YOUR FUTURE Outer Planet Transits

We recommend Your Future as your first basic interpreted report involving current patterns. That is because it uses the astrological tool that is generally the easiest for people to relate to things that are happening in their lives and to how they feel. This tool is the transits of the outer planets.

The word "TRANSITS" means the current positions of the planets in the signs of the zodiac, and their relationship to the positions of the planets in your own chart.

Outer planets refers to planets in the solar system beyond Mars. These are: Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, Neptune and Pluto.

The outer planets move slowly, so the paragraphs in this report indicate Major Trends in your life that you will experience over periods of weeks, months and sometimes even years.

The report is divided into two sections:

1. Long Term Trends

Based on transits of Uranus, Neptune and Pluto. These planets move so slowly that they symbolize trends in your life that will last for most of the year, or even longer.

2. Medium Term Trends

Based on transits of Jupiter and Saturn. These planets represent trends that may last from a few weeks to a few months.

It is important that you understand the interpretations of the Medium Term Trends against the background of the Long Term Trends.

Alternatives are suggested for how you might feel or how you might choose to use the energies symbolized by each trend. The basic principles of each planet combination can relate to many different options. We, by suggesting possibilities, hope to help you increase your self-understanding and perhaps jog your thinking about what choices may be available to you. Only you, who know the full circumstances of your life, can truly know which options are best for you. Which alternatives suggested in a Medium Term Trend paragraph that "fit" best for you may, to a large degree, depend upon how a Long Term Trend that extends throughout that same time period is being worked out in your life. It is for this reason that we give you the Long Term Trends first, so that you can understand them as themes that may well underlie the entire year of this report.

Throughout the entire report:

Each paragraph is headed with the dates in which the trend interpreted is most likely to be emphasized in your life. Sometimes, due to apparent retrograde (backward) and direct (forward) planetary motion, a planet will move away from its emphasis on your chart, and then later in the year, will move back in. In these cases you will see two sets of inclusive dates. You should figure that the trend described might be at least somewhat continuous throughout the entire period from the first dates to the end of the second set, but will be more sharply focused during the actual dates given.

Some paragraphs will have a subheading in italics that lists one or more dates in which the transit is most strongly emphasized. Do not expect that major events are necessarily going to take place on these days; they may be, in fact, uneventful. Do expect, however, that the general trend interpreted may be most strongly emphasized in your life at about these times, give or take a day or two.

(For your information, if you are an astrology student: the days given in italics are those in which the transiting planet is in the exact degree and minute of aspect to the natal planet, or days in which the transiting planet is said to be "stationary" before its apparent change to either direct or retrograde motion. At the beginning of the report is a page with transit activity graphs (how much time each planet spent in some aspect or other.) Astrologers can, if they wish, order this report in a fully annotated version, which includes the astrological terms for all the aspects and a different introduction than this one that is written with the assumption that readers are familiar with astrological jargon.)

How to Use This Report

All paragraphs of interpretation are not equal. Some of them describe transits that you are almost certain to be able to identify with trends in your life, while others describe transits that you may not even notice because of a more dominant theme that exists at the same time. We have used different kinds of type to make it easy for you to spot the relative importance of the paragraphs.

Paragraphs in BOLD TYPE are especially important. The trends interpreted here are those that are most likely to reflect what is actually going on in your life during the time periods given. These are the paragraphs that you will most likely be able to identify with your own individual life situation, as differentiated from what may be happening in the lives of others in your peer group. USE these interpretations for ideas on how you might best plan your actions, your events, your reactions to events that are beyond your personal control and the decisions you must make.

Paragraphs in BOLD ITALICS are also very important, but the trends interpreted here are those that you share with everyone else in your general age group. These are the major life "crisis" cycles that underlie such psychological and idiomatic terms as "the seven-year itch," the "adolescent crisis," the mid-life "crisis," etc. You are almost certain to experience something in your life that you can relate to the interpretations given. What happens, however, will vary widely according to your individual life circumstances. BLEND these paragraphs with those in BOLD TYPE for insight into how these more general, generational themes relate to your individual trends, and how you can most constructively direct your progress.

Paragraphs in ITALICS interpret trends that are more likely to relate to your state of being or to the flow of your feelings than to actual events. These paragraphs should be "read" as supporting themes, that may indicate help or hindrance in a given situation. Take for example a time period in which you have an ITALICS trend and a BOLD trend going on at the same time. The BOLD trend is more dominant. Suppose that it reflects a difficult job-related problem that is going on in your life. How you handle, react to or direct that problem is likely to vary depending on whether the ITALICS trend suggests happy sociability or seriousness or a risk-taking mood, etc.

Paragraphs in PLAIN TYPE interpret generational trends, applying to everyone in your age group, that are more likely to relate to your state of being or to the flow of your feelings than to actual events. "Read" them as supporting themes, as in the ITALICS paragraphs, but consider that they may well pass unnoticed if other more dominant types of transits (as described above) occur during the same time period.

Remember, as said before, the Long Term Trends are a background that should not be ignored when you are considering the potentials of a Medium Term Trend.

If two or more paragraphs of the same "weight" overlap each other within the same time period, and their interpretations seem to be in conflict, you will probably find that one interpretation can be related to one area of your life and the other one(s) to some other area. Let's face it--we are all complex individuals and most of our personalities include some contradictions!

Now, let's see what the current patterns of the planets have to say about YOU!

Long Term Trends

The following paragraphs are based upon transits of Uranus, Neptune and Pluto to your chart. Because these planets move so slowly, their transits will be in effect for most or all of the year--and maybe part of the previous year or the next year, as well. You should consider the themes described in this section as a possible background for other shorter term things that may be going on in your life and in your thoughts and feelings.

The image of a volcano is very appropriate here. Your emotions are seething and incredibly strong. If you hold things in too long, you may indeed "blow your stack." Deal with issues (especially where anger and resentment are involved) as soon as they come up. Do NOT bury things. They'll fester beneath the surface. Sexual experiences can be particularly exciting at this time because you are capable of so much intensity. Beware that your desire for excitement does not lead you into situations that are dangerous. You are learning to handle power--to SHARE--with others, but may sometimes learn by abusing that power, or attracting others who abuse you. Protect your own rights and respect the rights of others. Life is not an all-or-nothing situation. You can SHARE the power, if you believe in yourself and pick suitable intimates with which to experience the dynamism and deep psyche-shaking this combination symbolizes.

Control is the keyword. You are eager to feel in mastery of both yourself and the world. Express your drive and need for power in competitive sports, games or business activities. Avoid controlling or being controlled in relationships. You may be a bit more self-denying (in sensual/sexual terms) at this time; do not overdo it. Your capacity for focus and concentration is excellent. If you want to diet, now is a good time.

You are ready to balance personal wants and needs with the necessary compromises in maintaining a close relationship. Partners, spouses, mates can help you to be more of yourself, do more of what you want to do. Timing is appropriate for you to focus on balancing your own desires with those of a mate. Sex is likely to be fiery and exciting. Sharing physically can help to lay the groundwork for emotional equality as well. You may be tempted to flee from intimacy, fearing a loss of freedom. Remember, you CAN express yourself and meet your needs along with having an intense, committed relationship.

The roots of your identity experience a profound transformation. This may show superficially in major changes in your domestic environment or family relationships, with anything from remodeling your home to critical events involving your parents. These events are but metaphors of the substantial psychological changes occurring within you. More private and introspective, more independent of others' opinions and attitudes, you stand close enough to touch an inner essence of yourself IF ONLY YOU WILL. As old ways of relating and false securities fall aside, you benefit greatly from self-exploration techniques (meditation, psychotherapy, etc.). Extreme, inappropriate reactions are clues that you're resisting the breakup of your old self-definition. Relax. This Emotions are intense and volatile. Whatever you do, you pour yourself into it wholeheartedly. No halfway measures here. You want it all--or nothing. You have tremendous potential power and charisma. Will you use it for mutual pleasure with others or to dominate and control? You are seeking a deep, emotional experience and can be as easily stirred by the negative as the positive. Potential transformation of self and others through love if handled wisely.

Your career, finances, ethics, philosophy and perhaps reputation are passing through major transformation and redefinition. A professional turning point is likely, such as promotion or a career shift. These are probably very positive changes, though both coronations and dethronements have occurred with this pattern. A separation occurring about now is the expected source of your gains (such as an inheritance, or advance brought about by leaving a previous position). In the end you'll likely find yourself "running your own show" more independently. Feeling less bound by other people's rules, you can develop a "holier than thou" attitude that distances others; and legal struggles are possible. However the general tone is likely one of success and enhanced power.

Work and pleasure may seem at odds--be it pleasure from the world (eating, drinking, smoking, sensuality) or pleasure from other people (love). Beware of "choosing" love over career or vice versa. Both sensual indulgence and productive accomplishments are necessary. Waiting until you have "earned" the right to enjoy may mean waiting forever. But excessive indulgence without considering societal obligations and duties is likewise destructive. Make room for both love and work, discipline and pleasure in your life.

This is a time of expanded urge for power and achievement, and consequently this may well be a time that reflects success in your life. You want to get ahead, to achieve. It's important for you to find a productive outlet for that energy that will bring you increased recognition or respect. An expanded power drive, however, can also bring you into conflict with authorities or circumstances you'd like to change. Take care that you don't get in trouble, but this period could reflect a positive gain through transformation or separation. If something in your life is drawing heavily on your time, energy and psychological and emotional resources, you could separate from it now, freeing that tremendous investment of energy for other uses. Specific examples range from jobs to relationships, from memberships to your own opinionated viewpoints. Let go! Strained relationships that you'd prefer to keep may benefit from a short furlough. Recognize your increased potential for positive release of energy and consciously direct it WHERE YOU WANT IT in your renewed life.

do. They will catch up, but you may not wait for them. You are ready to change your appearance and action to fit more into your long-range goals for this life. This is an appropriate time to move in new directions of self-expression. Your sense of humor is likely to be lively (even to the point of practical jokes). This is likely to be a high-energy time. Keep your options open and your suitcase ready. You are not inclined to stay long in one place or with one person. You are ready for action. Sports are an excellent channel--or any kind of physical activity. You need to move your muscles and be energetic. Sitting around will just turn the energy within where it could be destructive. You can accomplish much, but your attention span is likely to be quite short, so concentrate on quick bursts of activity. Then move on to something else. Competitive activities may attract you.

may be rewarded with respect, esteem, honor, recognition. It is important, though, to your present and especially your future progress, to avoid arrogance. You must also guard against taking on more than you can truly handle, for during this time you are more likely than usual to overestimate your own capacities. Even if you can "get away with it" on increased energies of the moment, it could prove to be more than you want to deal with later. Don't coast-- "luck" seldom just "happens." You have to be alert for opportunity, do the work, and forge ahead.

A turning point is signalled in matters of career, personal growth, finance and purpose. Most likely fortunate, with some critical opportunities opened for you, the chief issue is nonetheless your INNER REORIENTATION or shift in attitude. Key decisions are made now which set the trend for the next several years. Business matters probably go forward smoothly. Investments look promising, but bring their big payoff later. Some advance in status, prestige or esteem. Perhaps most important, you display an increased sense of well-being, a contagious self-assurance, confidence and optimism. The quality of how you now treat yourself sets the trend for how the world will treat you over the next several years.

As your independence and desire to run your own life as you wish grows stronger, you become more conscious of any elements in your environment which restrict your freedom. Reasonable action would be to either recognize, evaluate and remove the barriers; or to accept them as natural to the way you've constructed your life. You may, though, simply rebel against them, being intolerant of any restriction to your individual will and resistant to compromise or cooperation. The latter response may give you your own way for the time being, but it often alienates those around you. An important lesson is available for you to learn during this period if you will: that true freedom is, paradoxically, nearly always gained through discipline and self-restriction.

Communication, mental and commercial matters require careful attention from you now to keep running smoothly. You are more likely to be inclined toward serious, perhaps even pessimistic, thinking. Discouragement and frustrated mental states may slow your enthusiasm. Communication problems could arise. You are more likely than at other times to meet with resistance to your thinking. If you do, this may be a signal that you need to think carefully how you can more clearly articulate your ideas and improve your plans--and the results may then be for the best for you, too. This is an excellent period for concentration, disciplined study, research, detailed work. You concentrate better within a narrow range now. You can think through ideas thoroughly and completely, and make well thought-out plans that will have important consequences for your future. You are better able to organize and format information now than at most other times. Sometimes this is a period of travel for serious or for educational purposes.

Discovering a new confidence and certainty in your feelings, you find love and friendship both more important now, and easier to find. Romance prospers, as do other love matters, as long as you don't get swept away by "great expectations"--looking for the perfect love. Your attractiveness and openness become especially apparent to others. Popularity increases. Special social occasions, such as engagements, weddings and births are favored at times like this. Now is the time for establishing a new foundation, especially economic. Gains are stable, advance slow and steady. No wondrous rewards come from out of the blue, but you get rewards you've genuinely earned. Hard work and stable investments (especially real estate) prove worthwhile now, and build to a solid return later. Report card time! How have you been doing in terms of the practical side of life? If you have worked realistically with the limits of time, the physical universe, and cultural/societal regulations, you get an "A" on your report card. This can often be promotion, a new career, assistance from older, wiser or authority figures, or some kind of outer-world achievement. The structure of your life may change. If we get an "F" on the report card, we know it's time to look at our handling of power, authority, responsibility, work, achievement and make improvements.

You are ready, willing and able to put energy and courage into career pursuits. Eager to act, you pour yourself into achieving your ambitions. Older figures (mentors), including fathers, may be helpful to you. This just symbolizes you being in harmony with your own inner father--able to do what you want and still work within the rules of the game for success. Too much self-will or too many rules can lead to trouble, but you know how to make the optimum blend.

This period can reflect a turning point in career or identity. Demands and responsibilities are likely to be increased. Restriction, delay or frustration may be early stages of adapting to a more powerful position. Criticism given and received. Your limits are tested. You could feel "cut off" from others and feel lonely if in the past you have emphasized your personal goals to the neglect of your personal relationships. Or if you have allowed your relationships to dominate your life to the point that you have neglected your personal goals, this may be the time when you reset your priorities. You may encounter some circumstance that will test whether the goals you have set for yourself are really valid or if there is something else you should be doing. Choices must be made. Don't try to avoid them. It is nearly always better to consciously take charge of your life than to wait for some situation to force your hand.

This is an excellent opportunity for a mentor relationship--whether it be you playing the role of wise teacher, friend, promoter to a younger protege, or an older, more responsible sort taking you under his or her wing for more training and expertise. Wisdom, age and practical experience can further your heart's desires. Time is on your side as you utilize your perseverance and practicality to achieve a majestic end.

Research may be your metier during this period. Your mind is not only reaching out to incredible vistas; it is also reaching down into the depths of the psyche and the roots of human experience. Your truth-seeking is particularly penetrating and incisive. You are less willing to put up with Your reach for something higher needs to be blended with your urge to shine and be significant in some way. Education, philosophy, religion, travel or other forms of truth-seeking can give you a channel in which to pour yourself and achieve acclaim and appreciation. Beware of grandiosity; keep your expectations reasonable. Your search for meaning may pull you away from friends and lovers or vice versa. Find ways to allow both in your life. Pride and self-esteem are natural; do not smother them in the name of "spirituality," but also avoid self-aggrandizement. You need excitement; seek it in healthy ways.

Your head and heart goals agree about the direction of your life. This is a wonderful time for blending your left and right brain functions. Both intuition and intellect are emphasized, and you have a golden opportunity to combine them in a harmonious, flowing pursuit of your heart's desire. You can get assistance from the Universe. Do as much as you can and then trust in something Higher. Just don't forget to do your part. The Universe will not do it all! Spiritual development, meditation, studying ESP or other "fringe" areas may appeal.

Now is the time to move closer to your visions of what really matters in life. This is an excellent period for some clarification of values. What do you really want in life? What are your true priorities? What matters most to you? As one goal or vision begins to emerge as the most significant TO YOU, follow that dream; help bring it into manifestation in the world. You can work in tune with the universe and a Higher Power to bring your visions into reality. Just be sure you don't overreach. You may be prophetic; your perspective is towards the future. Likely areas for focus include religion, travel, philosophy, education and spiritual quests.

Your Next Step

We recommend, as your next step up after this interpretive report that you have just read, that you order A Planetary Guide To Your Future. Here you will find interpretations of not only the outer planet transits used in Your Future, but also of the transits of the Sun, Mercury, Venus and Mars to your own chart, and of the major phases of the Moon. By adding the transits of these faster moving planets we can give you a different message for almost every day. (We can't promise every day, because on occasional days there may sometimes be no transit to your chart.) That report can be used as a very effective daily planning guide, so long as you are willing to understand and blend the relative significance of short-term daily transits and major trend transits. Easy to follow instructions in the Introduction will help you do that.
