large window of opportunity. Others pass very quickly. Events might occur on an exact aspect--or during any time within the period listed.

Your report will list many dates, but not all are worth pursuing. The best times are when several aspects overlap. (For example, one aspect may last from May through July; a second may last from February through August; a third may last from June 10-15; a fourth may last from June 8-18. The optimum time to seek out romance would be between June 10-15.) The more astrological activity, the more likely your quest for romance will bear fruit.

When promising dates are indicated for you, they will be classified as either "major" or "minor." The significance of a given pattern is related to how often it can occur, and how long it lasts. Patterns which come up rarely in your horoscope are more important--and rated "major." Patterns which highlight periods of months or years are usually worth noting, and classified as major.

Astrological events which pass quickly ("minor") may indicate only a passing fancy, fantasy, or a moment's thought. But do not ignore them! Significant relationships may begin with a "minor" pattern, but turn into a major event (especially if other aspects are occurring at that time)! Remember that clusters of overlapping dates point to times opportunity is most likely to knock on your door.

Each astrological event (aspect) is also rated in terms of degree of intensity: "Very Promising, Moderately Promising," or "Promising." (All astrological aspects are not equal. Some are more potent than others!) This rating can help you determine how much effort to put into pursuing prospects during these periods.

Although the bulk of this report will focus on times which are most traditionally favorable, we also include some "iffy" times. These refer to placements which can be very challenging, but can also lead to "falling in love," or to long-term commitments, or other desirable results. Those iffy times will be described in terms of their "up" side and their "down" side. Your challenge is to manifest, as much as possible, the positive alternatives.

Each astrological event (aspect) has one or more of the following listings:

- R Romantic, starry-eyed
- A Affectionate
- C Commitment-minded
- S Sexy, sensual

Obviously, these categories are designed primarily for someone seeking to establish a relationship, meet people, or develop new connections.

However, all the times in this report are appropriate for deepening current relationships. So, if you're already involved in a committed partnership, you can use this report to plan "Some Enchanted Evening" or times to be "Swept Away."

We wish you the best in your quest for rewarding relationships!

The graph which follows helps you to spot your best possible times. You might want to draw a straight, vertical line (in colored pencil) through the middle of each month (at the top of the graph). The length of time for each aspect is indicated by how far it stretches across the page. Look for times when several aspects are near the same vertical line. The more aspects occurring at a given time the better your romantic chances. (You can double-check against the actual dates listed on the left.)

Each actual aspect is listed on the left, so you are free to give more weight to the dates of certain aspects if you feel they are more significant. If you don't know how to read the astrological glyphs you can ignore that part.

Section Five: Birthday Possibilities

Introduction

This section is only for people who are actively looking for a partner. It should be used, not to eliminate possible partners, but to indicate additional strengths when they exist. People whose birthdays are listed within should be given an additional plus in your books, since their Sun is making strong contacts to your horoscope.

Astrologically, the only planet which is known from the birthday alone is the Sun. In order to determine the positions of the other planets, an astrologer needs the day, month, year, and time of birth. We have calculated all your planets. This section also calculates for you any positions which make strong contacts with the planets having to do with romance in your horoscope.

We then determine the position someone else's Sun would have to occupy, in order to make strong contacts with your romantic planets. We list the birthdays for which the Sun is in the right place for you!

The reason you should not eliminate people whose birthdays do not appear on this list is that their other planets (Moon, Mercury, Venus, etc.) may be making strong connections with your chart, even if their Sun does not.

However, someone whose Sun makes strong connections to your romantic planets has the potential of being significant in your life, particularly in terms of self-expression, admiration, magnetism, excitement, romance and play.
